The Bull That Would Be a Pony

South Thomaston, Me., Nov. 17 (AP)—Marianne Lufkin, 12, couldn't have a pony so she settled for a bull calf. Ferdinand does more than sit and smell flowers. He carries Marianne to school and back. Marianne has taught the six months old bull to obey—most of the time. Riding astride a saddle made from an old belt, some burlap and a blanket, she steers with rope reins. Ladie, her collie dog, trots along behind. If the reins and switch don't convince Ferdie to mind his business, the dog's barking usually does.

Sears, the former owner, bought the Salk creek farm in 1880, the house was on it, so it must have been quite old.
