

Confer Upon Age Insurance

The subject of old-age and survivors insurance was the subject of interest at the meeting of the Salem Life Insurance Underwriters association today at the Senator hotel.

George O. Raugust, association president, introduced R. C. Stillwell, Salem manager of the social security administration.

Mr. Stillwell reviewed the proposals for extension of social security coverage and the proposed increases in old-age and survivors insurance benefits.

He remarked, "The house of representatives acted upon this matter with the result the amendments to the social security act were adopted by the house on a strictly non-partisan basis, the vote being 377 to 13. It can be expected the senate will give this matter early attention at the next session to begin next January."

Dr. Egbert S. Oliver of Willamette university, who will attend Congregational church convention in Portland, Me., as director and executive committee member of the board of home missions. With Mrs. Oliver he left Friday. In Boston and Chicago they will do literary research in connection with Dr. Oliver's teaching and writing work.

8 More Pilots To Join Facility

Eight more naval aviators, who are members of the reserves, Thursday responded personally to the news letter sent out from the Salem Naval Air Facility less than a week ago.

The eight came to the facility and were processed for flight training and five of the group got in flying time. The three not flying still have to take their physicals and have made arrangements to take these next Wednesday night.

The eight coming here were Lt. (j.g.) Gordon Gillfillan of Albany; Lt. Raymond Walker and Ens. Dan Norris of Corvallis; Lt. (j.g.) R. E. Jenkins of Vancouver, Wash.; and Lt. (j.g.) Roy Johnson, Lt. (j.g.) James Coffey, Lt. (j.g.) Michael Stanko and Lt. Folger Johnson, all of Portland.

The five getting in flying time were Coffey, Stanko, Norris, Roy Johnson and Folger Johnson.

Purple Heart Week Ends

Salem's newest and smallest veterans organization, the Military Order of the Purple Heart, climaxes "Purple Heart week" tomorrow with a city-wide sale of the organization's official flower, the viola.

Assisted by the Salem Junior Catholic Daughters of America, guided by Mrs. H. E. Corey, and several gold star mothers, the Salem chapter of the organization comprised of wearers of the Purple Heart will offer their viola's throughout the city. The sale headquarters will be at the R. L. Elfstrom company.

As a part of "Purple Heart week" the local group has been exhibiting their newly donated colors in the window of Gevurtz Bros. Furniture company. Louis Gevurtz, of Portland, head of the firm offered the flag as a gift to add the new unit in organizing.

Women Fliers to Meet Here Oct. 29

Oregon chapter of the Ninety-niners, national women fliers organization, will hold its October meeting in Salem the night of October 29.

The dinner meeting of the organization is slated for 8 p. m. at the Marion hotel and is expected to draw a large group of women fliers, many of whom will be flying here, if weather

Albany Possible Office Location

Albany, Oct. 21—Assembling of all local state agencies under one roof or on a single site was envisioned here by Secretary of State Earl Newbry during a discussion of the plan of his office to establish a motor vehicle license division field office at Albany.

Secretary Newbry, meeting with an Albany Chamber of Commerce special committee in the Cascade room of the Albany hotel, said that Albany had long been selected as one of the locations for a license bureau but that action was delayed after it was found that the state board of higher education was interested in establishment of its headquarters here.

Should that be done, Secretary Newbry said, a new building would probably be erected here by the state board, and in anticipation of that possibility he has already started negotiations with the board for making provision to house the license field office in the structure.

Should the education board fail to build here, said the state official, he will set up the Albany field office in a building to be erected by a private builder on a lease basis, as will be done at Lebanon.

Secretary Newbry justified establishment of motor vehicle license division field offices throughout the state on the basis of both economy and convenience.

Arrests Made in Auto Bilking

Arrest of a man and woman in Portland for the alleged bilking of a Salem student of $1100 culminated the end of a nine-month investigation in which Sgt. John Williams, Oregon state police, had a leading part.

