Thanksgiving Feast Will Cost the Old Boy Less Now

(By United Press) Pop can sit down and enjoy his Thanksgiving feast this year with the knowledge that it's costing him considerably less than in recent years. A United Press survey showed today that the cost of a Thanksgiving dinner for four, including a 10-pound turkey, will be almost $1.50 cheaper than last year.

Table with 2 columns: Item, Price. Includes Turkey, Sweet potatoes, Cranberries, Celery, Apples, etc.

Such a meal last year cost $9.57, the survey showed. This year he can be grateful on Thanksgiving day for only having to shell out $8.16 to provide the traditional meal for the wife and kids. In the survey, prices were checked for this year against 1948 on ingredients for a menu consisting of a 10-pound turkey, two pounds of sweet potatoes, a can of cranberries, two bunches of celery, a can of asparagus, a loaf of white bread, a pound of assorted nuts, a pound of table grapes and a can of pumpkin pie. The prices compared as follows:

Two Workmen Die In Baltimore Cave-In

Baltimore, Nov. 15 (AP)—Two workmen, digging a water tunnel 300 feet underground, were killed Monday when a cave-in buried them under several tons of dirt and rock. Cpl. C. J. Eckenrode of the Baltimore county police identified the victims as Theodore R. Winstead and Nathaniel G. Hicks, both Baltimoreans. Eckenrode said the two men, who had reported on the job at midnight, were working at the head of the tunnel, about two miles from the nearest shaft.

Women Need Falsies, Miami Girls Contend

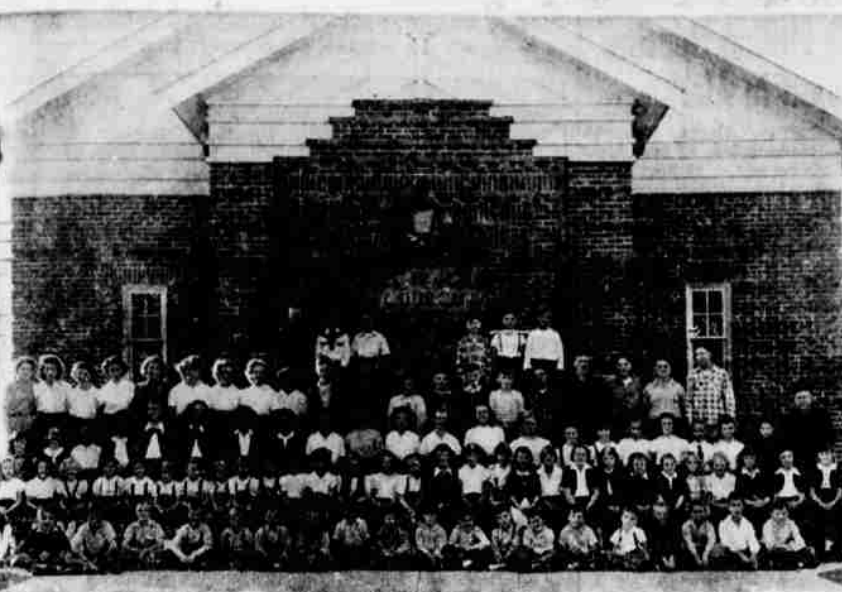

Miami, Fla. (AP)—Falsies are firmly entrenched with the American female and are here to stay, a survey in Miami would indicate. Most of the girls questioned by the Miami Herald admitted they bolster their bosoms with sponge rubber or something similar. And despite the "tuttuts" from Hollywood's recently formed Anti-Falsie League, they intend to keep on doing so. "A woman has as much right to pad her front as a man has to pad his shoulders," Roberta Korb of a modeling agency said. "Many a woman has been disappointed when her man takes his coat off."

Marion Johnson of another modeling agency called the bosom-bolsters "wonderful things... they've saved many situations." The last word came from Alma Anderson who said "if a woman wears a girdle to pull herself in, why can't she wear something to push herself out?"

Silverton—For such groups as these, Father John J. Walsh of St. Paul's Catholic pastorate, has gone all out in the seeming impossible for a parish, small in numbers, in building a beautiful house of worship, and the completion of the new school building in brick facing to be financed by the annual bazaar and fall festival under direction of St. Monica's Altar society of women workers, Sunday, November 20, at the school dining room and parish hall.

