

Federal Grants Tie Up States

Portland, Oct. 6 (AP)—States have too little money and too much federal interference, delegates to the council of state governments were told at the closing session of the western regional meeting yesterday.

Every additional federal grant of aid to the states "ties them tighter to the federal wheel," Alvin H. Reading, Idaho budget director, said.

Frank Bane, the council's executive director, also noted federal effects in pointing out that a decade ago the federal government took one-half of all taxes and now takes two-thirds. Since the war, federal aid to states has doubled, he said, and this brings about more federal control. States should be more self-reliant, he said.

Reading said there are a rising number of costs in welfare programs which he called irreducible even when state income falls off.

Washington's tax commissioner, E. W. Anderson, said his state needs more income and "it is highly probable that we will have to raise our 3 per cent of western highway and truck sales tax."

In a resolution the conference recommends that the "federal government begin leaving to states those problems which can be left there."

It also decided to set up a committee to seek coordination

Forest Group Formed
Portland, Oct. 6 (AP)—A new Pacific northwest forest conservation organization to promote private tree farming and related projects was announced today.
