Change Rule On Tax Extensions

The state tax commission announced today it is going to require partial payment of taxes when extensions of time are granted for payment of corporation and personal income taxes. The deadline for filing returns is April 15. Under the old system, if you got an extension of time, all you had to pay was interest.

Now, if you get an extension up to three months, you will have to pay at least 25 percent of your tax. And if the extension is from three to six months, you'll have to pay half of the tax. These partial payments will be due at the time the extension is granted.

No extensions of more than six months will be given.

USO Meeting At Salt Lake

Robert R. Boardman, director for the USO in Oregon, and Lt. Col. Mark Hillary, USA, retired, who represents Gov. Douglas McKay, left Salem Wednesday for Salt Lake City to attend a western area USO meeting.

The meeting, called at the request of Defense Secretary Louis Johnson, is the first of five such regional conferences and is slated to open Friday. Speaker at the session will be Navy Secretary Francis Matthews.

During the conference leaders of the USO will confer with military authorities relative to establishment of service councils on a state and local basis and concerning increased cooperation in defense matters. Also in attendance at the meeting will be Brig. Gen. R. A. McClure who commands the northern sub-area of Sixth army with headquarters at Vancouver barracks.

The session was called after Attorney General George Neuner said the committee lacks authority to hire an expert in the elementary school field to make the study. He suggested the committee undertake the survey itself.

The legislative-appointed committee had planned to employ Dr. Thomas A. Holy, Ohio State University, for the work.

Toastmasters Entertain Lions

With Ralph Nohlgren presiding as master of ceremonies, four members of the Salem Toastmasters club provided humorous and serious entertainment for members of the Salem Lions club during their luncheon Thursday noon.

Before introducing the speakers, Nohlgren spoke of the toastmasters organization of 700 clubs over the nation. Three of them are located in Salem. He pointed out that although speech is the human being's most used function, it is given less consideration than the others.

An accomplished speaker, Nohlgren declared, is well fitted to carry out his life's ambition regardless of what it may be. The speakers during the luncheon and their subjects were: Dr. Ralph Gordon, "There's Nothing Wrong"; Ed Boyce, a Labish farmer, "Helpful Hints"; Morris Buckston, a paint salesman, "Doddering," and George Moorhead, Oregon Pulp and Paper employe, "A Tombstone for Butch."

The Lions club will not meet again until December 1.

School Survey to Be Discussed

A grade school advisory committee is scheduled to meet tomorrow with the state board of education to discuss a planned survey.

The session was called after Attorney General George Neuner said the committee lacks authority to hire an expert in the elementary school field to make the study. He suggested the committee undertake the survey itself.

The legislative-appointed committee had planned to employ Dr. Thomas A. Holy, Ohio State University, for the work.

Gatch Stresses Reserves Need

Reserves of the Armed Forces are necessary and there is a place for them. That is what reservists of all branches of the armed forces learned from Vice Adm. Thomas L. Gatch, USN, retired, Wednesday night.

Gatch, veteran of many years' duty with the navy, spoke to a combined gathering at a meeting held at the naval and marine corps reserve training center with the navy's aviation volunteer unit here as host unit.

The admiral, who made it clear that he is not concerned about immediate war, urged the reservists to keep plugging on their training and program. He pointed out the necessity of a reserve reminding the men that the little groups scattered about the country would form a sizeable group if brought together in case of an emergency.

Reservists in the older age group were reminded by Gatch that they, too, had a function, that of drawing younger men into the organization and aiding in their training.

2 Out of 8 Held

Terrie Conway, one of the seven cabbies involved in the case, was the first to be led before Judge Felton. He pleaded innocent to the charge and a hearing was set for Nov. 21.

Conway was the only one of the men who had not signed a confession of police.

The second, another taxi driver, was Troy Crabtree. He also pleaded innocent, and a hearing was set for the same day as the Conway case.

The others, led off by Richard Roy (Dickie) Dick) Carter, a used car dealer on South 12th street, either waived preliminary examination or were given a 24-hour continuation.

Those who waived further district court action and who will be held for the grand jury, in addition to Carter, were: Johnnie Hoffert, Al Coulson, and Maurice Murdock, all cab drivers.

