The group will open the drive next year to require the armed forces to "fortify" and develop Alaska as the key to the Pacific coast defenses, and to do what ever is necessary also to prepare the Great Lakes region and the Atlantic seaboard against attack.

The unofficial committee also will try:

(1) To get agreements from the joint chiefs of staff that all military contracts will be placed on the basis of quality, cost and time competition without regard to the geographical location of industries.

(2) To arrange a public meeting in Washington, D. C., in early January to give public opinion behind the move.

Industries Cited
The report cites numerous instances of orders, and even whole plants, being shifted inland and southward, and of pressure for others to take the same direction. The study concentrates on aircraft.

Regional chairmen on the unofficial committee include: Western states: Senator Keadler (R-Calif.) and Rep. Shepard (D-Calif.); Great Lakes area: Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.) and Rep. Crawford (R-Mich.); New England: Senator McMahon (D-Conn.) and Rep. Fogarty (D-R.I.).

The report lists examples of plant and production moves and urged as including:

Boeing Aircraft Engineering corporation at Bethpage, N. Y., was asked by the navy to consider moving to Phoenix, Ariz.

Consolidated Vultee Aircraft, in San Diego, Calif., has found the bulk of its contracts for the P-36 concentrated at a government-owned plant in Fort Worth, Texas.

Boeing airplane company in Seattle has found the air force insisting that its B-47 be built in the recently reactivated government owned plant in Wichita, Kansas, while more and more of its trained labor force in Seattle is idled by completion of previous military orders.

The report says the air force rejected central Washington as the site for a $100,000,000 supersonic air research laboratory although this was the first choice of engineering consultants. The site chosen was in Tennessee.

Centennial of Post Office

The first Salem post office was established 100 years ago today but no special observance of the centennial was held. Postmaster Albert C. Gragg reported that several hundred special covers sent here by collectors for cancellation will be run through the stamping machines as requested.

J. B. McLane was the first official postmaster for Salem operating in his residence at 960 Broadway, known as the Jason Lee House.

The site of the present office built in 1938 was occupied for postal purposes in 1903 through the construction of a two story sandstone structure. This building was later purchased by Willamette university and was moved up State street to a place on the campus where it is currently in use by the law college. The moving proved to be a tremendous job and one contractor gave it up.

Steelworkers

Agreements with Republic and Jones and Laughlin, were announced today. They differed in some details from Bethlehem and from each other.

In Ohio, the Timken Roller Bearing company, employer of 10,000 in four plants, was turned down on an offer to workers of a pension plan similar to one now in existence for Timken salaried workers. The steelworkers indicated they wanted a pension plan like Bethlehem's. Coal Strike Stalemate

What bearing the steel settlements might have on the coal strike was not known. Lewis, rebuffed in an attempt to reach a separate settlement with Illinois-Indiana operators, met for the second consecutive day at Chicago with district leaders and had no announcements.

Six other companies negotiating for similar agreements were Wheeling Steel with 17,000 workers, Inland with 15,000, Youngstown Sheet and Tube with 20,000, Allegheny-Ludlum with 12,000, Colorado Fuel and Iron with 15,000, Great Lakes Steel with 10,000, Pittsburgh Steel with 8,000 and a number of smaller firms. One small company, McClouth Steel, signed on the basis of the Bethlehem formula without a strike, insuring pensions for its 500 employees and 1,200 more to be employed at a new plant at Trenton, Mich.

General Orders Issued For Armistice Day

General orders for the annual observance of Armistice Day were issued today with the program following the customary procedure of a parade at 10:30 o'clock, patriotic program at the court house at 11 o'clock, or armory in event of rain, with Governor Douglas McKay giving the main address.

Activities of the day will start at 8 o'clock with the annual breakfast of past commanders of Capital Post No. 9 at the American Legion club with Chet Higgins to be official host.

The reviewing stand will be located on the south side of State street in front of the Capitol theater.

Forming at Marion square the parade will move south on Commercial to State, east on State to Church, north on Church to Court, west on Court to High and south on High to a point in front of the American War Mothers' memorial on the court house lawn.

The parade, under the direction of George Vandensynde, will consist of five sections, headed by Brigadier General H. G. (Fod) Madison, grand marshal, and his staff, followed by the color guard distinguished guests, Willamette university band, Co. B, ORNG and Co. G, ORNG; Air Corps reserve, Marine Corps reserve and the naval reserves.

Commanding the second section will be Ken Potts, with O. E. (Mose) Palmaeter assisting. The section will be headed by the Leslie Junior high school band, Spanish-American war veterans, Disabled American veterans, American Legion (four posts), Capital No. 9, Salem No. 136, Pioneer No. 149 (all women's) and Kingwood post; Veterans Corps league, Sons of American Revolution and the Sons of Union Veterans.

