Rose Opponents Keyed For Classic on Monday

Trained to the peak of their abilities, the Buckeyes of Ohio State and California's Golden Bears today anxious-ly awaited their clash Monday in the 36th annual Rose Bowl football game.

Both teams were fired up for the encounter before an expected 100,000 fans in the famed stadium. It will be the fourth meeting between rep-resentatives of the Big Ten and the Pacific Coast conference in their current Rose Bowl pact.

For California the game was a return engagement and an opportunity to make up for its defeat last year by North-western, 20 to 14, in one of the hardest-fought Rose Bowl

Ohio State has not appeared in the Rose Bowl since 1921 when a Buckeye team was defeated by California, 28 to 0. That was the only setback ever suffered by a Big Ten team in the annual classic here, and the current Ohio State team was anxious to erase that stigma.

The game pits teams that appear almost equally matched in manpower. California has a slight weight edge in the line but Ohio State's backfield is a little heavier.

Despite the loss of its star halfback, Jack Swaner, Call-fornia remained a six-point favorite to beat the Buckeyes, the favoritism stemming chief-ly from the backfield wizard-ry of Quarterback Bob Celeri.

Although Ohio State's Pan-del Savic has performed exceilently as quarterback, he was not considered the match of Celeri whose ball-handling has left opponents bewildered and unable to find the man with the pigskin until too

Wolves Howl at Stanford

Evidently it is going to take something more substantial in the athletic line than "character building" to keep the wolves off the trail of Coach Marchie Schwartz and his associates at Stanford university. Columnists in the Stanford Daily, campus publication, are asking embarrassing questions such as "Why Stanford university. Columnists in the Stanford Daily, campus publication, are asking embarrassing questions such as "Why does Stanford always end up 'lacking the depth', 'Not having the push up front' or 'lacking the horses?' "Horses?" "We got 'em!" exclaims John Hall of the Daily, "Maybe Stanford needs somebody to saddle 'em. Sometimes a change in jockeys can turn a plug into a Seabiscuit. Sometimes it doesn't. Sometimes to the stanford of the property of the stanford of times it just takes a long time to get started.

Let's Look at the Record

"If Schwartz and his staff are judged to be getting the best possible results, then give them a vote of confidence and get behind them," Hall's dissertation continues. "If not, as past records seem to indicate, remove them or see that necessary changes are made. Since taking over as headman in 1942, changes are mane. Since taking over as headman in 1942, Schwartz has in five years won only 22, lost 25 and tied 2. Even Tiny Thornhill, whose record during his last five years was considered to be the poorest in Stanford's football history, was not that bad. In that period, Thornhill won 18, lost 21 and tied 5. And Tiny, at least, had three earlier Rose Bowl teams to fall back.on."

Lack of Material

Lack of Material

Touching upon the "lack of material" argument advanced in some quarters, Hall says he "can't go along with that. Stanford has had three straight undefeated frosh teams, has not lost a jayvee game to California in three seasons and has received its share of the best JC transfers in these parts." Low in spots in the Schwartz regime are listed as: loss of every game in 1947, including a 19-16 loss to Idaho; uninspired and sloppy play through 1948; seemingly unnecessary losses in 1948 to Washington State and Santa Clara, games in which Stanford "turned in poor, clistless football;" a pathetic intersectional record, with a 43-0 loss to Army and 49-13, and 27-7 losses to Michigan as standouts; this season's loss to UCLA, 14 to 7. If Hall's article reflects the sentiment around the Palo Alto campus then it appears it will take more than an "He losse But They Love Him" article such as appeared in the Sateve Post to keep Marchie on the pay roll much longer.

Prexy Attacks Bowls

Charging that they are "not college controlled, are sometimes of dubious nature, and unduly prolong the annual fall hysteria built up around football", President William S. Carlson of the University of Delaware would abolish all "bowl" contests. He waxes warm over the issue in Collier's "This carnival of prostituted education has mushroomed from a single bowl, affiliated with California's Pasadena Tournament of Roses," Carlson writes. "I find not an iota of justification for the educational goals of a genuine college or university in abetting these promotions." Carlson blames himself and other college presidents for the swollen importance allotted to post-season games. "College football is a by-product of our system of higher education, and we ought to look upon it honestly and frankly as as commodity we are retailing." He charges that the spirit of the game has been kidnapped from the players as another sacrifice to victory, which he says is the essential ingredient for box office success. "I contend the price is too great. The game has been aborted from the original fine objective until it is purely business. It is becoming more so, as fast as we can purely business. It is becoming more so, as fast as we can contrive it."