The man, identified as Edward Maynard Sharlow, Oakland Calif., was picked from a police lineup by James Jolley, 25, OSC freshman. With Sharlow and also being held is Alayne Evelyn Scheiber, 25, of Salem, whom Sharlow is said to have met in Salem and who accompanied him to Eugene.

Both the man and woman will be taken to Eugene for a hearing and while state police have not filed a car theft charge, the FBI is investigating the circumstances and probably will seek prosecution under the Dyer act as Sharlow is alleged to have stolen the automobile sold here to Jolley from a Vancouver, Wash., used car lot. The couple are being held under a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses.

Sgt. Williams said the modus operandi used by Sharlow was to obtain illegal possession of a certificate of title, usually by theft, and then steal an automobile closely resembling the one described in the title and offer it for sale.

Portland to Install One-way Grid Nov. 25

Portland, Oct. 21 (AP)—Barring unexpected legal challenges, Portland's downtown area will convert to one-way streets Nov. 25.

The city council took apparently decisive action last night in voting down a proposal to postpone the one-way street system a year.

Open to women with a private flier's license or better, the Ninety-niner's Oregon chapter has over 40 members. State president is Joyce Hoberg Martin of Portland.

In charge of making arrangements for the Salem meeting is Evelyn Whitmaker, who is with the state board of aeronautics.

Potato Chips At Ball Games

When next baseball season rolls around you'll probably see potato chips being sold in the George E. Waters park grandstand, along with peanuts and popcorn.

"It's done in some places," said William A. Scott of Grand Forks, N. Dak., president of the Potato Products corporation, who was here today to expand his business. "The chips go well with a baseball crowd."

He added that the Grand Forks club, a Yankee farm outfit, sent Joe DiMaggio a case of shoestring potatoes from the Grand Forks plant, when a score of other farm clubs sent the Yankee star gifts representative of their localities.

Mr. Scott's company has extended its activities here through the Ballantyne Sales company of Salem as brokers and the M & M company, and the Willamette Grocery company as distributors.

"We are the first potato chip company that has gone after national distribution," said Mr. Scott. "The plant at Grand Forks is four blocks long and contains about 600,000 square feet, and we process six or seven carloads of potatoes daily."

Several potato products are made and the company is also in the fresh potato business.

Abrams Succeeds Bohl at Alliance

The Rev. Herman J. Bohl who submitted his resignation to the local Missionary Alliance church last August will bring his farewell message to the church next Sunday. This will conclude four and one-half years of fruitful ministry in which the church has experienced a marked growth in every phase of the work.

Rev. Richard J. Abrams of San Diego, Calif., was extended a call last Sunday by the local Alliance church to fill the vacancy left by the Rev. Bohl, and is expected to take over his pastoral duties some time in November.

She's Cooperative—Mrs. Herbert Swan, at 2615 North Front, is grateful for assistance given her family when they were in need. Now she wants to help others. So she has started a job clearing house at her home, free of cost to the clients, where the job and the worker may get together. In the picture Mrs. Swan points to some of the things that come from generous Salem people.

Opens Office For Jobless

If you want a short job call or see Mrs. Herbert Swan. Or if you want someone to do a short bit of work contact Mrs. Swan. Her address is 2615 North Front street, and her phone number 2-8801.

The service won't cost you anything. Mrs. Swan is grateful for help given her and her husband and two children when they faced the emergency of no work and a purse practically empty. When Salem people read about them in the Capital Journal they responded generously. Milk came for the babies, food for the larder, and some jobs for Swan.

That impressed Mrs. Swan, especially because some of those who helped had little themselves. And all of them, she says, had the real neighborly spirit in their hearts.

But she wants to cooperate now, and help someone else. Pass it on, she says. So she has started the clearing house for jobs where work and employer may get together.

See her any time, up to 6 p. m., but not after that hour, she requests. Evening is the only time of day the family of four can be together.

She mentions one family that needs help—father, mother and two children, one of 8 months and the other 2½ years. The older child has been without milk for six weeks.

