Colors of autumn, both in costumes and stage settings, greeted those who Thursday night attended Miller's annual fall fashion review, featuring the latest in fall and winter fashions for men and sub-debs. Little folks, too, had a place on the program. Their fashions featured the latest in sleeping attire.

For glitter there was the lustrous material, satin, taffeta and velvet, which also gave richness to the costume. The fur trim was also in evidence, along with fur scarfs and coats.

Suits, coats and dresses for afternoon and early evening were featured in the opening group and next was the group showing robes and lingerie and featuring a boudoir scene with Teddy Jenks and her dancing school pupils.

Formals and dinner gowns in radiant new autumn colors and a variety of materials and styles were next and last to be shown was a wedding scene, complete with bride and bridegroom and attendants, including the junior members of the wedding party.

Mrs. Bruce Pickett (Margaret Allyn) formerly with the station KOCO and now residing in Portland was the commentator for the revue. Artists appearing on the program during the evening, in addition to Teddy Jenks and her dancing students, who gave a group of numbers, were Dorothy Pederson, pianist; Mrs. Frank Hubretz, soprano; and Mary Barton, organist.

Large Ranch Leased—The 640-acre Lakebrook ranch north of Salem has been leased by the T. A. Livesley estate to W. Lowell Steen, president of the Oregon Farm Bureau Federation. Steen came to Salem a few weeks ago from Pendleton when headquarters of the bureau were moved here from eastern Oregon and purchased the Harold D. Robertson junction near the 12th street junction where the family will continue to live. The Lakebrook ranch had been leased by Wilfred Weathers and for many years devoted exclusively to growing hops. Diversified crops have been grown in recent years.

The Salem officer during the war was a flight instructor. His wife and the couple's four children plan to join him in Japan at a later date.

Yankees Win

(Continued from Page 1) A base on balls to Yogi Berra on a 3-2 count started the trouble. When Branca retired Joe DiMaggio on a foul pop, it looked as though he was in the clear for Bobby two gone.

Robbie Brown sliced a single to left and the bases were jammed when Gene Woodling drew a pass, also on 3-2. Mize bats for Mapes.

Up came Mize, the 36-year-old ex-St. Louis Cardinal and New York Giant who was acquired by the Yanks in late season, from the Giants. Mize batted for hitless Cliff Mapes.

Big Jawm took a ball, a strike and then another ball. Branca's next pitch was clouted high into the screen.

Fast fielding and naturally Mizes ambling gut cut it to a single but Berra and Brown sped home with the big runs. Mize departed amidst a host of cheers from Yank fans, to be replaced by pinch-runner Hank Bauer. Woodling moved to third on Mize's hit.

Young Jack Branta then replaced Branca on the mound. Coleman slammed a single to center, permitting Woodling to romp in with the third run of the inning and the one that stood up for the final 4-3 margin.

Story of Early Innings—This started out like another terrific 1-0 game for there was no scoring until the third. Byrne and Branca were having a fine battle.

A walk to Mapes started Branca's difficulty in the third. Mapes batted a hit-and-run single past Jackie Robinson into center and Mapes was on third. Phil Rizzuto drove him home with a fly to Furillo after a squeeze bunt try rolled foul.

Pe Wee Reese led off the Brooklyn fourth with a homer into the neighboring left field seats and it was tied up, 1-1. A single by Furillo and two walks by Byrne loaded the bases with only one out. On came Mr. Page, the Yanks' bullpen ace.

Freeman Joe got out of it, as usual, by making Olmo foul out and taking care of Snider on an infield roller.

Oliver Will Speak—Dr. Egbert Oliver, director of the national board of home missions of the Congregational Christian church and a member of the Willamette university faculty, will speak on Christian missions in America at a meeting of the Men's club of the Beaverton Community Congregational church next Tuesday night. He will be accompanied by Prof. George Martin, state president of the Congregational laymen's fellowship.

Moving Building—Kay Simmons, 2225 Trade street, has been granted a county court permit to move an 18x22 one-story building from the Silverton highway to Hayesville district.

Warn Bike Riders—Salem police were under orders from Chief Clyde A. Warren Friday to be watchful for bicycle riders who have been reported to be using sidewalks at night with unlighted vehicles. In one instance, a citizen complained that he had been run down, but uninjured by such cyclists. The bicycles must carry lights and be kept off sidewalks according to city ordinances.

Jacobson Returning—Jules Jacobson, who owned the Army and Navy store at 223 N. Commercial for several years prior to its sale to Philip Grayson, has repurchased the store and will return to Salem to make his residence with his family. During the past nine years Jacobson has been associated with similar stores in Portland and Eugene. He plans to remodel the interior.

Meeting Saturday—Scheduled for Saturday at 3 p.m. in the courthouse is the meeting of the Marion county republican central committee. The group is to elect a new chairman to succeed Orval Hager, Jr., who resigned upon moving to Portland recently.

Home furnishings will be the major field of home economics emphasized in the Marion county home extension units 1949-50 program.

The first meetings of the year were held this week with demonstrations given by Eleanor Trindle and Bettyann Boetticher, home extension agents, on "Window Treatments" and "Unifying Home Furnishings." Other projects to be presented later will be "Making Draperies" and "Making Lampshades."

During December special meetings on "Holiday Decorations" will be given. Other demonstrations to be given in the spring, not in the field of home furnishings, will include "Giving Home Sewing a Professional Look," "Oven Meals" and "Pre-cooked Foods for the Locker."

