Dec. 12 Deadline Plans Offered UAL Exhibits

The third unit would be a four-lane underpass on Silverton road and a pedestrian underpass at Tile road, total estimate $230,500.

This would make the total cost of the grade elimination project $3,544,500. No financing costs are included in the estimates.

Regrade of the main line would be made from Mission street on the south to Highway 99E on the north. The regrading would be in three units. The first would be between Mission and Marion, a length of about 4100 feet, the second from Center to Madison, also about 4100 feet, and the third from Madison to Highway 99E underpass, about 4700 feet.

The committee recommended that the commission arrange a series of conferences to consider the problem, with the railroad company, the city, the county, the state board of control, state highway commission, a capital planning commission and the Salem planning and zoning commission all participating.

It is recommended that the long-range project be developed and that an agreement be adopted establishing a schedule of prorated costs to be assumed by each interest involved.

For the alternative plan of tunneling under 13th street the overall estimate of cost is $6,119,000, or $5,467,000 for the tunnel job with ventilation, and $651,300 for underpasses at Mission, Madison and Silverton road and a pedestrian underpass at Tile road.

Conference Sought

The committee recommended that the commission arrange a series of conferences to consider the problem, with the railroad company, the city, the county, the state board of control, state highway commission, a capital planning commission and the Salem planning and zoning commission all participating.

It is recommended that the long-range project be developed and that an agreement be adopted establishing a schedule of prorated costs to be assumed by each interest involved.

Roy Davenport also has original sketches, particularly three pen sketches by Homer Davenport, one of a cowboy on a bucking horse, one, his own portrait, and one of the cartoonist's father, Tim Davenport. These sketches are 18 by 24 inches and are well preserved.

A box of several dozen slides in color and black-and-white which the cartoonist secured during his visitation in Arabia when he returned with the herd of Arabian horses, are in the possession of Roy Davenport, a gift from a friend of the family. With these slides the famous man at one time toured the country, gave addresses and illustrated his talks with the pictures.

Brought to mind by the slide picture of a handsome Arabian boy in native costume was the story that when the cartoonist was leaving Arabia for America, the ruler asked him to accept as a gift, a Bedouin slave boy, Sied Abbadallah, care taker of the most famous war mare in the world at that time, named Waduda. This boy lived with the cartoonist's family in the east and also visited with them on the Davenport farm near Silverton. He is believed to be still living in New York.

Homer Davenport told his relatives a real "sob story" of this handsome lad. The boy felt at first that he wanted to remain in America always. Then came a time when he was homesick for his native land. He showed definite signs of having been in tears all night, when he met Davenport one morning. He said that he must, himself, make the decision. Taking his prayer rug and his famous charge, the mare, to a mountainside, he prayed. He related that his answer to this petition was for him to remain in America. This he did, and if reports are true, is still living.

One of the herd's famous stallions, Hale's skeleton, is in the Smithsonian Institute, Washington, and has been there for many years. The Roy Davenports have visited the Institute not many years ago.

Silverton old timers are becoming more interested in the values of the Homer Davenport memories and are guarding jealously any originals, especially of the cartoonist whose grave is in the Silverton cemetery, marked by a heavy gray marble stone.

Lewis Orders

This announcement was made by Lewis in a prepared statement. He told reporters beforehand that he would not enlarge on his statement.

Blames Operators

The statement said that Lewis' policy committee "concur and gives its full approval to the policies and procedures followed by its accredited representatives" during the strike.

The statement asserted "the committee regrets with all other Americans the delay in the execution of a new agreement for the industry and deplors such public inconvenience that has resulted therefrom."

Lewis charged that the coal operators "have been arrogant and brutal in the withholding of their assent," he said the committee "emphasizes the fact that the associated coal operators have continuously declined throughout all conferences, in whatever a rea to concede the right of the mine workers to have an honorable and adequate wage contract."

The back to work order was the most sweeping reversal of the union's traditional "no contract no work" policy to date. The first step in this direction was taken last summer when the miners were permitted to work three days a week after expiration of their contract.

Lewis declared the operators "have expended vast sums in public advertisements and otherwise in the publication and dissemination of untruths and oppressive statements."

He said "they have conspired to cripple and destroy the mine workers' welfare fund by resort to lying and deceitful stratagems."

