

Cop He Thought He Killed Still Lives; Man Is Held

Kansas City, Dec. 21 (AP)—An itinerant horseshoer has learned that a policeman he thought he killed 36 years ago is still alive. "It's sure a load off my conscience to know that policeman didn't die," said 54-year-old Paul F. Lovey.

Lovey was brought here for questioning after he told Las Vegas, Nev., officers he had killed a Kansas City policeman January 24, 1914.

In checking Lovey's story police took him to the Kansas City Star's library to read some 1914 newspaper clipping of a shooting. One of the clippings mentioned a patrolman J. B. Merritt. "That's the man I shot," Lovey exclaimed.

"Well, you didn't kill anybody then," said Police Lt. Harry Nesbitt. "Merritt recovered." Merritt now lives near Galesburg, Ill.

An 18-year-old youth, Eugene R. Jacobs, was sentenced to four years at the state training school after being identified as Merritt's assailant, files on the Merritt case show. Police said they knew nothing of Jacobs' whereabouts now.

"That's what I've been afraid of all along," Lovey said. "That someone else had taken my rap."

Lovey has been charged with assault with intent to kill. He is being held without bond pending a preliminary hearing Jan. 12.

Richland Gets New Charter

Richland, Dec. 21 (AP)—A new charter for Richland was unanimously accepted by the community council and approved by the top representatives of the atomic energy commission and the General Electric company at a meeting Monday night.

The charter will be voted on by the people of Richland at February 4 election, but will remain in effect temporarily whether they approve or reject it.

Changes in the new charter include changing the title from "mayor" to "president of the council."
