Spell It A-C-H-T But Don't Try To Say It

New York, Jan. 18 (P) — ACTH is a word to remember, but not to pronounce.

You spell it out, A-C-T-H, in reading or saying it aloud. You don't pronounce it because it's an abbreviation. It stands for adrenocorticoptro-pic hormone, made by the pituitary gland at the base of ber, because it's one of two wonder hormones making medical history. The other is cortisone, made by the adrenal glands.

Both ACTH and cortisone bring dramatic relief from rheumatoid arthritis. The arthritis returns when the hormones are stopped.

ATCH also brings recoveries from leukemia, a fatal cancer of the blood. These recoveries are temporary in chronic leu-kemia. The latest news is that ATCH has brought recoveries in five cases of acute leuke-mia, the fast-acting form of the disease. These recoveries still are called temporary. There hasn't been time enough yet to tell whether the disease will always come back again. Both hormones are extreme-difficult to make. Only small amounts are available. They go to medical experts for re-search on arthritis, leukemia, rheumatic fever, and some other diseases.

Noting Suzy's gentleness

Hammaker introduced Ignatz to her when he found him. For a while, the tiny fellow was frightened, but when he saw that the friendly feline meant no harm, he walked right up and sat on her tummy. Suzy never batted a crossed eye. Each day Hammaker would fill the bathtub with water and put a little boat in it. Ignatz would dive into the water and swim out the boat. Deftly, he'd guide it to the side of the tub, where Suzy waited. Then she'd push the boat around with her
