

Curbs on Sex Crimes Suggested by Legion Group

Seattle, Dec. 5 (AP)—A list of recommendations for parents and communities aimed at curbing sex crimes against children was submitted by the American Legion today to its western child welfare conference here.

A special committee of 15 of the conference, headed by Past National Commander Stephen F. Chadwick of Seattle, listed eight recommendations for parents including: "Know your child's whereabouts and associates; enforce your own curfew; train your children to go straight home from school; train your children not to ride with or accept favors from strangers, and report any suspicious actions promptly and frankly."

The committee urged all communities to back-up parental protective measures by "lighting up dark places, supporting an adequate police department, prohibiting children abroad after dark without proper supervision, enforce laws prohibiting sale of obscene literature and pictures. Communities also were urged to invite police and juvenile authorities to instruct and advise parent groups."

Meter Change Possible Here

Some parking meters in certain downtown areas with a 20-minute limit, others in the fringe areas for two and three hours, are some of the changes being talked about by Mayor Elstrom's advisory committee on off-street parking.

What is done on this score will depend largely on a report of results on a survey now being made by City Manager J. L. Franzen to show the extent of meter usage in the various parts of the city.

A real reform the committee is aiming at is to put a stop to meter-feeding—that is the all-day use of parking stalls by employees or executives of stores. The committee thinks the customer ought to be given a chance, and that all-day feeding of coins into the meters by a few car owners may drive business out of the metered district.

The committee believes the public should become acquainted with the location of convenient unmetered places, such as the large lot prepared for parking on Water street. It has no parking time limit, is only a couple of blocks from the city center, but for some reason it is little used.

According to its plan to develop self-financing metered off-street parking lots in the congested areas and unmetered lots in the farther-out districts, the committee hopes to see the first of the metered lots set up early in the coming year.
