Stayton High Plans Carnival

Stayton—Stayton high school will stage its annual carnival Friday and Saturday with a lively program planned. The affair was originally planned for the school gym which was destroyed by fire October 26.

Student body funds have been sadly depleted by the gym fire and everybody is getting behind the carnival to make it a success financially.

Each class has selected a princess and a queen will be selected from the four princesses to rule over the carnival. The junior class sold tickets for a recent show at the Star theater with a percentage of the take to go to the class princess fund. Senior and sophomores are selling Christmas cards and will have other projects to boost the fund.

Each princess will be given a parade downtown with the band as an escort. The senior class had their parade Monday, the juniors Tuesday, sophomores Wednesday and the freshmen Thursday.

Modern Sermons Too Lofty Says Bishop

Portland, Ore., Nov. 16 (AP)—Methodist Bishop Gerald H. Kennedy today said pastors themselves were to blame for poor church attendance because their sermons were too lofty.

"The great weakness in modern preaching," Bishop Kennedy told his pastors, "is it answers questions nobody is asking."

Pastors Themselves Blamed For Empty Pews in Churches

Portland, Ore., Nov. 16 (AP)—Pastors have nobody to blame but themselves for the empty pews in their churches on Sundays, Methodist Bishop Gerald H. Kennedy said today.

Bishop Kennedy told his pastors: "The great weakness in modern preaching is that it answers questions nobody is asking. It deals in generalities instead of being concrete."

"It urges the attainment of virtue in general instead of being precise."

"It talks about Russia but not about a man's neighborhood."

"So often it has little to say concerning the real problems that are troubling the man in the congregation."

Langlie Warns Of Bankruptcy

Spokane, Nov. 16 (AP)—Gov. Arthur B. Langlie last night warned the state that its government was going bankrupt and the only way out was a "determined hold-the-line effort in every phase of state government."

He practically assured the state's citizens he would call no special session to increase their tax load.

The governor said the state's liberalized social security law, initiative 172 passed by the voters last year, was the state's major problem and "the world's number one issue."

The governor spoke before a large gathering of Spokane Valley citizens. His speech was broadcast over two radio stations, one in Spokane and one in Seattle.

Langlie said the state's financial dilemma resulted from a combination of things:

1. If social security spending were to be maintained in full force through the biennium, the legislature's $206,000,000 appropriation would be $30,000,000 too small.
2. Disregarding the extra cost of public assistance, the legislature failed by $60,000,000 to provide enough revenue for its own appropriations.
3. Revenue actually being collected during the biennium was falling short of the income anticipated by the legislature.

Langlie said the solution to this "difficult and thorny" problem did not lie in increased taxes. He said it was "too late" to talk about more taxes now.

F. W. Wilson Funeral Today

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at the Virgil T. Golden mortuary for Frank Walter Wilson, resident of the Salem area since 1905, who died at a local hospital Monday. Interment followed at Belcrest Memorial park.

Wilson, who came to Salem from Port Orchard, Wash., where he settled when he came to the west coast in 1899, was born in Iowa May 30, 1868. In that state he was married to Nettie Lansing, who died three weeks ago.

Wilson had lived on his farm on route 8, Salem since coming to Salem. He was a member of the Grange and of the Farmers' Union.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. D. M. Eby and Mrs. G. E. Smith of Salem, Mrs. Blanche Yates of Portland; three sons, Wilfred and Ralph Wilson of Salem and Fred Wilson of Port Orchard, Wash.; three sisters, Mrs. Jennie Newman and Mrs. Minnie Anderson in Iowa and Mrs. Lydia Craig of Naches, Wash.; a brother, William Wilson in Missouri; 18 grandchildren and 11 great grandchildren.

Voting Machines Urged

Portland, Nov. 16 (AP)—County Commissioner Gene Rossman, democrat, suggested a citizens advisory committee be named to study possible use of voting machines here. Rossman said he was pleased that Secretary of State Earl T. Newby had indicated his interest in the subject. Editors and publishers of Associated Press newspapers in Oregon had suggested ballot changes and modern tabulating machinery last week-end.
