Bimbo, Baboon Has High Time

Paris, Tenn., Dec. 7 (AP)—Bimbo the baboon had his master to thank today for saving him from police court charges of petty larceny, disorderly conduct, terrorizing the neighborhood and resisting arrest.

Service Station Operator Bailey Robbins picked up his pet at police headquarters yesterday after two patrolmen subdued and jailed the beast following a big spree.

Bimbo—so nicknamed by police who didn't know his real name—got loose yesterday and:

1. Stole a bag of clothes pins.
2. Scared the inhabitants of a new residential section by prowling on their front porches.
3. Battled two patrolmen who tried to capture him.
4. Tore a leg off Patrolman Herman Roberson's trousers.

But Roberson and Patrolman Don Gaskill finally trapped Bimbo and took him to jail, legging the light was symbolic of brightness and joy of rekindled faith.

Thousands of Bethlehem residents still place a beeswax candle in windows of their homes.

Bethlehem got its name on Christmas eve, 1741, in a ceremony conducted by Count Zinzendorf, one of the town's founders. He held a lighted beeswax candle during the ceremony, al-

'Christmas City of U. S.' Glows With Star of Bethlehem

Bethlehem, Pa., Dec. 7 (AP)—The "Christmas city of the U.S.A." glowed Saturday night with the famed Star of Bethlehem—this steel city's symbol of peace, good will toward all men.

The 81-foot high electric star throws its light 28 miles against the backdrop of stubby South mountain and the red-orange flames from steel blast furnaces.

The gigantic star remains lit until Jan. 2, a beacon to thousands of visitors. Last year, thousands came from all over the United States to see the star.

And with the star and its 3000 bulbs shining brightly, a myriad of other lights were switched on at the same time, turning industrial Bethlehem into a "great bright way."

A 60-foot Christmas tree composed of 60 individual, tiny spruces, is mounted on the middle arch of the hill-to-hill bridge that connects this eastern Pennsylvania community's north, south and east sections. The span crosses the Lehigh river, a canal and three railroads. The tree contains 1200 red, green and white bulbs.

Some 40,000 electric stars, bells, candles and wreaths are strung along seven miles of the city's streets, in both business and residential neighborhoods.

The first recorded candle service was held in 1756 when 250 candles were lighted on Christmas eve by the town's 741 residents. Bethlehem now has 60,000 residents.

The candles are made in the old Moravian tradition. The art was handed down to Simon Rau who passed on the secret to present owners of the drug store that bears his name. The store, incidentally is one of the nation's oldest apothecaries.

then sent out a call for his owner. By the time Robbins showed up to claim him, Bimbo was thoroughly subdued and Police Chief Walter Smith figured he had suffered enough humiliation.

The baboon's pride was dealt a final blow when officers locked him up in a cell in the women's quarters of the jail.
