

CIO Turns to Political Purges

Cleveland, Nov. 3 (AP)—The CIO turned to its mounting domestic and world-wide political chores today wrapped in the newly acquired robes of a right-wing federation.

The roll of the political action committee (PAC) in the 1950 elections was due for plenty of attention before convention adjournment because of the CIO's expressed chagrin at the failure of congress this session to repeal the Taft-Hartley act.

President Truman pledged repeal, but both house and senate rebelled.

In international politics, the CIO is joining with the AFL and labor federations abroad in creating a new World Labor Congress, rivalling the Soviet-dominated World Federation of Trade Unions.

The CIO withdrew from the WFTU last spring because it complained it was unable to check the flood of communist propaganda in the organization.

Hot debate was expected over foreign affairs and the international move—from at least some of the left-wing leaders still sitting in the convention hall. Harry Bridges, west coast longshore leader, is one who wants to continue in the WFTU because, he says, it helps in dock strikes to have cooperation of foreign crews and longshoremen.

The major leftist-led unions—The United Electrical Workers and Farm Equipment Workers—were bounced out by convention action yesterday.

That left 10 others to face the equally severe inspection of the 51-man executive board.

The board is scheduled to meet Saturday, but may assemble sooner to act on a convention order to carry out the anti-leftist purge to completion.

State Police Get Advances

State Police Supt. H. G. Mallon announced today the following state police promotions:

Sgt. Lyle H. Harrell, to lieutenant, and transferred from Roseburg to the Baker district headquarters.

Sgt. Holly Holcomb, transferred from St. Helens to Roseburg.

Sgt. Louis G. Johnson, transferred from LaGrande to Salem, where he will become assistant to the director of the bureau of identification and criminal investigation.

Pvt. Dominic J. Casciato, to sergeant, and transferred from The Dalles to LaGrande.

Pvt. Stuart T. Earl, to sergeant, and transferred from Pendleton to Baker district headquarters.

Jaycee Speech Contest Planned

Final plans for the Junior Chamber of Commerce sponsored "I Speak for Democracy" contest which will reach its climax in Salem on November 14 were announced Thursday by Stan Schofield, who heads the Jaycee contest committee.

The two finalists from each of Salem's three high schools—Salem academy, Sacred Heart and Salem senior high—will meet on that date in final competition.

All six speeches on democracy will be broadcast over radio station KSLM, with the judges to make their selection of the three top finalists at that time. It will be a 45 minute afternoon program.

Judges for the competition will be Prof. Ruane Hill of Willamette university, Jay Gordon Thornton and Dave Hoss of KSLM.

A transcript of the winning speech will be mailed to the state Jaycee committee chairman, John Luvaas, at Eugene for judging on the state level.

State winners will be entered in national competition with a $500 scholarship at stake for several of the finalists.

As rewards for the local effort, a special meeting of the Salem Junior Chamber will be held on November 23 to honor the top contestants of each Salem high school with a radio slotted to be presented to each of them by Heider's Radio shop.

No So Confident—Sigmund Engel (left), elderly confidence man, is not his usual dapper and talkative self as he faces jail bars again. The 74-year-old self-styled lover of 1,901 women, was convicted in Chicago on charges of bilking a Chicago widow of $8,700 after promising to marry her. He faces a one to 10 year prison sentence. Boxcar Crisis Eased a Little

Some improvement in the box car situation in Salem was reported Thursday both by shippers and by the Southern Pacific company.

The Salem freight office of the SP got word, Freight Agent W. E. Burks said, that it can fill its own orders and not have to go through the Portland office.

"There has been a real break in the last day or two," Burks said. "I hope it will continue, because we have a lot of business waiting us in the face."

The West Salem Lumber company reports the situation better as compared with last week. The Arrow Mill & Lumber company says it is better, but still the company is getting only a little over half the cars it needs.

The Friesen Lumber & Supply company isn't getting all the cars it wants, but has noted an easing up of the shortage this week, amounting at one time to a spurt in the car supply.

Capitol Lumber company reports the railroad company "doing pretty well by us," and the B. J. Minden Lumber company is "getting by," the office reported.

Cordon Slams 81st Congress

Portland, Nov. 3 (AP)—Sen. Guy Cordon (D., Ore.), said here today the session of congress just completed wasn't half as good as the one before.

He said there was no comparison between the 80th congress and the 81st.

"In the 80th congress for the first time in almost two decades we kept the country in the black," he said. "At the same time we took over 7,000,000 lower income people off the federal tax rolls, and that means more take home pay in the envelopes."

Cordon, arriving here by train this morning from Washington, D. C., will address a state convention of Oregon Republican clubs at Salem tomorrow night.

The senator was emphatic in his opposition to a reduction of tariffs by the United States. He said trade barriers between European countries had been increased since the war.

"Let's let the European countries remove their tariffs so that there can be real inter-European trade before we make further changes in ours."

Waiches Are Needed By Young Hunters

Albany—Four young hunters may as well lay their guns away for the rest of this season because they didn't keep track of the time.

Two of the youths, Keith Smith and Alfred Fagan, live at Brownsville and the other two, Lyle Iverson and Dean Edwards, live at Corvallis. Two were picked up by state police on the Linn county side of the Willamette river near Corvallis.

All four pleaded guilty in justice court here to charges of hunting after hours and Judge Harlow Weirick suspended their hunting licenses for the remainder of the season.

