Wife-Beating Problem Shows How Joe College Has Changed

East Lansing, Mich., Jan. 3 (AP)—Today's college student is a relatively carefree individual despite an occasional urge to beat up the wife, according to Dr. Albert I. Rabin, Michigan State college psychologist.

Rabin, head of Michigan State's psychology clinic, credits a better economic situation than existed during the lean '30s with giving the modern scholar a rosier outlook on life.

Despite the comforts afforded by a fatter purse, however, college life still is not a bed of roses for the average student, Rabin pointed out.

He or she, still is plagued by such ancient academic thorns as inability to concentrate, disinterest in studies and pursuit of the opposite sex.

Add to those pitfalls the more recent problems of campus marriages and you get some idea of what the modern Joe College or Betty Co-ed must go through to get a diploma.

One of the main functions of Rabin's clinic is to help stumbling students clamber over all types of mental hurdles.

"Since our clinic opened last January," Rabin said, "we have helped students solve problems ranging from acute stage fright to wife-beating."

Just being away from home disturbs some students, he added.

Search for Beauty Foils Americans, Artist Believes

Chicago, Jan. 3 (AP)—A Viennese-born artist says Americans are "hungry for beauty" but they are thwarted when they seek beauty in their workday lives.

They are spending more and more time at home in an effort to escape, said James Seeman, a mural painter with an urge to "create a whole new atmosphere" in the average home.

"What does the average person see in the course of a day? Ugly buildings, railroad and streetcar tracks, smoky skies—things that assault the senses," Seeman said.

The average person seeks refuge in his home except when he can get away for a vacation. But for years, the atmosphere around most homes, has been drab and uninteresting, Seeman said.

Now Americans can get away from their uninteresting everyday surroundings in their own homes.

"Think of eating breakfast in the atmosphere of San Francisco's Fishermen's Wharf, or overlooking the southern coastline of France," he suggested.

Seeman has painted those scenes on wallpaper from photographs and actual trips he made to those places.

He also has painted on "paper murals" the New Orleans French Quarter, a Persian scene, the streets of old New York "for an escape from the modern" and an authentic Chinese landscape.

Another French design called "four seasons" has great variety,

Engagement Is Announced

Announcement is being made of the engagement of Miss Marcella Messmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Messmer, to Delbert D. Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Loren Miller, all of Salem.

No date has been set for the wedding.

ALPHA CHI OMEGA Mothers club is meeting this evening (Tuesday) at the home of Mrs. Harry V. Collins.

he said. The onlooker can alter his surroundings to his mood merely by turning his chair.

"People who have tried it say it works wonders," Seeman said. "They say it is so refreshing, exhilarating to walk into a room that has personality and not just four drab walls."

It is inexpensive, too, he said, because while the wallpaper itself costs a little more, it requires no pictures and only the simplest furniture and rugs.

Seeman said he would like to go to Hawaii for his next designs.

He said he is convinced that plain-colored walls are fast becoming outmoded.

"Plain walls, as someone once noted, are the refuge of the artistically destitute," he said.
