

Winter Recreation Areas Get Set for Snow Season

Oregon winter sports activities for the 1949-50 winter and spring season are off to an early, fast-moving start as a result of substantial pre-season snows, the Oregon state highway commission travel information department reported this week.

Abundant, winter-long snow depths are expected for all of the more than 20 snow sports areas to be in operation. Of these, 17 are in Oregon's 13 national forests, with others at Crater Lake national park, on non-federal land at the summit of the Siskiyou mountains and at local points near towns and cities.

Of innovations and improvements, the major projects are centered in Mt. Hood national forest, approximately 60 miles east of Oregon's metropolis of Portland. Here the first aerial tramway in the far west is scheduled for operation this winter, carrying skiers and visitors from Government Camp 3.5 miles, with a lift of 2500 feet, up the slopes of Mt. Hood to Timberline Lodge. The Timberline ski area, above the 6000 foot elevation, reports the installation of a platter-pull lift, 2000 feet long with an 18 per cent average slope. Its location in a sheltered glade assures enjoyable skiing even when unfavorable weather causes curtailment of operations on slopes above the lodge. The mile-long chair-lift covers a vertical rise of 1000 feet and is in operation throughout the year, being popular with sightseers in summer. A 600-foot practice tow is in operation daily for "limbering up" and for the practice of ski fundamentals.

Slopes above Timberline connect with three miles of sheltered trails to Government Camp to offer excellent skiing in all types of weather. Spring and summer skiing is accelerated by a new tow on the Palmer snowfield, about one-half mile above the chair lift. A new three-lane highway from Government Camp to Timberline is scheduled to be ready for winter travel this year.

Timberline Lodge, itself, accommodates 100 guests, supplemented by dormitory accommodations. Ski rentals, ski instructions and a complete sports shop are available during the season. Mid-winter timberline snow is from eight to twenty feet deep, with an average temperature of 24 degrees above zero. Space is available at Timberline for the parking of 700 automobiles.

Multitop ski area south of Government Camp on state highway 50 offers rope tows of 1200 feet with a lift of 500 feet, one of 300 feet with a lift of 50 feet. A, B and C jumping hills are available as well as sporty downhill and slalom terrain.

West of Government Camp, the Tom-Dick ski bowl provides a public ski shelter, chair lift of 3500 feet with a rise of 800 feet, supplemented by two rope tows of 700 and 500 feet in length. The former has a rise of 250 feet, the latter of 100 feet each.

Government Camp offers accommodations at a number of lodges, parking for 2500 cars, and ski club and family cabins on private lands, ski shops, lodges, service stations and other establishments.

Bill Lauderback, Santiam Lodge manager, reports preparations have been completed for a busy snow sports season in his section of the Deschutes national forest. The lodge has an elevation of 4000 feet at the summit of the Santiam highway across the Cascade mountains.

Accommodations for 90 persons include four dormitories and two rooms. The lodge provides beds made up with linen and blankets. Also available for visitors are a dining room, restaurant, ski shop, and rental shop

Junior High Grid Games Slated at Leslie Thursday

Vernon Gilmore, Salem schools athletic director for boys, reminded junior high school gridiron fans Wednesday that two games will be played Thursday.

West Salem will invade the Leslie field at 3:45 p.m. to meet the Golds while the Parrish Greys will meet the Blues on the same field at 6:30 p.m.

The normal schedule calls for Friday games, but in view of the Armistice day holiday, the slate calls for Thursday games this week.

for all types of snow equipment. When skiers are not using a well lighted slope for night skiing, dancing is the order of the evening in the lodge. A rope ski tow is operated near the lodge area.

A short distance from the Santiam Lodge, famous Hoodoo ski bowl figures importantly in the central Oregon snow sports region. In operation at the bowl are four rope tows, handling up to 3000 skiers per hour and ranging in length from 600 to 4000 feet. Rise in elevation ranges up to 4000 feet. A lodge and a chair lift are under construction. The lift is designed to reach the top of Hoodoo Butte, far above the bowl, and is scheduled to be in operation this winter.

The Central Cascade recreational council, composed of representatives of all clubs using the Santiam ski area, cooperates with the U. S. forest service in supervising winter sports activities. As a rule, the council furnishes a free ski school and volunteer ski patrols on week-
