Clearing the Atmosphere It is now evident that the Portland Beavers will operate the Salem Senators another season or turn elsewhere for a buyer for its local holdings. Trying to do business through mass meetings where everybody in attendance is entitled to speak his piece may be a good example of democracy, but it certainly isn't conducive to speed or efficiency. And, perhaps a bail club that is owned by four or five hundred individuals would provide a managerial problem that no number of aspirin tablets would assuage. An Eight Man Line

The Albany coaching staff, after scouting the Eugene Axemen, came up with an eight man line last week, a maneuver that brought about the first defeat of the season for the Lane county club. The Axemen had favored a pich-out play in order to gain much of their yardage against other Big Six opponents, but when confronted with eight men on the opposite wall, they were a bit reluctant to use their favorite maneuver. The Albany forwards constant-ly threatened to grab off one of the pitch-outs and run it work to be the state of the pitch-outs and run it back for a touchdown. So now Loren Mort and his Salem Vikings are on top of the heap with two league games remaining to be played. Neither will be easy—Corvallis here Friday night and Eugene there Armistice day. Nev-ertheless, if the Viks perform up to their possibilities they can take both of them.

Eugene on Top

The Axemen have dominated fairly consistenly during the past decade, having won six and settled for one tie during that period. Which means the Vikings have been winners but three times Total points for the 10 years are Salem 84 and Eugene 116. The biggest margin of victory was Eugene's 25 to 0 triumph in 1944. Out of Saturday's clash in Los Angeles between the UCLA Bruins and the California Bears may emerge the club that Bruins and the California Bears may emerge the club that will represent the Pacific Coast conference in the Rose Bowl New Year's day. While the Bruins have a slightly tarnished record due to their defeat by Santa Clara, the result of that contest has no bearing on conference play. California, although a bit lucky to get over USC, will present a perfect record against their Los Angeles cousins. And while the Berkeley Bears have yet to meet their cross-bay foes at Palo Alto, November 19, a win over the Bruins would give them a fairly substantial edge. In har Bruins would give them a fairly substantial edge. In be-tween, Coach Pappy Waldorf's squad must meet Wash-ington State and Oregon on successive Saturdays-two region state and open rouble. The twice beaten Web-foots are out of the bowl picture, but they should need no greater incentive in their November 12th engagement at Berkeley than the remembrance of last year politics which resulted in the Bears being selected over Coach Jim Aiken's crew even though they ended the season in a deadlock.