The only soldier involved in the rape charges—Glen Whitesides, asked for a continuation to enable him to secure an attorney as did Meyers Rogow.

Wednesday afternoon, Don Clark, taxi owner and driver, waived preliminary examination on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor. He was released on $1000 bail.

The men are aged from 21 to 30. Meanwhile, detectives were endeavoring to locate a tenth man wanted on a charge of rape in the same case. And it was considered possible that additional warrants might be issued.

Forensic Squad Off To Palo Alto, Cal.

Dr. James W. Kirkwood, head of the speech department of Willamette university; Frank Lock Gunn of Monmouth, members of the forensic squad, will leave on the Cascade Thursday evening for Palo Alto, Calif., for participation in the coast forensic conference.

The students will team up for debate and as individuals will take part in extemporaneous speaking, oratory, impromptu and experimental work.

The trio plans to witness the California-Stanford football game and will return to the local campus by Thanksgiving day.

Exec Named—Lt. Ernest Eldridge, commander of the Salem naval associate volunteer unit aviation, Thursday announced the appointment of Lt. (jg) Ernest A. Sharp as executive officer for the unit. Sharp, who resides at Jefferson, Oregon, was a lighter than air (blimp) pilot when in the service.

Rush Order At Hatchery

The most modern fish hatchery in the northwest is being rushed to completion at Marion Forks on the North Santiam river.

This fish hatchery is being constructed by the army engineers under a contract awarded to the Gaaland Construction company of Bellingham, Wash., at a cost of $30,662.

In this hatchery with 48 circular rearing pools and 16 rectangular basins, together with the hatchery plant itself, salmon will be raised to overcome losses resulting from construction of the Detroit dam.

Included in the project, to be completed February 10, are three dwellings for the hatchery superintendent and staff.

Legion Plans to Aid Blood Bank

The state organization of the American Legion has a project to build up interest in the blood program in Oregon, it was announced at a regional meeting in Portland Wednesday for Red Cross officials.

Fred Thompson as blood program chairman for the Legion department of Oregon talked to the group about the Legion plans and stated William Habernicht is chairman for this project in Capital post No. 9, Salem.

Milton L. Meyers, Marion county blood program chairman; Col. Philip W. Allison, donor recruitment chairman here; and Miss Susan Faherty, Red Cross chapter manager here, were the three local Red Cross people attending the meeting.

Marion county to date has used two more pints of blood than it has turned in, it was announced at the meeting. The conference report showed 1001 pints used in Marion county since the start of the blood program last March. However, the report did not include the 120 pints donated in Marion county at the November visitation of the mobile unit.

Marion county people in hospitals in Portland will be supplied with the Red Cross blood available if it is known they are patients there, the local committee was told.

Marion county is to have 12 visitations of the mobile unit in the six months period between January and June, it was announced.

Delegates Named to Attend State Employes Convention

Opening in Portland Friday for a three-day session will be the seventh annual convention of the Oregon State Employes' association, an independent organization representing Oregon's 12,000 state employes.

The meeting, to be held at the Multnomah hotel, will be attended by over 100 delegates representing 48 OSEA chapters in the state.

In addition to determining the organization's policies for the coming year the group will also consider retirement and insurance problems, efficiency of service and grievances against the administration of civil service.

Under retirement and insurance problems, consideration will be given to liberalizing pensions and benefits under the state retirement act and the furnishing of better life insurance, health, accident and sickness protection to state employes.

The OSEA points out that the present group life insurance coverage, which is the lowest in cost of all in the state, is now limited in its acceptance due to the fact that certain state agencies refuse to recognize it for payroll deductions of premiums.

In considering efficiency of service the delegates will be asked for suggestions on ways and means of improving the public service. Resolutions to be presented before the convention call for an examination of the actions and attitudes of state agency administrators and commissions, as well as those of employes, to determine a better basis of mutual working relations in the public interests.

Grievances against the administration of civil service slated to be aired before the convention are: discrimination in employment and discharge of employes; unsanitary and unhealthful working conditions; poor practices in allowance for required overtime work; inequities of vacation leaves, plus other subjects affecting the morale of employes and hindering their ability to furnish good service to the state.