Sublimity Observes Educational Week

Sublimity—The Sublimity school will observe American Education Week, Nov. 8 to 12 with dedication of its new school building and with open house the afternoon and evening of Nov. 8.

The new elementary building, designed by Freeman and Hyslip, is to be dedicated Tuesday evening. It is expected that officials from county and state offices of education as well as representatives of the architectural and contracting firms will be present.

All rooms will carry on their regular work during the day. Parents and friends are being urged to visit during school hours so that they may see pupils at work.

Shedd Area First In Campaign Quota

Albany—Shedd became the first Linn county community to break over the top of its Community Chest quota, when it turned in $692 to Lars Fredericksen, county chest chairman.

The Shedd quota was $685.

Meanwhile in Albany Chest collection approached the $5000 mark of the $12,000 quota. It was announced by Howard Hickam, local chairman.

Drainage Plans Deadlocked

The co-operative arrangement for the county to aid the city in its drainage program north of Salem at the Silverton road came to a temporary deadlock at least Thursday when the city asked that the county clean out a ditch running north from the road at Hollywood avenue for a distance of about 2100 feet, instead of the 300 feet first asked and agreed to.

After City Manager Franzen and Engineer Harold Davis with County Judge Grant Murphy, Commissioner Ed Rogers and County Engineer Hedda Swartz had examined the proposed work the county judge told the city officials the county wouldn't undertake the job until it had some definite cost estimates from the city which could be approved by the county court.

The necessity for extending the ditch deepening from 300 feet to 2100 feet from where a proposed new bridge will be put in on the Silverton road arose because levels taken showed the fall in the ditch is very slight and the 300 feet first planned would do little good in carrying off the expected high waters of the winter.

On inspection of the ditch the county officials found that part of it is overgrown with shrubbery and in fact huge trees are growing out of it.

The cost of clearing the stuff and getting it away apparently would be more than the cost of deepening," said Judge Murphy. "We would like to know something more about just how expensive this will be and especially how the clearing will be handled before he make any commitments."

Houston Bus Drivers Strike

Houston, Tex., Nov. 3 (AP)—Industrial Houston was without bus service today as striking drivers and mechanics postponed a vote on a company wage dispute settlement offer.

The 1100 CIO Transport union members went on strike at 12:01 a.m. and received the new company proposal shortly after 4 a.m. (CST).

A secret ballot on acceptance or rejection was postponed until 9 a.m. A stormy mass meeting, delayed two hours as negotiations continued after the strike began, was recessed at 6 a.m. after two hours of debate.

The buses are the only public

Oregon Projects Get $3 Million

Portland, Nov. 3 (AP)—Three Oregon reclamation projects will get more than three million dollars in the current fiscal year, the Oregon Journal's Washington bureau reported today.

It said the program, to be released in detail tomorrow by reclamation Commissioner Michael W. Straus at the Salt Lake City meeting of the National Reclamation association, is this:

Deschutes project: Work on Wickup reservoir and irrigation distribution facilities, $383,440; rehabilitation work on the Arnold irrigation district, $47,198; rehabilitation of Ochoco dam, $898,724; and rebuilding a pipeline to the Grants Pass irrigation district, $83,800.

Klamath project of Oregon and California: Construction of pumping plants, laterals and drains and for completion of the final report on boundary dam and the settler assistance program, $1,559,932.

Owyhee project of Oregon and Idaho: Completion of the main canal and lateral system, irrigating 103,499 acres in 1686 farms, $51,275.

To Talk Love Life of Oyster

"The Love Life of an Oyster" will be the subject of a talk at the Chamber of Commerce Monday noon. The speaker, an authority on the romantic impulses of oysters, will be E. N. Steele, president of the Rock Point Oyster company of Olympia.

And that isn't all. Olympia oyster cocktails and Olympia stewed will be served at the luncheon.

Advance tips about Mr. Steele's talk say "It's funny... it's educational." It is the story of the growth of the Pacific oyster industry by an oyster pioneer.

Steele graduated in law from the University of Iowa in 1903 and set up a practice in Olympia. He still is a lawyer. But in 1907 he got interested in oysters as a hobby. Now, he says, it's his main business.

Chamber members will vote on new directors of the organization Monday and the ballots will be counted immediately after the luncheon.

New members to be introduced are: Al Isaak, realtor, 3035 Portland road; Richard O. Criswell, representative of Remington Rand, 357 North High; L. H. Wright, owner of Wright Truck Line, Stayton.

Loot From Foster Found in Trailer

Albany—Loot has been recovered from a trailer house located near Corvallis and belonging to Byron C. Gift and Robert Near Martin of Foster. Mechanic and plumber tools, a blow torch, drill press and automobile accessories were found stowed in the trailer house.

State police reported that they had found in the trailer house articles valued at several hundreds of dollars, all of it believed to have been stolen by the Foster pair within the last two or three weeks from garages, cars and houses in various parts of Linn, Marion and Benton counties, though ownership to most of the plunder has not yet been established.

Search of the trailer house followed arrest of Gift and Martin by state police when they were caught in the act of siphoning gasoline from a car parked near Cottonwoods. For this they were consigned to the county jail for 30 days each.

Overland Gets Fish

Silverton—Edwin Overland, active in the Izaak Walton League, landed a 20-pound salmon during a two-day vacation with his fishing pal, Lawrence Larson, at Woods, near the coast. Larson was not so fortunate. His fish all got away.
