

Hogg Judge at Chicago Show

Ronald V. Hogg, Route 8, Salem, is leaving Wednesday for Chicago where he will judge Hampshire sheep at the International Livestock Exposition, America's largest livestock show.

He was one of the sheep judges at this year's Pacific International Livestock Exposition in Portland and has acted as judge at two Oregon State Fairs.

Since graduating from Oregon State college in 1923 he has been flockmaster of the R. W. Hogg & Sons sheep, one of the noted Hampshire flocks in the U. S. At the San Francisco Exposition in 1939 the Hogg flock won the coveted Silver Plate awarded to the champion pen of nine Hampshire ram lambs.

For the past 10 years Hogg has been on the board of directors of the American Hampshire Sheep association and last year served as president of the Oregon Purebred Sheepbreeders association.

Accompanying him on the trip will be Kenneth McCrae, Dorset sheep breeder of Monmouth, and Charles Buffim, sheepman of Junction City.

TOYS ARE TOOLS OF PLAY

Right Toys for Children Found In Age and Growth of Child

This Christmas, give your child "not one great slather of carelessly bought toys but a balanced diet of adequate tools of play," urges Laird S. Goldsborough in a Report to Consumers in the December Reader's Digest.

"The adult achieves by an activity called work; the child is constantly achieving and growing by an activity called play," Goldsborough says.

"Toys are the tools of play. It is not what the toy does or how much it costs that counts, but what the child does creatively with the toy."

Mechanical toys, for instance, are fine for older children but not for very young ones, according to child specialists. "All the play is in the toy," they state, "whereas it should be in the child."

Recommended for infants are plastic rattles (some are easy on adult ears), water toys such as celluloid ducks and fish, and a new and popular item called "Baby See"—a round, unbreakable mirror set in a washable, chewable frame.

Color is important for the infant ages and for children up to two years old. Bright red and vivid yellow are better than "baby blue" or "baby pink."

Good for one- to two-year-olds are wooden floor trains (without wheels), large beads strung on heavy string, any soft cuddly toy such as the Teddy Bear and toys making jingles and rhythmic sounds.

The physical and mental vigor of the two- to four-year group call for trucks, wagons and simple puzzles. At this age, boys as well as girls may be encouraged to play with dolls, the author

Henry Jaquet Shows Winter Crater Picture

One of the interesting persons in Marion county is Henry Jaquet, Silverton farmer, who follows art painting as a hobby.

Mr. Jaquet, 81 years old now, has painted numerous pictures of Oregon scenery. His latest is a winter scene of Crater Lake.

Another interesting thing about Mr. Jaquet is that practically every brick in Salem's City hall went through his hands when the building was under construction 56 years ago. He was employed in the brick yard near the penitentiary where the brick were being made, and personally handled thousands of them every day.