The mine chief's statement said further:

"They have stooped to defame and belittle the contribution of the mine workers to the national economy; they have engaged in reprehensible and clandestine intrigue with financial and political opponents of honest American labor;

"They have concealed and decry enormous profits in the mining and distribution of coal, the total of which is derived from the purse of the American consumer;

"They have alleged falsely that the labor cost of producing coal is responsible for the high destination price paid by the consumer; they have degraded themselves in their attempts to brutalize the American coal miner;

"They have shamed the precepts of morality by casting aside every restraint to their sordid and mercenary appetites;

"They have forfeited the good will and respect of every American whose bread is earned by the sweat of his brow, and should forfeit the good will and respect of every citizen who believes that the rights of human beings transcend and are prior to the mercenary acts and the motives of those who would browbeat and exploit merely to aggrandize their wealth and power."

Military Men and Veterans

Thursday, November 10 Organized Naval Reserve surface unit at the Naval and Marine corps reserved training center. Company G, 162nd Infantry regiment, Oregon National Guard at Salem armory.

Austria, in 1948, had 69,000 marriages, 119,000 births and 82,000 deaths. The only figure to decrease since 1937 was deaths.

Salem Schools Crowded; New Class Rooms Needed

The Salem school system continues to have growing pains and additional class rooms will be a necessity within the near future. The directors and Superintendent Frank B. Bennett discussed the situation in an informal manner during Tuesday night's regular meeting.

It is estimated that an additional 250 pupils will be enrolled next fall. A part of this growth can be accommodated in present facilities, but plant expansion plans must be considered without too much delay, it was pointed out.

A conference to consider possible school consolidations within the county has been called by Mrs. Agnes Booth, county school superintendent. No date has been set but it will probably be held within the month. Mrs. Booth asks that representatives of the various schools be present to learn of the situation as it exists. Salem will be represented although Supt. Bennett pointed out that this district had just about reached the extent of its growth for the present.

Grechen Kreamer music supervisor of the elementary schools, seriously ill for a number of weeks, is expected to return to her desk at Parrish following the Christmas holidays on a part time basis at least. In the meantime Art Dimond, Willamette student, is handling a portion of her work.

The board authorized the use of the West Salem schools by the Red Cross in time of disaster after Dr. O. A. Olson had explained the reasons back of the request.

Notification of the annual meeting in Eugene of the Oregon School Boards association, December 3, and it is probable one or two Salem directors will attend.

Superintendent Bennett was authorized to attend the national meeting of school administrators to be held in Atlantic City, N. J. next February.

Dinner Planned For Sen. Morse

Senator Wayne Morse will be honor guest at an informal dinner at the Senator hotel Thursday at 6:15 p. m. The affair is being arranged by Sam Hall, president of the Marion county young republican club.

Following the dinner Senator Morse will speak in Waller hall on Willamette University campus at 8 p. m. in his first public appearance in the county since his return from Washington. In Portland the senator said he was "reporting to the people of the state and not campaigning."

Big 3 Survey

There were indications that British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin raised the question of China and that French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman brought up the problem of French Indochina, on China's border. Bevin has been reported planning to tell the French and Americans Britain wants to recognize China's communist government.

Agenda Set Up

Schuman told reporters: "This morning we set up our agenda. We will talk about Germany and other things. Certainly about China." He added he expected the conference would end tomorrow night.

Bevin, Schuman and U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson scheduled a second meeting for late afternoon, to take up proposals received from Konrad Adenauer, chancellor of the West German government.

Acheson "still would like to go to Germany before returning to the United States, but nothing has been decided yet." John J. McCloy, American high commissioner for Germany, told reporters.

McCloy is here to sit in on the talks charting Germany's role in an economically unified Europe party slate. To frost their cake, they elected mayors in Syracuse and Binghamton, N. Y., which had been republican strong points.

Mr. Truman got the good news last night at a banquet tendered by the Women's National Democratic club.

A Million Dollars a Day FREE SERVICE TO THE PUBLIC

Do you know of any great group of educators, lawyers, brokers, merchants, insurance men, bankers, salesmen — who, year in and year out, day after day and night after night, give of their time, talent, energy and money to the extent of more than a million dollars per day?

At the present time, even in spite of exigencies of the times, the ethical physician members of the American Medical Association are rendering more than a million dollars a day of free service to the public.

That million dollars a day is a most conservative estimate of the services rendered by the Doctors of America in free clinics, hospitals, in homes and at their offices in patients unable to pay. This huge sum does not include the bills left on the books of physicians, by those who can and should pay.

The next time you hear someone boasting Doctors for this, that and the other, remember this service that goes on every minute of the day and night. The Medical profession is dedicated to the building and saving of man, has behind it the tradition of service to those who suffer, and the path of Medicine and scientific advancement is strewn with 24-hour duty martyrs.

There are exceptions, of course, as in all professions — but the spirit of these 24-hour martyrs, their principles, teachings and examples live in the hearts of all worthy physicians.
