19,197 Listed For Election

City Recorder Alfred Mundt announced Saturday that the registration for the special city elections next Friday, October 14, totals 19,197. That is a gain of 72 since the last primary election.

Since the last election, Mundt said, many registrants have been dropped from the rolls because of failure to vote.

Of the new total 364 are registered in the Kingwood district in Polk county.

In the district southeast of Salem on which there will be an annexation vote next Friday 363 are registered, and because of the highly controversial nature of the annexation question in that area it is predicted the vote will be heavy. Many challenges at the polls are in prospect, it is said.

The people within the city will vote on two questions in addition to the annexation. One will be the merger of West Salem with Salem. The other will be a charter amendment that will increase the number of city wards from seven to eight and the number of aldermen from seven to eight.

If the latter question is approved by the people the city council will then define by ordinance where the new ward shall be.

It is known that it will comprise the Kingwood district in Polk county, and if West Salem is merged with Salem, it will also include West Salem.

Approval of the amendment is considered important for two reasons. One is that it will give the people across the river representation on the city council. The other is that it will make an odd number of members of the city council and eliminate the nuisance of frequent tie votes.

Including the mayor the present number is eight, and the mayor has a vote under the managerial form of government.

27 Die in Traffic Mishaps in Sept.

Traffic accidents resulted in 27 fatalities in September, the traffic safety division of the secretary of state's office reported today.

The month's fatalities brought the 1949 toll to 219, a 33 percent drop from the 324 deaths reported in the same period in 1948.

The traffic safety division said the death reduction was "extremely satisfactory" in view of the year's increase in motor vehicle registrations and traffic volume. The total for the month was lower, too. Fifty-two persons died in traffic mishaps in September, 1949.

The division warned that early darkness and stormy weather in the months ahead may offset the gains. Records for previous years indicate an upsurge in fatalities involving pedestrians can be expected—most of them taking place in the heavy traffic of the early evening rush hours.

National figures for the first seven months of 1949 place Oregon second only to Idaho in percent of death reduction and well ahead of all other Pacific coast states, the division said.

In the ninth, Reynolds breezed home. Campanella grounded out but he struck out Hermanski who made a feeble save at the last pitch.

Pinch hitter Dick Whitman, batting for Jack Banta, the fourth futility strike, became Reynolds' fifth pitcher, victim to end the game.

"Three Banshees should positively insure the destruction of the B-36," he said, "in larger number the Banshees will work."

Barclay Aide To Gen. Maison

Special orders issued by the National Guard and approved Friday by the bureau in Washington, D. C., commissioned Charles Barclay a second lieutenant in the National Guard and appointed him as aide to Brig. Gen. H. G. Maison, deputy commander of the 41st division.

Barclay, veteran of the last war and now Salem's airport manager, was with the armed forces from February, 1942, until early in 1944, when he was discharged from the army.

On first going into the armed forces Lt. Barclay was with the air force taking his basic training with the air force and attending the field weather schools as weather observer. On completion of the schooling he was assigned to the first weather squadron on the Pacific coast and stationed at Hammer field, Fresno, Calif.

Later in the year Barclay went to officer candidate school for the signal corps at Fort Monmouth, graduating in January, 1943, as a second lieutenant.

Following this he was a basic training instructor at Camp Kohler, Calif., until the end of 1943.

The committee appointed associate members in all large towns and cities of the state to assist in the promotion of this campaign.

Latvians

Speaking of the railroad journey from the east to Portland she said "the landscapes were very beautiful, and America is bigger really than we thought it would be."

And Pastor Ufer gave Dagmar a practical lesson in American language, unwittingly, perhaps, as he closed the conversation.

"Shall we see you Sunday?" he asked.

She said yes to that, and Pastor Ufer said "Okay."

Janis Grisis is a farmer by occupation, but while in the displaced persons camp in Germany did carpentering for the United States government. They left Germany only two weeks ago.

