

Phillies' Boss Worries Over Loss of Prospects

Philadelphia, Dec. 22 (AP)—President Bob Carpenter is worried about the reluctance of other clubs to do business with his Philadelphia Phillies.

"Why, you'd think we had leprosy or something the way other clubs steered away from us at the New York meeting last week," the youthful Phillies' executive said.

"I can remember the day when our hotel room telephone at a major league meeting never stopped ringing. Everybody wanted to deal with us. But not this year."

"Oh, everybody was polite. Hello, Bob, how are you? and all that sort of stuff. But talk about bull players, no. You'd think we were in the ping pong business."

Carpenter was informed that he was paying the price of being a winner and a pennant threat. The Phillies' president isn't used to being near the top. He's just learning that when your team is good nobody wants to make you better.

Carpenter admitted he was a little worried about his team's prospects next year. "After all, we finished third last season, thanks to great years on the part of veterans like Ken Heintzelman and Hank Borowy. But suppose those two don't repeat."

"Of course we have some fine rookies coming up. A pitcher like Bubba Church from Toronto can mean the difference between third and second place."

Carpenter unhesitatingly selects Brooklyn to win the National league pennant in 1950.

Defeats Longden Mrs. Wantha Davis, 32, veteran mid-west and west county fair and bush track rider, beat America's Champion Jockey Johnny Longden in a six-furlong match race held at Agua Caliente, Mex. She is shown in the winner's circle on Northeast, held by an unidentified groom. Northeast led Longden's Grey Spook to the finish by a length and three-quarters in 1:12. Track officials rated the horses as equals. (AP Wirephoto)

Fireman Joe Deserves Pay Boost

By JACK HAND

New York, Dec. 22 (AP)—Memo to George M. Weiss, general manager of the New York Yankees:

When you come to Joe Page's name on your 1950 salary list, make it big.

Fireman Joe has the goods on you in black and white. He couldn't have done better by writing the script for the 1949 world series pictures previewed yesterday.

When the lights go down and the series movies start, Page glitters brighter than Hopalong Cassidy. Both get in trouble but Fireman Joe wiggles home first without shooting iron or lasso.

They say around town that Page, who appeared in 60 regular season and two world series games for the champion Yanks, will want at least $25,000 next summer.

Like most clubs, the Yanks never announced salaries. However, it's "reliably reported" that Fireman Joe got "about $20,000" last summer. He'll certainly want more in '50.

Contracts won't be mailed out for several weeks. Every day the '49 series pictures are shown, Page is going to look more convincing. As the prints won't be available for public showings until January 5, maybe Weiss had better get in touch soon.

The series films, directed by Lew Fonseca for the American and National baseball leagues have many a closeup of handsome Joe. When Page isn't in view, the Yankee cause is ably supported by Bobby Brown, Allie Reynolds, Tommy Henrich or Phil Rizzuto.

When you win a series, 4-1, there can't be much controversial material to air during the winter. It hardly matters that the movies showed Gene Hermanski might have been safe sliding home in the second game. That was the only game Brooklyn won, anyhow.

The excellent films represented many weeks of work by Fonseca and his staff, who cut 20,000 feet down to 3,700 feet for a 35-minute showing. Somehow or other, they forgot to show whether Tommy Henrich touches first base or not after hitting the game-winning homer in the ninth inning of the Yanks' 1-0 opening victory. The camera caught Tommy as he kicked second base with vehemence.

Ford Frick, National league president who has been somewhat in seclusion since early October, came down from his 17th story office to say a few words:

At a distance they sounded something like "wait until next year." Mr. Frick is a very patient man.
