

'Mabel,' Lady Robot, Named One of 10 Top 'Young Women of Year' in 1949

MABEL
Ticktacktoe-playing robot

New York, N.Y.—Mabel, the lady robot who plays ticktacktoe and the only robot with a soft heart, is among the ten Young Women of the Year who were awarded 1949 Merit Awards for creative achievement by Mademoiselle magazine today.

The awards were presented for the seventh year in succession to ten young women in their twenties and early thirties who have already made a distinctive mark in their fields and are expected to achieve even greater honors.

On hand to accept the award for Mabel, the 80-pound lady mechanical brain, was her nineteen-year-old inventor, Robert Haufe of Pasadena, California.

Mabel's primary interest lies in matching wits with man, at which she most often wins and never gets less than a draw, just like a woman.

Mabel is only one year old and the youngest woman ever to receive a Merit Award. Haufe made her while he was an undergraduate at the California Institute of Technology, out of salvaged telephone and radio equipment and war surplus materials.

Other fields represented in this year's Merit Awards include education, theatre, business, ballet, politics, fashion, opera, law and art.

Here are Mabel's nine co-year women of the year.

MARGOT FONTEYN of England, 27, prima ballerina with Sadler's Wells Ballet, who is known in Europe as the world's finest ballerina and who won immediate acclaim at her American opening night solo for pure beauty of movement.

HONORE SHARRER of Amherst, Mass., 29, artist whose vivid realism, meticulous technique and warm feeling for the people she depicts has made her one of this country's important painters (her work is on exhibit at the Museum of Modern Art);

GERALDINE FUNK of San Juan, Puerto Rico, 29, young American businesswoman who surveyed the entire island of Puerto Rico for suitable grasses and fibers and taught natives how to weave products, ranging from rugs to handbags, which are now sold in this country's finest stores;

JULE HARRIS of New York City, 23, actress, who came through three flops last season with as many prizes for her personal performances, including the annual Critics' Award as Broadway's most promising actress, and who will play the lead in "The Member of the Wedding," which opens on Broadway in January;

JANE NOBLE, of Indiana, 24, who was elected to the Indiana State Legislature while still an undergraduate on a campaign for better representation for women and veterans, and the slogan, "Get Indiana politics out of the smoke-filled back rooms";

CHEE ARMSTRONG of New York City, 30, fashion designer, who has combined popular fabrics in new ways to design fresh and flexible young fashions for moderate prices;

FELICE N. SCHWARTZ of New York City, 24, founder of the National Scholarship Service and Fund for Negro Students, which she launched two years ago to help Negro students get scholarships in nonsegregated U. S. colleges, and which this year expects to help increase existing Negro enrollment in nonsegregated colleges by almost 10 per cent;

FRANCIS BIBLE of New York City, 27, opera singer, whose singing as Cherubino in "The Marriage of Figaro," stopped the show last October, who has been singing leading roles since and is now touring as Octavian in "Der Rosenkavalier."

O. LOUISE REPLOGLE of Lewistown, Montana, 26, lawyer who has already been elected

BPW Club Entertained

New members announced for the Salem Business and Professional Women's club are Mrs. Bessie M. Spilcke and Mrs. Madge E. Hughes.

The club held its social meeting and Christmas party last evening, combining the monthly business meeting with the event, the Christmas holidays eliminating the business session for the fourth Tuesday. The meeting was the last one for the club until January 10.

The group studied the proposed legislation program of the National Federation of BPW clubs, planning to take action on the program later.

A large collection of gifts was brought to be turned over to the welfare commission to distribute at Christmas time. Also, gifts were brought for the boys and girls at Chemawa school.

More than 50 attended the party last evening in the Salem Woman's club. Mrs. Mary M. Peet, Mrs. M. M. Magee and Mrs. C. A. Parker were guests.

County Attorney of Lewistown twice (and who has won several cases against her father, also a lawyer).

Tea Set Annually

At a business session last evening Salem Federated Music clubs decide to sponsor a silver tea annually on the first Sunday of December. Such an event was held for the first time this year and proved very successful.

The group also voted to establish the Mary E. Denton fund in memorial to the late Mrs. Walter Denton, long active in the federated group, a founder of the organization, and prominent in music activities of Salem for many years. Details regarding the fund and its purpose will be announced later.

Miss Lena Belle Tartar was elected historian for the year at the Tuesday meeting.

Honor Court Slated by Willamina Scouts

Willamina—The date for the Boy Scout Troop court of honor and smoker has been set for December 15 at the grade school gym. Scouts who will appear before the court to receive their awards will include Darrell Stacer and Richard Hoake, Bill Yoast, Bill Felton, Everett Lemons and Ross Baily who will all receive merit badges. Approximately 30 boys will take part in the court and athletic show.