The Swans came here seven months ago from Connecticut, and for a time Swan worked on the Detroit project. But the job ran out. Now he picks up work here and there, as do those whom Mrs. Swan wants to help.

Siletz Postmaster Washington, Oct. 21 (AP)—Ernest M. Chandler today was nominated by President Truman as postmaster for Siletz, Ore.

Captain Sten Joelson, master of the Black Douglas, described the rescue as "routine." But Captain Ivy didn't agree with him.

"The seamanship in bringing the Black Douglas alongside the life boats was excellent," said Ivy.

Englewood Gets High Rating

Englewood school of Salem has been rated among Oregon's best, according to announcement made this week during the monthly meeting of the Englewood PTA by Miss Elizabeth Radar, state elementary school director.

During her talk before the PTA Miss Radar pointed out the importance of discarding out-moded equipment and methods and referred to the "school of tomorrow" as being so advanced as to seem almost fantastic in comparison with present day practices.

Attendance for the first meeting of the year was excellent. Mrs. Laura Eaton's first grade received the room prize with 31 parents present.

Mrs. Dorothy Daugherty and the staff of teachers were introduced with each being presented with a corsage. Entertainment was provided by Wayne Meusey with piano and vocal numbers.

The fifth and sixth grade mothers served refreshments. The PTA officers are: James Byers, president; G. O. Christoferson, vice president; Mrs. Clyde Johnson, treasurer; Mrs. L. S. Shuford, secretary.

Mrs. Delman Polio Victim

Polio Thursday night claimed the life of a former Salem girl, Mrs. Frances Marian Delman, now of Lincoln, Nebr.

Mrs. Delman, who was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Carr of 515 South 21st street, and the wife of Charles Delman of Lincoln, Nebr., died at the Lincoln General hospital. She was admitted to the hospital Sunday.

This was the second time that Mrs. Delman had had infantile paralysis, being one of those in Salem having the disease when there was an epidemic here six or seven years ago.

Twenty-three years of age, Mrs. Delman was born at Shreveport, La., and came to Salem from Medford in 1942. She had made her home here until a few months ago when she was married to Delman and left for Lincoln to make her home. Mrs.

Barkley to Visit Oregon This Fall, Morse Reveals

Washington, Oct. 21 (AP)—Sen. Wayne Morse, (R. Ore.), said today that Vice President Alben W. Barkley is planning a fall visit to Oregon.

Morse said Barkley advised him that democrats in the state have invited the vice president there, that he expects to go to welcome the vice president as a visitor to Oregon.

Barkley's office had nothing to add to Morse's information.

The Oregonian took a few of the final minutes of the senate's session to extend a welcome to Barkley, but said he hoped the vice president would not "encore" the story he told on Morse during his last visit. Morse said the gist of the story was that "Wayne is a republican but he really doesn't know the difference between a republican and a democrat."

Barkley asked permission "to correct" Morse.

"The vice president," he said, "then the senator from Kentucky, was intimating that the senator from Oregon was a democrat but didn't know it."

"Mr. President," Morse said, addressing Barkley by his title as the senate's presiding officer, "that is a new version of the story. I hope the vice president will not make his correction in my state."

Morse added that "republicans and democrats alike will be hap-

Escape Wreck Injuries—Though the front ends of both automobiles were smashed, neither Ernest Little, Aumsville or John Hiebert, Dallas, were injured when their automobiles collided near Aumsville Thursday afternoon.

Delman attended Salem schools and was graduated from Salem high school. Prior to her marriage she was employed by the Kennell-Ellis studio.

Surviving besides the parents and husband are two sisters, Mrs. Florence Krankes of Kansas City, Mo., and Mrs. Elsie Schlegel of Port Angeles, Wash.; and two brothers, Jess Carr and Edward Carr of Salem.

The body will be sent to Salem for burial and announcement of funeral services will be made later by the Clough-Barrick chapel.
