

Fall Festival Brings Profit

Salem Heights, Nov. 7—Many parents and friends attended the open house and harvest festival at the Salem Heights school.

The school rooms displayed the work done by the children since the fall term started. Many mural paintings, handwork and exhibits which were done by the children and supervised by the teachers were displayed.

The fish ponds for the festival were for the two first grades with Mrs. Ray McElroy and Mrs. Fred Cords, room mothers, in charge. Mrs. Lyle Zobel and Mrs. Carl Anderson, second and second-third grade room mothers, were in charge of the candy booth. Mrs. Louis Kurth, third grade room mother, was in charge of the milk bottle game; Mrs. John Ramage, fourth grade room mother, had the hot dog booth; Mrs. Herbert Margg, fifth grade room mother, the vegetable table, and the movie by the sixth grade with Mrs. E. L. Whitacre in charge.

The community club participated, with Hobart Smith, the little Garden club of Salem Heights, with Mrs. Ed A. Carleton, Mrs. Carl Harris and Mrs. Floyd McClellan; Bluebirds, with Mrs. Del Ramsdell, and the musical chairs by the Camp Fire Girls, under the leadership of Mrs. Willard Day.

The Salem Heights church women had a table, while the Cub Scouts, with Leo Olson in charge, had the soda pop. The Woman's club, with Mrs. Lyle Bayne in charge, sold chili. The Mothers club was in charge of the Harvest Festival and sold cake, pie and coffee. The Boy Scouts of Troop 19 had a wet sponge throwing game as their concession.

It was estimated that $240 was made at the Harvest Festival this year. This sum is divided into the many groups that took part. Mrs. Kenneth Zwicker, who is president of the Mothers club, was general chairman of the festival. Marion Miller, principal, was in charge of the school.

Schools Offer Variety Show

E. Donald Jessop, music supervisor for Salem schools, announces that a Thanksgiving festival variety show and dance program will be held on November 18 aimed at securing funds to back music programs.

The show, featuring the high school band, orchestra, chorus, a one-act play, stunts, magic and dancing, will be staged in the high school auditorium and gymnasium next Friday night. The Thanksgiving theme will hold throughout the program. The festival will replace the concert series as a fund raising program.

A DIP FOR VIRGINIA MAYO

Getting Measured for Bath In Order to Disappoint Fans

Hollywood, Calif., Nov. 7 (AP)—Actress Virginia Mayo was measured for a bath today. She had to sit on the floor—straight up, shoulders back—for hours while a gang of construction men swarmed over her with tape measures and carpenter's t's. This was for the water level. Too high—no good for the camera. Too low—no good for lots of reasons. This kind of precaution is endured by every Hollywood bathing beauty over the physical age of 8. And those slide-rule calculations are as exact as anything they figure up at Oak Ridge.

They had better be. Plenty of movie customers sit hopefully through all bath scenes, counting on the law of averages that says someday something's gonna slip up — or down — somewhere along the line and they're gonna get an eyeful.

It never has. And they never do. A lot of people draw handsome salaries to make sure of that.

They've even got the sound stage at Warners, where Miss Mayo will do her scrubbing on "The Hawk and Arrow," padlocked against peeping toms. No one will be allowed inside when the gal takes her plunge in the pool, nobody except 20 assorted grips, electricians, cameramen, prop men, directors and actors.

They don't count. To a lady star taking a bath out in the open, a crew is just as necessary as soap. And just as impersonal.

There is another problem confronting the boys who're drawing Miss Mayo's bath. The pool has to be smooth on the bottom, according to Art Director Edward Carrara.

"No rough plaster work and no pebbles," he said. "Particularly no pebbles. Miss Mayo will be sitting there with not much on and she might come out all marked up . . . if you know what I mean."

There is another thing. This movie is in technicolor and the shade of the water is just as vital as the depth. If it's too clear, you'll see too much of Virginia, according to one way of looking at it. Let 'em mix it too blue, and Virginia might climb out with her creamy skin a deep indigo shade. And that would never do. None of the glamour queens are wearing their skins blue this season.

Blue Lake in National Drive

Consumer purchases of one of the largest and best quality canned corn stocks in years are being boomed by a merchandising and marketing program of Can Manufacturers Institute of New York and the Associated Independent Corn Canners, Chicago, of which the Blue Lake Packers, Inc. of Salem is a member.

The local canning company, in cooperation with more than a hundred other independent corn packers, will encourage corn sales at the wholesale level and through retail store displays across the country. The marketing bureau of the Can Manufacturers Institute, representing can makers, will take the canned corn story to the consumers through magazines, newspapers and radio stations. A total of 6,700 newspapers, 1,500 magazines and more than 300 radio stations will thus be informed of this program by photographs, recipes and stories about the supply, economy and nutritive values of canned corn.

Canning officials realize that contracting for and canning corn is not their sole job these days. To assure a year-after-year market from locally produced corn and full-scale employment at the local cannery, it has become necessary to follow through direct to the consumer via active participation in the modern sales methods advanced through national merchandising programs.
