low cereal had gains extending to 2 cents at times. Deferred contracts scored new seasonal highs.

Strength of corn was tied in with export demand for this grain. It was reflected also in the spot market where No. 2 yellow corn sold at a discount of 2 to 2½ cents compared with the December delivery. Yesterday the discount was 3 to 3½ cents.

Other grains mostly followed the leadership of corn. Some inflationary sentiment appeared to be present in the pits. Dealings became quite active toward the close as the demand met selling orders from traders evening up for the weekend holiday.
