GLAMOUR FADES IN TIME

This Sultry Movie Siren Sells Brake Linings on the Side

By PATRICIA CLARY

Hollywood (U.P.)—Jacqueline Dalya, who has the big brown eyes of Gene Tierney and the voluptuousness of Maria Montez, says a girl can't rely on glamour alone.

Miss Dalya still plays the sultry, come-hither siren of movies. And as insurance against the day when nobody wants to see her pictures, she's sales manager of a California auto parts manufacturing company with a staff of 20 working for her.

"I've pushed sales up 22 per cent in the last four months," Miss Dalya said, releasing Victor Mature from a movie embrace.

"I believe we can increase business by two per cent a month for the rest of the year."

"I gave up pictures for several months to attend strictly to business. Then I suggested to the president that I just be sales manager between pictures. He said I'd been doing so well that he didn't mind at all."

"What more can a girl ask for? I have Vic Mature and a business on the side."

Miss Dalya gets Mature — when Betty Grable isn't looking — in 20th Century-Fox's "Wash Avenue."

"We played a caveman and cavewoman," she said. "He didn't recognize me with clothes on."

Glamour is a pretty unreliable commodity anyway, Miss Dalya believes.

"It's all right," she shrugged, "but there's a lot on the market, and it's going to fade in time. I think every girl should marry, first of all, have children, and then get into a business that will secure her future no matter what happens."

Just in case Miss Dalya's glamour and her brake linings fail her, she has a third ace up her sleeve. She writes popular songs, and two of them are now on the market.

Buttons Reappear as Hutterite Sect Eases Up on Austerity

New York (U.P.)—The Hutterians, a sect of religious communists, are gradually absorbing American ways, according to Dr. Marcus Bach, professor of religion at the University of Iowa.

Buttons, forbidden as a rebuke to German militarists during the Thirty Years War, are finally appearing on Hutterite clothing. Milking machines are making the lives of the women easier.

Although all personal possessions and all luxuries are forbidden, elders in a South Dakota commune which Bach visited were discussing the possibility of buying a station wagon, and the influence of the outside world on the group is growing.

The Hutterians, who came to America in 1874 and have eight colonies in South Dakota, two in Montana and about 30 in Canada, boast of their high moral code: no divorces and no Hutterians ever in jail, except two pacifists in World War I.

The two were young men of the Bon Homme Colony in South Dakota who died in Leavenworth prison. They refused to shave off their beards, grown by all Hutterite married men, and went naked rather than put on prison garb.

When they died they were shipped back to the colony dressed in prison clothes. The Hutterite fathers sent the clothes back to Leavenworth and buried their sons in the traditional hook-and-eye homespun. The unmarked graves of these two men are in the Rockport, S. D., colony.

Things were different during World War II. "America," said the Hutterians, "marvelously respected our rights."

Dr. Bach, one of the few "outsiders" who have been allowed to penetrate the isolated Hutterite colonies, reports that he asked the boss of a colony what he would have to do to become a Hutterian.

The man answered, "That's simple. You just give up everything you own and we put it in the colony treasury. You find work you like, dress as we do and become one of us."

When Dr. Bach asked him whether that meant giving up his wrist watch and his car, the boss answered, "Why not? What do you want, with a watch? We've got the colony bell. And what do you want with a car? You're not going anywhere."

The U. S. Public Health Service has granted Wayne University $19,365 to find out why the Hutterites are so well adjusted to their environment.

Dr. Bach commented, "When they tell me that the Hutterians have found Utopia I think about the time I took one of the colony overseers with me on a car ride."

"When the gate closed behind us and we were on the open road the bearded man said, 'You know what would go good on a morning like this? An ice cream cone.'"

A few miles later he spoke again. "You know what I have never tasted? A malted milk. We had malted milks, and were still 70 miles from our destination. We had pretzel sticks and candy bars and lots of other stuff that loosened up life for the old man. He was out of Utopia and was having a whale of a time."

The Hutterians insist that they are happy in their communes. As one colony boss puts it,

"Of course we are or we wouldn't stay. No one stands at the gate with a gun. But there is something greater than happiness."

It was to find out what this was that Dr. Bach began his series of visits among the Hutterite people. He has based a novel on his findings, "The Dream Gate" (Bobbs-Merrill).

Woods Named Top Citizen

Wenatchee, Nov. 22 (U.P.)—Rufus Woods, publisher of the Wenatchee Daily World for 43 years, was honored by fellow townsmen Saturday night as their "outstanding citizen."