Marion county has 28 home extension units, all of which are in rural areas. Their total membership is over 1000 home-makers.

"One Man's Family," pioneer in family dramas on the radio, has been on the air since 1933.

record. He also singled in yesterday's game as a pinch hitter. Branca said the pitch to Mize was a high fast ball right where he intended to throw it.

"If you had to throw 40 times it still would be right there," shouted Manager Shotton, "only trouble is, he hit it."

Newcomer said he is ready any time if Shotton wants him.

James Purdy in Role of 'Joseph'

James Purdy has been selected to play the important role of "Joseph" in the play "The Light Eternal," according to announcement by Anne Cortbell, chairman of the casting committee, and Mrs. Mabel Asmundsen, director.

The play will be presented at the Salem high school auditorium the night of October 12 under the auspices of the Wesley Fellowship of Willamette university.

Others cast for prominent roles in the production include Charles Dodd as the elder brother Reuben; Steven Anderson as Judah; Stearns Cushing, Jr., as Simeon; Jack Kuhn, as Levi; Frank Lockman as grandfather; Gilbert Jones as the modern day father and Miss Adeline Wilson as mother. The parts of John and John, the two grandchildren, are taken by John Buncy and Sharon Cushing.

East Germany

(Continued from Page 1) Both the east and west governments hope ultimately to be the government for all Germany. Informed Berliners said the Russians already have promised the infant state full membership in the cominform—Soviet-dominated political bloc.

These sources said the alliance with other eastern European governments will be economic as well as political. The communists propose to represent their regime as a government for all Germany, including the 45,000,000 people and more highly developed resources of the west. At present they have some 18,000,000 eastern zone Germans and a largely agricultural area under their control.

Planes Useless

(Continued from Page 1) Picking his words carefully, Radford gave his answer: "I feel the general impression in the navy is that decisions are being made in the highest offices in the defense establishment without adequate information that can come only from the navy."

In a slashing attack, Radford said that putting so much of limited military funds into the B-36 is a "big gamble with national security" based on an unsound theory that there can be "a cheap and easy victory" through strategic bombing.

Radford was before the house armed services committee—the first of a group of naval officers who at last are getting a chance to put before congress their dissatisfaction with present defense policies.

He told the lawmakers that claims made for the B-36 intercontinental bomber are not "valid." "That it is not true that it can perform unescorted missions by day or night, escaping interception, and that it can bomb with precision for 40,000 feet. Without escort, he declared it can be intercepted and destroyed in unacceptable numbers.

Just before that, he had told the committee that unless the B-36 could attack successfully without unacceptable losses, then "the B-36 is a billion dollar blunder."

Radford's statement was first given the house group at a closed session yesterday. Over the protest of Secretary of the Navy Matthews, the committee decided he should make it again publicly.

Matthews took the position that national security might be damaged if Radford's views were made public. But the committee voted him down, 9 to 6.

The committee wants to find out why some navy men—like the suspended Capt. John G. Crommelin—think morale and fighting efficiency of the sea service are being worn away by present defense policies.

Some of these officers feel that the air force and its intercontinental bomber are being favored over the navy and its carrier planes in defense plans. At the outset, Radford told the committee that decisions on defense planning may determine whether or not there is a war. He said:

"If the armed services of this nation are unsoundly organized and improperly equipped they will not be fully effective as a deterrent to aggression. They may even invite it."

Whatever the decisions, "some criticism is inevitable," Radford went on, adding that "agreement solely for agreement's sake on vital national issues is dangerous."

today capable of procuring more effective and more efficient planes for the task than the B-36."

3. Air force "over emphasis" on the heavy bomber has caused air force development of tactical and fighter air power to suffer. A lack of adequate fighters "may have grave consequences for future security of our bases and our homeland."

4. The air force adopted "unusual procedures" that "were not justified" to push the B-36 program.

Radford charged these procedures "undermined all unification, and blocked mutual trust, understanding and unified planning."

5. Each of the services should be permitted to bring experimental weapons through the development, test and evaluation stages. But no service should be permitted to go overboard on any single weapon in quantity until it has passed these stages.

6. The defense budget should not be used for unproved weapons. "The American taxpayers can not afford billion dollar blunders."

7. Strategic bombing should be a primary role of the air force, but the defense of the U.S. should not be bound to the so-called strategic bombing concept to its present extent.

Polio Cases

With the receipt from the Eagles' lodge came a letter of appreciation from L. A. Hamilton, secretary.

Nearly $1000 in bills to assist polio stricken persons was approved by the Marion county chapter of Infantile Paralysis, Inc., at its monthly meeting last evening, the bills covering such items as hospital and medical care as well as physiotherapy treatment and charges for such items as braces, etc.

Howard Ragan, recently appointed the March of Dimes chairman for 1950, was at the meeting to meet with the group. He reported the March of Dimes headquarters will open in room 309, Oregon building, around the first of November to get all preliminary work lined up for the annual drive.

Reports to the chapter stated 21 cases of polio in Marion county since the first of January are recorded.

Three applications for help for polio patients were before the board at its meeting. The chapter extends its funds to help those afflicted with polio as part of the policy of the national foundation who assist all polio stricken people in need of help. A percentage of the funds raised in the March of Dimes campaign remains with the local chapter for this purpose.

Leave Service Station—LeRoy Shearer and Neil O. Warwick, have filed notice of retirement with the county clerk from Starwick and Shearer, service station.