The third section will have Jack Edwards as commander and James Garwin and Fred Gahlesdorf assisting. In line will be the American War Mothers, Gold Star Mothers, Daughters of the American Revolution, Women's Relief Corps Ladies of the GAR, Daughters of Union Veterans, Auxiliaries of Sons of Union Veterans, Spanish-American War, DAV, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Salem Marine Corps league, American Legion auxiliary and the Navy Mothers.

Wilfred Miller will command the fourth section with Paul Thoreson assisting. Here will be the Parrish Junior high school band, Sea Scouts, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and children from all the Salem schools.

James Beall will command the fifth and last section, which will have as components all civic and fraternal organizations.

Dave Hoss, master of ceremonies, will call for one minute of silence at the opening of the formal program, followed by a firing squad, taps and flag raising.

Rev. Geo. H. Swift, rector of the Episcopal church and chaplain of Capital Post No. 9, will give the invocation. Members of the auxiliary will place wreaths at the monument with Hoss giving a short welcome and introducing Grand Marshal Madison and distinguished guests. Governor McKay will then give his address, the program closing with benediction and remarks by the master of ceremonies.

Several of the various veterans' organizations will have their own activities during the afternoon with Willamette university meeting in Whitman on Sweetland field in a night football game.

West Salem

The preamble notes that the merger was authorized by the people of West Salem July 26, 1949, and by the people of Salem October 14, 1949.

The transfer of the West Salem charter will take place at a joint meeting of the city councils of the two cities in West Salem City hall next Monday night. It will be preceded by a dinner for the two councils and department heads of the two cities. The charter to be surrendered by Mayor Musgrave of West Salem will have on Robert L. Elfstrom to have on his front page the names of its council—Mayor Musgrave and Council Members Chester O. Douglas, C. A. Rust, Earl C. Burk, and A. N. Copenhaver.

Immediately after the ceremonial, and the election of an alderman for the new Ward 8, the Salem council will move to the Salem City hall to finish the meeting.

As a committee of the West Salem council to arrange for the dinner next Monday night Mayor Musgrave appointed Councilmen Heise, chairman, Burk and Copenhaver.

When the merger becomes effective only two of the West Salem officers will lose city employment. They are City Attorney Steve Anderson and City Treasurer Thelma Brown.

The four members of the police force transfer to the Salem force with credit for time served. Chief William Porter's duties will be mainly in the water department. The other officers are Gene Nordone, Ed Callahan and William R. E. Pattison.

City Recorder H. A. Pattison will be in the water department with service in West Salem and an advance in salary of $25 to $250 a month.

Ward Barrett, Sam Brown and Harry Howard will be in the street department.

Not much business was on the table at the last meeting. There were officers' reports and approval of salary payments, and the canvass of the Salem vote approving the merger was read. Chief Porter reported that since the beginning of Mayor Musgrave's administration January 1, 1947, metered water services have increased from 27 per cent of the users to only two short of 100 per cent. Mayor Musgrave noted that in the last year the city millage tax from 35.7 to 19.5.

City Manager J. L. Franzen, City Attorney Chris J. Kowitz, and City Engineer J. H. Davis of Salem attended.

Franzen revealed that material for a 12-inch pipe line to cross the bridge from Salem to West Salem was ordered yesterday. It will supplement the present 8-inch pipe, and will be temporary until a 24-inch main crosses the new bridge when built.

Franzen mentioned the large reservoir of 50,000,000 to 75,000,000 gallons capacity the city hopes to build at Turner hill, and said that in the distant offing is a reservoir on the west side of the river to balance the water distribution. Planned earlier is a 100,000-gallon high level tank for the Kingwood area. The ultimate water service for West Salem will eliminate wells, he said.

Exams for Firemen Are Started Today

In the first of a series of civil service examinations for firemen tests were being held Tuesday for promotion to first aid captain. One vacancy exists and two applicants are taking the tests.

Wednesday an examination will be given, with eight candidates, for placement on the eligible list for fire captain. Part of the examination will be an oral quiz by members of the civil service commission. At present there is no vacancy.

Thirty applicants are on the list for examination Thursday for beginner firemen. Some will be added to the payroll with the manning of the new West Salem station in a few weeks.

Story Hour—Story hour for children will be held at the Salem Public Library Wednesday, starting at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Meeting in Eugene—The 64th annual meeting of the Oregon State Horticultural society will be held in Eugene on November 17-18. Daily sessions will start at 9 a.m. in the Veterans Memorial building, 1626 Willamette street. Oregon State College Horticultural Specialist R. Ralph Clark says that all persons interested in horticultural crops are invited to attend. According to Clark, the morning sessions will be of general interest to those raising and handling horticultural crops. The afternoon program will be divided into fruit and vegetable sections.

Meeting in Eugene—$500,000,000 veterans' bonus.

Kentuckians will elect members of the general assembly and decide on whether to raise the state's $5,000,000 annual pay-limit on public officers.
