(Chapter 16) HENRY'S PRESENT

Zezop and his Wiggle Waggles quickly tied up Santa.

"Welcome to your own party," sneered Zezop, "I told you that you would be sorry for not in-viting us."

you would be sorry for not inviting us."

"Let's give him some party food,"
"Let's give him some party food,"
"How about some gum drops?"
Immediately the Wiggle Waggles began dumping gum drops from their pockets—gum drops which were really the enchanted Santa Land workers and their story book friends who had come to the party.

Santa gazed sadly at the gum drops heaped on the table. The tip of his own magic wand stuck from Zeop's pocket. "If I could only get that," thought Santa longingly. But he knew there was no chance at all.

Meantlime, Mr. Dilly and Henry hid in the bloycle shop, not knowing that Santa had led the Wiggle Waggles off their trail. All about the shop were bloycles and tricycles, shining bright with newness. How wonderful they would look around all the Christmas rece on Christmas morning! thought Henry, He forgot for a moment that there very likely wouldn't be an Christmas morning any more.

He felt in his pocket for the mas gift in his hand and stretched out on the floor. Instantly he fell asleep.

Dr. Dilly rummaged around the shop. The tables and benches had been overturned by the galloping Wiggle Waggles. Wrenches, screw drivers, and pilers were strewn about. Some of the bicycles had been smashed.

Hunting around, Mr. Dilly found what he wanted. It was an old work suit of Santas'. It was torn and dirty but it was red and fur trimmed.

What a sight Mr. Dilly looked when he had put it on! Long, thin Mr. Dilly with Santa's suit handing on him like a double sheet. He snatched up rags that lay about the shop and stuffed them in his coat, filling out the empty spaces.

Then he glued wads of cotton to his chin and checks, He had no hat so he glued cotton to his hair, too, to make it white and fluffy like Santa's.

When he was ready he was the funniest sight you ever saw. But anyone looking at him would have known right away that if he wasn't Santa Claus.

He ducked out of the bicycle shop and started off for Santa's cottage. He could hear the Wingle Waggles whooping it up over there.

"Jingle bells, lingle bells," sang out Mr. Dilly, trying to sound very gay and launty. "Here comes Santa himsell!"

I shouldn't open my Christmas present right now," he said to himself.
"After all, it's the only present I ever had and I'm sure Patrick Tweedieknees wouldn't mind if he knew how it was,"

So he tore the wrapping from the little box and peeped inside. What he saw was a tiny golden feather covered with tiny silver writing. For one whole minute he stared open mouthed reading the words on the feather.

Suddenly he cried out with Joy Then, his face lit with happiness and the feather tight in his hands, he whispered softly to himself.

gay and Jaunty. "Here comes Santa himself!"

With that he burst into the cottage. Instantly he saw Santa all lied up and he knew his whole plan was ruined. But it was too late to do anything. The astonished Wiggle Waggles looked first at him and then at the real Santa and then back again.

Finally Zezop said, "Maybe its all done with mirrors, maybe not. Anyway, now we have two Santas."

Well, I guess that would have been the end of everything if it hadn't happened that furt about that time little Henry over in the bleyde shop woke up. When he found Mr. Dilly gone he thought the Wiggle Waggles had gotten him and would soon get him, too.