Woods, who has been a chief advocate of Columbia river development for the past 31 years, was lauded as "prophet of the Columbia."

Serving on the Columbia basin commission since its inception, Woods led the campaign of education for a "sane and orderly development of the Columbia river," including Grand Coulee dam.

He wrote and published the first article urging the building of the dam in 1918 and became president of the Columbia Basin Development league organized to promote the engineering and core-drilling of the dam.

He came to Wenatchee in 1903 and has managed his newspaper longer than any other living Washington State publisher.

New Party in China in Offing

Hong Kong, Nov. 22 (U.P.)—A new party hostile both to the communists and Chiang Kai-Shek may be in the offing in China.

Acting President Li Tsun-Jen is expected to take a lead in it. He is now in a hospital in this British colony. He arrived Sunday.

Chiang still is awaiting Li in Chungking. The generalissimo went there from Formosa last week at Li's invitation.

Foreigners from inland China, who arrived over the week-end, said the new party would expect United States help in stemming the communists.

These observers said the new party would adopt a more vigorous policy against the communists than Chiang's policy of trading space for time and avoiding major battles with the Reds.

Such a policy, the observers said, might gain the support of people dissatisfied with the communist administration and might win sympathy in the United States and substantial material aid.

Cold Wave Hits East Half of U.S.

(By the Associated Press) Cold northerly winds whipped across a wide portion of the eastern half of the nation today. Temperatures dropped to their lowest levels of the autumn season in many areas.

The frosty weather extended from the Rockies to the New England states and dipped into most of the southland. Florida and southern Georgia escaped the cold blasts, but the mercury was in the upper twenties as far south as central Alabama.

Snow flurries accompanied the chilly breezes in many sections. There was a narrow band of light snow from eastern Lake Michigan through Indiana and Kentucky into Tennessee. Snow flurries also were reported from the southern shores of Lakes Erie and Ontario eastward into northern New England and southward through parts of Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Temperatures were below normal throughout the Great Lakes region, the Ohio valley and the central Missouri and Mississippi valleys. They were above normal in the central and northern plains states. The coldest weather was in Michigan, Wisconsin and Illinois. Lowest early morning readings included 10 above at Flint and Gladwin, Mich.; 11 at Lone Rock, Wis., and 13 in Chicago suburbs.

The Pacific coast reported near normal temperatures. There was some fog and light rain in parts of the far west.

The boy first said she shot herself, Kochian related, then told this story: He and Katherine had been arguing "about her going out with other fellows."

The boy got a revolver belonging to Katherine's father and pointed it at his head with the firing pin half-cocked "to frighten her in a sort of Russian roulette game."

Screaming "give me that gun," Katherine grabbed at the weapon as the boy lowered it. The revolver went off sending a bullet into her chest.

On the schedule for local Guernsey breeders this year is a regular monthly meeting on the third Tuesday of each month. The group voted in favor of holding another spring show in May or June to exhibit top Guernsey animals of each county.

Frank Poepping and August Minke of Mt. Angel were appointed to visit each 4-H and FFA member in Marion county who has purchased a heifer through the Oregon Guernsey Breeders association heifer sales during the past four years. Ray Hobson, Robert Reed and Kenneth Swingle of Sheridan are making similar contacts in Polk county.

Guests at the meeting were Elmer Meadows, American Guernsey Cattle club fieldman from Portland and N. John Hansen, Polk county extension agent.

Control of tansy ragwort is the aim of the newly appointed Marion county weed control committee, reports Ben A. Newell, county extension agent. Arno Spranger, Salem, is chairman of the weed control group and Richard Barnes, Silverton, vice chairman.

The committee met in Salem this week and set into motion the preliminary steps for preventing tansy ragwort from setting seed and in order to eliminate this dangerous pest, they propose a county wide control area.

OEA Division To Dine Here

A dinner and business meeting of the Marion county division of the Oregon Education association has been planned for Tuesday, November 29, to be held at the American Legion club on South Commercial street at 6:15 p. m.

Special guests at the dinner will be teachers of Marion county who retired from the profession during the past year and Miss Martha Shull, president of the Oregon State Education association, who will speak on "What We Are." Carl Aschenbrenner, state director of NEA, will report on highlights of the 1949 National Education association convention, and Arthur Myers will speak on the national conference of the department of elementary principals.

Regular business of the association will be conducted following the dinner by Margaret D. Simms, president. It is imperative that Mrs. Mildred Wyatt, chairman of arrangements and program committee, receive reservations by Friday, November 25.