Two other displaced Latvian families, sponsored, like the Grisis family, by Trinity Lutheran church of Dallas, will arrive soon. They are the Anton Tinsans and the Georg Odins families. The Tinsans will live in Dallas and the Odins on the William Brandt ranch near Sheridan. Odins is a teacher and speaks five languages fluently.

Trappnell took a dig at Secretary Johnson's refusal to allow the air force to accept the navy's challenge to an air duel.

"It is impossible," he said, "to reconcile the publicity in favor of the B-36 with the reluctance to engage in joint comparative tests with the navy."

Reduction in Surplus of Canned Fruits Project

A special fruit committee of the Oregon Farm Bureau Federation has embarked on a program to sponsor a state-wide campaign to reduce large surpluses of canned fruit, it was said at bureau headquarters here today.

Meeting in Portland, the farm bureau committee surveyed statistics on increasing carry over surpluses of canned fruits for the past three years.

Chairman Carothers of the committee, a berry grower of Hillsboro, said continuation of large carryover surpluses would be disastrous to fruit growers of the northwest.

A special campaign on the theme, "Stock your pantry shelves" is expected to go a long way toward relieving surpluses of canned fruit in the northwest, Carothers said. The campaign is sponsored by the Oregon Farm Bureau. Cooperation of all merchants in Oregon has been requested by the bureau. The Oregon Chain Stores association has offered its full cooperation.

The National Association of Food Chains has endorsed the last two weeks of October for a national campaign. The Oregon campaign is planned for October 12 through October 29, to coincide with the national campaign. The national campaign was conceived at a meeting of representatives of the food distribution organization with the American Farm Bureau federation, fruit and vegetable committee in Chicago, July 25, 1949.

Other members of the Farm Bureau committee are: Herman Polk, vice president of the Polk county Farm Bureau, berry, prune and apple grower of Sheridan; Frank Young, cherry grower and fruit commodity chairman, Union county Farm Bureau, of La Grande; A. P. Mohr, state chairman, fruit and edible tree nut committee, Oregon Farm Bureau, an apple and pear grower of Hood River; E. J. Chastain, chairman, Frematta county Farm Bureau, of Umatilla.

Milton Simon, voting delegate of Washington county Farm Bureau, a peach grower, Forest Grove.

The committee appointed associate members in all large towns and cities of the state to assist in the promotion of this campaign.

Manhunt

Postel inspectors reported the Benton City post office was broken into some time Thursday night.

They said the postoffice safe, containing about $500 in cash and $3,500 in U. S. savings bonds, was taken. The 500-pound safe was found yesterday about two miles from Benton City. It had been poked a large number of holes in its sides.

The inspectors said the prowlers gained admittance through a toilet window.

The inspector's office in Seattle said there was no evidence of how many were involved in the theft, but that the heavy safe was apparently carried out. There were no signs of its having been dragged.

Crisis Warning

The government did not lay down any ultimatum that the miners must go back to work, or that Lewis and the operators must get together by any specific date. But Ching said he would wait no longer.

"I'm all right," he said, "but I'm feeling a little bit better."

Edwin G. Nourse, chairman of the president's economic advisory council, said that a month of continued strikes in the coal and steel industries would seriously threaten the national welfare.

Ching said he had kept in close touch with steel developments since the steel strike started last Monday, but he said "no immediate plans" for calling Philip Murray's CIO-steelworkers and the steel companies back into government-sponsored negotiations.

"It is impossible," he said, "to reconcile the publicity in favor of the B-36 with the reluctance to engage in joint comparative tests with the navy."

Albany Polio Case Reported Improved

Albany, Oct. 8—Mrs. Earl T. Hayes, 834 W. Ninth avenue, Friday reported that her son, David, aged 12, is apparently making good progress toward recovery from infantile paralysis with which he was stricken September 4.

The boy is under hot-pack treatment at the Sacred Heart hospital in Eugene, where he was taken Sunday.

According to Dr. John Guepe, Linn county health officer, this is only the eighth case of polio to be reported in Linn county this year and the third since July 1. All of the cases have been widely separated, he said, and the disease has in no way been epidemic.

The flower of the month for January is the carnation, the birthstone garnet.