Gandhi Slayers Die on Gallows

Ambala, India, Nov. 15 (AP)—The assassin of Mohandas K. Gandhi and a fellow conspirator were hanged in dank Ambala prison today, defending to the end their murder of the man millions of Hindus call a saint. Nathuram Vinayak, 25-year-old high caste Brahmin, died unrepentant on the gallows in the central jail compound at 8:06 a.m., for pumping four bullets into Gandhi at Birla House, New Delhi, January 30, 1948. With him was hanged Narayan Dattatrya Apte, who was convicted of conspiring with Godse to assassinate the Hindu apostle of non-violence. They said they decided to kill Gandhi because he consented to the carving out of a Moslem state—Pakistan—from India. Both extreme nationalists, they advocated a Hindu India which would suppress western culture, declare war on Pakistan and subject India's Moslems to Hindu rule.

Silverton Parish Concludes Campaign with Huge Dinner

Silverton—Turkey for around 800 persons will be served at the St. Paul Catholic parish dinner here Sunday, marking the close of a "brick" drive to raise funds to finish the exterior of the new parish school. A festival will be held in connection with the dinner. Credit for the erection of a church and school goes to Father John J. Walsh, parish priest. The drive last year netted $38,000 in cash, material and labor with the drive this year providing $12,000 for the brickwork. The new church seats 360 and utilized an army chapel in its construction which was completed in March 1948. The building is 135 by 65 feet with the architect's estimate of cost put at $180,000. So far nearly $79,000 have been spent with the brick work and tile flooring remaining unfinished. Four Camp Adair buildings were purchased at a relatively low cost and much material and labor donated. The old building was demolished during the first two weeks in June 1948 and excavation for the new school begun late that month. Classes were held temporarily in the parish hall and the new school was first used in November 1948. Besides the school, which has a full basement, the building houses a 16-room convent for teaching sisters.

During the past summer a cement parking lot was added and it is planned to use this as a tennis and volleyball court. Mrs. John Pfeiffer, president of Saint Monica's Altar Society, is general chairman of festival activities and dinner arrangements. She has made the following committee appointments: Variety Show, Mrs. Nellie Amundson, Mrs. Robert Martin; Sewing, Mrs. B. Tegland, Mrs. Ray Davis, Mrs. Henry Wellman, Mrs. Gregory Belline, Mrs. G. W. Enalish, Mrs.

Ex-Diplomat-Turned-Tailor Sees Revolution in Men's Dress

New York (AP)—Tony Williams, a gray-haired, ex-diplomat who turned tailor to the social (male) register, thinks a revolution is coming. "I mean," said Williams, whose suits sell for between $200 and $300, "a revolution in men's clothing for the masses. In five years men will wear suits which have no coats, something along the lines of a slack suit, yet containing the sleekness and formality of the shirt and trouser uniform of army officers. Williams' customers, of course, will go on paying their $200-$300 for his suits, but he thinks the assembly line clothing manufacturers today make suits lacking in imagination, appeal, design and durability. That is the great advantage in buying custom tailored clothes, Williams said. If you can afford them, of course. "There's nothing distinctive in what the average man wears today," Williams said. "One suit looks much the same as the next one. Men's clothes ought to be strikingly colored, like women's." In five years, he predicted, the men will rival the women for flashy styles and eye-catching colors. That, if it happens, will be no threat to Williams' $500,000 a year business as a custom tailor. Since 1933 when Williams, a Princeton graduate, quit the diplomatic service, he has been selling super expensive clothes to big shots in all walks of life, from captains of industry to playboys. He knows most of them by their first names; in fact, he spends little time in his tailoring establishment in a Fifth Avenue skyscraper. Instead, he usually can be found at the town's swankier places, showing off his clothes in a distinctly subtle fashion. "I'm my own best advertisement," Williams explained. "I can't advertise because of a necessarily limited market. Men notice my clothes and unlike a woman who sees another woman wearing the same thing, become interested and bingo—chances are I've made a sale." Williams wears his clothes well. Of 60-odd suits, his favorites are blue serge and gray flannel. He has 12 of each, and about a dozen coats of various styles. Because he is a clothes horse, Williams said, he can spot what he considers to be an improperly
