

Sievers and Newcombe Picked as Top Rookies

New York, Dec. 1 (AP)—Roy Sievers, slugging outfielder of the St. Louis Browns, and Don Newcombe, fireballing ace of the Brooklyn pitching staff, have been named the outstanding baseball rookies of the major leagues for 1949.

Sievers was chosen the top freshman in the American league and Newcombe headed the newcomers in the National in the annual poll of the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

This is the first year the writers chose rookie standouts for the two leagues. In the past they have picked one for the entire majors, Shortstop Alvin Dark of the Boston Braves winning last year and Second Baseman Jackie Robinson of Brooklyn the year before.

Newcombe, who won 17 and lost eight for the National league champion Dodgers, was an almost unanimous pick of the 24-man senior league panel.

The 23-year-old Negro star received 21 votes. The other three went to Del Crandall, 19-year-old catcher of the Boston Braves.

The honor was more closely contested in the American league where six players received nominations. Sievers, however, got 10 votes to double that of his closest challenger, Pitcher Alex Kellner of the Philadelphia Athletics.

Sievers batted .308 in 140 games with a seventh-place ball club, hitting 28 doubles, one triple and 16 home runs.

Odell's Kin Quits to End Coaching Criticism

Seattle, Dec. 1 (UPI)—University of Washington backfield coach Don Fleming resigned today to stop criticism of head coach Howie Odell for having a member of the family on his staff.

Fleming is Odell's brother-in-law.

"I am resigning in the best interests of all concerned and to terminate the criticisms in some quarters of Coach Odell for having a member of the family on the coaching staff," Fleming said.

Fleming joined the Husky staff in the fall of 1948. He came from Creighton Prep in Omaha, Neb., where he had won the Nebraska state football championship the previous year.

Director of athletics Harvey Cassill said the balance of the

Bremerton Boss Given Spokane Managership

Spokane, Dec. 1 (AP)—Alan Strange, former big-league and star with the Seattle Rainiers will manage the Spokane Indians of the Western International baseball league in 1950.

The announcement of Strange's appointment comes today from Roy Hotchkiss, co-owner of the Spokane club.

Strange will come to Spokane from Bremerton where he managed the Bremerton Bluejackets for four years. He succeeds Jim Brillheart who led the Indians in 1949.

Hotchkiss said Strange is expected to arrive here tomorrow to sign a contract and work on plans for a 1950 team. Salary terms were not revealed.

The appointment confirmed persistent rumors that Brillheart would not be back in 1950. The Indians finished in third place last year.

49'ers Reverse Strike Stand

San Francisco, Dec. 1 (AP)—The San Francisco 49ers, after pulling the first strike in professional football history, reversed their field late last night and announced they would play the New York Yankees in an All-America conference playoff game here Sunday.

A spokesman for the team said after a secret meeting last night that the players had decided unanimously to put aside their salary differences with management and go into the game "with a most determined will to win." He said they had decided their obligation to their loyal fans was more important than their quarrel with the team owners.

Legion Post to Sponsor City League Hoopers

American Legion post No. 9, with plans to sponsor a city league basketball team, issued a call Thursday for a turnout of candidates from post membership or the ranks of interested veterans.

The Legion will supply warmups, suits and several basketballs as part of the sponsorship program. The team ranks will be open only to veterans, but membership in the Legion post is not an essential requirement.

Candidates were urged to contact George Huggins, Jr., (phone 3-9119) or the post.

coaching staff would remain intact. He said another assistant in addition to the backfield coach replacement may be added at a later date.

Cassill and Odell agreed that the staff needs a top-notch defensive coach following the 1949 season in which the Huskies showed a weak defense in losing seven of their 10 games.

Odell said he had no one in mind for either position.

As for Fleming, he said "it will be most difficult to improve the quality of our backfield coaching. Don has turned in one of the top jobs in the conference in bringing along young backs."

The Huskies piled up an impressive record despite their poor showing in the win-loss margin last season.

Coast Conference Grabs Most All Far-West Spots

By HAL WOOD (United Press Sports Writer)

San Francisco, Dec. 1 (UPI)—The Pacific Coast conference, as usual, dominated the annual United Press All-Far West football team this year, by grabbing eight of the 11 places on the first team, and nine out of 11 on the second squad.

The only men able to crush the select circle of western stars from outside the PCC were the incomparable Eddie Lebaron of College of Pacific; Guard Vern Sterling of Santa Clara; and Hall Haynes, Santa Clara back.

The rest of the first team was made up of the stars from the All-PCC team: Darrell Robinson of Oregon and Bob Wilkinson of UCLA at ends; tackles Jim Cullom and Jim Turner of California; Rod Franz of Cal at the guard with Sterling; and Jim Castagnoli of Stanford at center.

Along with Lebaron and Haynes in the backfield are Ken Carpenter of Oregon State and Ernie Johnson of UCLA.

This club possesses weight, ruggedness and speed in the forward wall; cleverness, passing, punting and running of exceptional value in the backfield.

The only man to make the club for the second consecutive year is Sterling, Santa Clara's great guard, who has been a tower of strength all season in the Bronco line that is regarded as one of the best in the nation.

Lebaron, of course, made the United Press second all-America and, if playing on a team with a better schedule, probably would rate as the finest quarterback in college football today. He had to be to beat out Bob Celery, California's ace signal caller, for the first string berth in the west.

Haynes is the boy who made the Broncos tick in their crucial games—against Stanford, UCLA, St. Mary's and USF. He not only is a great ball packer, he is a deadly tackler; fine safety man, and the third leading punter in the nation.

Johnson and Carpenter provided the backfield spark that lifted UCLA and Oregon State back among the football powers.

The balloting was exceptionally close among the west's sports writers at the end and center positions.

Wilkinson and Robinson barely nosed out John Rohde of College of Pacific and Bill McColl, Stanford's great sophomore. At center, Castagnoli had a close race with Leon McLaughlin of UCLA, and Harry Kane of COP.

The lineups:

First Team: UCLA... E. McColl, Stanford... G. Kane, Oregon... J. Robinson, Oregon... C. Celery, Oregon... B. Haynes, Santa Clara... R. Franz, California... J. Cullom, California... B. Wilkinson, UCLA... D. Robinson, Oregon... J. Castagnoli, Stanford... H. Haynes, Santa Clara... C. Carpenter, Oregon State... E. Johnson, UCLA... V. Sterling, College of Pacific... G. Lebaron, College of Pacific.

Second Team: Oregon... G. Kane, Oregon... J. Robinson, Oregon... C. Celery, Oregon... B. Haynes, Santa Clara... R. Franz, California... J. Cullom, California... B. Wilkinson, UCLA... D. Robinson, Oregon... J. Castagnoli, Stanford... H. Haynes, Santa Clara... C. Carpenter, Oregon State... E. Johnson, UCLA... V. Sterling, College of Pacific... G. Lebaron, College of Pacific.