Salem chapters' delegates to the convention are Floyd Query and Edwin Pease, Salem; E. A. Bamford and Lois R. Manning, Marion; Paul Gemmill and James Banks, Capital chapter; R. W. Southwick and Virginia Nowlen, SIAC; Gordon Shattuck and J. D. Wilson, Oregon chapter; E. A. Austin (alternate), library chapter; Clayton Bjork, forestry; William J. Ingram, agriculture; M. F. Crub, evergreen; Margaret Maddox, MVSU; Joe Stirnman and Joseph Griffin, shop and field; and M. L. Ingram, deer park.

The third remedial measure ordered by the board is the provision of a full-time chaplain as early as possible, with the appointee fitted for the task of counseling prisoners as well as conducting regular religious services in the penitentiary.

Reorganization and reclassification of certain supervisory guard positions, and holding each captain in charge strictly responsible for his individual acts and those of his assistants; and redesigning and providing uniforms for all guards on duty without cost to the employe are ordered.

It is known that delay in making the report was a difference of opinion among the board members over the guard situation. One member of the board held out for the outright discharge of Babson whom he alleged had mishandled prisoners. Other members of the board agreed that this guard should be removed from direct contact with prisoners and a compromise was reached when it was agreed that Babson would be assigned a turnkey job removed from the prison cells.

The board also ordered that Warden George Alexander, whom the board members said occurred in the recommendations contained in the report, appear before the board monthly and give a detail of the operation and maintenance of the prison. The warden will also be asked to make suggestions from time to time as to means of improvement of existing conditions.

George Neuner, attorney general, directed the investigation. "We are not unmindful" that for several years last past conditions at the penitentiary have been subject to public criticism.

Construction Causes Unrest
"The increase of the prison population during such time has overtaxed all of its facilities and the lack of finances has curtailed operations."

"During the past year the building construction program now in progress has added to unrest of prisoners and the overcrowded conditions of the institution has not produced ideal results nor conditions beneficial to the inmates nor such as the state of Oregon should require and maintain."

"However, the board of control is striving to do its best under difficult circumstances and will continue its investigation, not only at the penitentiary but at all other state institutions under its direction, and will report from time to time and confide in the public the exact conditions existing in each of such institutions."

The report was made jointly by the three members of the board of control, Governor Douglas McKay, Secretary of State Earl T. Newby and State Treasurer Walter Pearson.

B-29's Collide

"It is very difficult to tell," he said, "whether they are parts of the three known dead or remains of the other members of the crew."

One man from the McDonald island bomber parachuted to safety. He was identified as Lt. Warren Sherrick.

The other B-29 crashed across the river three miles away on the Rindge tract and buried itself 20 feet into the slimy delta mud.

Undersheriff Michael N. Canlis of the San Joaquin county sheriff's office said seven bodies had been counted in the Rindge tract crash. Rescuers could not search the wreckage immediately because the plane and the area around it was covered with high-octane gasoline and the fire hazard was considered too great to permit a close inspection.

Parachute to Safety

Three airmen parachuted from the Rindge tract B-29. They were identified as Pfc. Keith R. Burns, 19, Boise, Ida., a radio operator; Tech. Sgt. Frank D. Schmidt, Spokane, flight engineer, and Staff Sgt. Robert S. Kluge, Spokane, a gunner.

They were treated at Stockton emergency hospital for minor injuries and shock and then transferred to Fairfield-Suisun AAB.

None of the survivors could tell a coherent story of what caused the big four-engine Superfortresses to smash into each other. One of the survivors, Lt. Sherrick, told a woman who dpressed his wounds that "maybe he and another plane got mixed up."

The ill-fated bombers were part of a formation of 13 planes from the 92nd bomb group, 325th squadron, Spokane, Wash., air base. They were on a routine training mission involving a "round-robin" reconnaissance flight from Washington to San Francisco, Sacramento, Stockton, Ogden and back to Spokane.

The other 11 planes returned to their base safely. Spokane said a board of inquiry composed of five officers, headed by Lt. Col. McLeyle Zumwalt, would leave for the wreck scene as soon as the weather permitted.

Spokane said one of the bombers carried a crew of 10 while 11 men were aboard the other
