(Installment VI) MR. BANKS DOES A BIT

MR. BANKS DOES A BIT OF REPORTING
The only step remaining to make he whole thing irretrievable was he announcement of the engagent in the papers.
Mrs. Banks considered the wording of the notice of vital importance fer brother, Uncle Charlie, had orked on a Chicago newspaper for everal weeks when he was a boy, fer was now called in as a consultant.

nt. Uncle Charlie said it didn't make bit of difference how you wrote ne notice. The society editor would and your copy to the office boy, ho would bungle up the whole ling anyhow.

Mrs. Banks pooh-poohed this, his notice was going to be letter-rfect. It was written, read, re-ritten, reread, submitted to the unstan family, revised and resub-tived.

Kay was the only person who howed no interest. As long as they pelled her name with a "K" and ot a "G" she was satisfied.

Mr. Banks finally took what he roped was the right draft down to he office to have Miss Bellamy nake six conles.

"Oh, Stanley! The one thing the

I know, I know, But what can you do? That's labor for you. They don't care any more, It's the reason the country's in such a mess." He climbed the stairs noiselessly, hoping that Kay might sleep until he was safely on the train to town

A modern wedding is somewhat like a new theatrical production. Once the cast has been decided upon, the next thing is to determine whether it is to be Big Theater or Little Theater and then fill the house.

Kay opened the arguement at dinner, "I'll tell you one thing," she said, "This is going to be a SMALL wedding and a small RECEPTION, I'm going to have my own friends and it's not going to be a business convention."

"Who said anything about a business convention?" interrupted Mr. Bank's. "All I'm saying is you'll probably wind up with either thirty or three hundred."

probably wind up wise either thirty or three hundred."

"Three HUNDRED!" There was a suggestion of hysteria in Kay's voice. "Pops, if you mean that you're CRAZY, I know what you and Momwant, You want every old foggy in town so that you can hear them say, "Yes she really was TOO lovely,"

Well I just wont HAVE it."

Mr. Banks had an inspiration. He fetched a yellow pad of paper and placed it beside his plate. On it he wrote three names.

"There," he said, "that's the smallest wedding you can have under the law -- you and Buckley and the Reverend Cyrus Galsworthy. Now, Anybody else?"

Kay threw up her hands. "Really, "that's CHLIDEN and settlers and settlers."

Kay threw up her hands. "Really, this is so CHILDISH, Pops, You always get so TEXHNICAL."

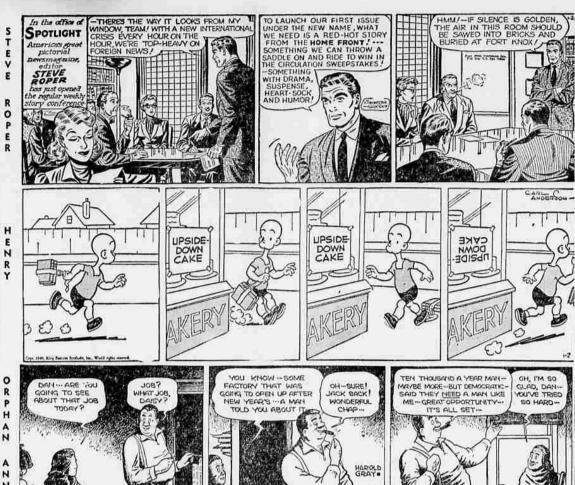

Sometimes your father has good ideas, Kay. Go on, Stanley, Just put down the Dunstans and ourselves and Ben and Tommy."
"And Aunt Harriet, naturally, and Uncle Charlie," said Kay.
