East Salem School Rooms Given Flags at Assembly

East Salem, Dec. 8 — A special assembly was held at Swegle school when American flags were presented to the school for three of the rooms, which did not have flags. A committee of women from the Veterans of Foreign Wars with the Americanism chairman, Mrs. C. E. Forbis were out for the presentation. Following the singing of the national anthem, and the flag salute by the audience, led by Garry Wright, representatives from the three rooms received the flags after giving their short acceptance speeches.

Receiving for the third grade was Sandra Ann Everitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Everitt of 980 N. 38th street; second grade, John Jayne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jayne of 1920 Lancaster drive; and for the first grade Howard Lee Freeburn of Route 5, Box 64. Principal Arthur V. Myers was in charge of the assembly and members of the committee were Mrs. Forbis, Mrs. Ray Osborn, Mrs. Marvin Miller, Mrs. D. F. Furlough, Mrs. L. R. Hawaii's Governor Says Red Subs Approached Islands

Portland, Ore., Dec. 8 (AP)—Gov. Ingram Stainback of Hawaii said Wednesday in a Pearl Harbor day anniversary broadcast that submarines have approached Hawaii "and I think they could only be Russian."

Shortly before his departure for Washington, D. C., Gov. Stainback asserted that Hawaii, eight years after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, "has no defense."

Gov. Stainback gave no dates or specific information on the reported approach of unidentified submarines to the Hawaiian Islands. However, it was recalled that such an incident had been reported last year.

Gov. Stainback was interviewed at the Press Club of Oregon by Gordon McNab, Oregon state editor of the Associated Press; George Scott, Portland bureau manager of the International News Service; Dick Nokes, night city editor of the Oregonian; and Walter Hilbrunner, assistant city editor of the Oregon Journal.

Stainback said, "We know many communists are leading the International Longshoremen & Warehousemen's union in Hawaii. They don't have to be strong numerically to be a menace. And most of our communists are American citizens."

Gov. Stainback doubted, however, that statehood for Hawaii would have any considerable bearing on Hawaii's military position.

Stainback said that Hawaii, although not entirely stripped of defense, it not adequately defended against any potential military aggressor. At the same time, he denied a suggestion by an interviewer that Hawaii could be considered "expedient."

ONE OF THE FINEST ARTISTS

Paralyzed Artist Beats Handicap; Praised for Work

Lunenburg, N. S. (AP)—People come to see Earl Bailly paint with a brush held between his teeth and go away talking about one of the finest artists in Canada.

He must be good, when his seascapes grab the imagination of his visitors in spite of the fact he weighs only some 70 pounds and his arms are useless.

Those who have never seen him think he must be a strapping big fellow because of the strength shown in his pictures. He is handsome, well-tanned and with a warm smile, brownish hair in neat waves and a well-trimmed moustache. That is the first impression.

The second one is that you see him sitting in a wheelchair. Then you notice he never moves his hands. He can't.

Bailly was stricken with infantile paralysis when he was three years old. If it hadn't been for his mother, he would have spent the remainder of his life in a useless way.

But she was a teacher before she married and she made up her mind that the boy would get an education. It took months to teach him to write, gripping a pencil between his teeth.

By the time he was seven years, one of his drawings had been printed in a national publication. Three years later he was turning out Christmas cards in water-colors. At the age of 18, he held his first show in his home here.

When he turned to paints, he began with wagon paint. They were awkward pictures, but good enough to interest the artists who flock to the shores here in summer time. When he was 27 he attended a school at Rockport, Me., under George Ennis, American water-colorist.

Painting is at best a modest living for most artists. For the handicapped Nova Scotia painter, the same rule applied, only more so. He made a small sum each year, though his pictures hung in the homes of the famous.

Customers included W. L. MacKenzie King, the former prime minister of Canada; the late President Roosevelt; Princess Elizabeth and Margaret Rose, and Winston Churchill, a painter in his own right.

The Bailly paintings were of the countryside around this coastal town; of dories in coves, and fishing villages, and men working on fishing smacks or lumbering oxen-drawn carts.

Mementoes of his famous acquaintances paper the walls of his studio. Bailly got the only autograph of Queen Elizabeth during the royal tour of Canada in 1939.

He was interested in another form of art, the short story, he said.

But as yet he has not tried to make money in the latter field. There was, in fact, little trace of business man in him. He could cash in on fame but he stuck to commissioned work.

Prof. C. L. Lambertson of Dalhousie university described his work, with these words:

"Each picture he does represents a fresh problem, a new approach, plenty of hard thinking. He has beauty, directness, simplicity in his paintings—aren't these the essential qualities of the best works of art?"

Birthday Celebrated

Alco 51-Day Strike Ends

Pittsburgh, Dec. 8 (AP)—The Aluminum Company of America and the CIO United Steelworkers have signed a strike-ending pension agreement covering 17,000 employees in mine plants. But employees at one plant remained off the job.

After three days of negotiations, Alco and the union yesterday signed a contract calling for non-contributory pensions with a minimum benefit of $100 a month, non-contributory social insurance, and a program for adjustment of wage inequities.

The Alco employees had been on strike for 51 days.

The back-to-work movement hit a snag at Alco, Tenn., where the 6,000-member union local unanimously voted against sending any men back on the job until the firm promises to return all the strikers to full working shifts.

Alco officials of the Tennessee plant had informed local 309 that only 300 men would be called back today and 1,800 by the end of the week. Vice President L. C. Patterson of the union local demanded return of the full working force.

As in the steel settlements, the Alco contract provides for retirement at the age of 65. Full pension benefits are provided for workers with 25 years of service while those having less than 25 years but more than 15 will receive a proportionate amount.
