Baby of 1950 Can Look to 30 More Years Than Infant of Past

The baby born in this country in 1950 can look forward to 30 more years of life than did the infant of just 100 years ago, according to the Institute of Life Insurance.

While the expectation of life at birth was approximately 40 years in 1850, it is nearly 70 years today. The greater part of the gains have been the result of reduced mortality in infancy and early childhood.

"Not only is the increased life span noticeable at birth, but all through childhood and up to middle life," the Institute commented.

"At age 20, the increased expectation of life today, compared with 1850, is about 10 years; at age 40 it is about 5 years. By the time age 60 is reached, the benefits of medical advances and better living have just about run out, so that the expectation of life at ages beyond that is little different from that of 100 years ago.

But the current emphasis in a large part of medical research, such as that aided by the Life Insurance Medical Research Fund, is on diseases which take the greatest toll at the more advanced ages. If the achievements of the past century at the younger ages is only partially paralleled in the efforts at the older ages, the 1950 babies can look forward to added expectancy at even the advanced ages.

"The past century's health advances in the United States, adding materially to the lives saved in infancy, childhood and early life, have added greatly to the number of persons at or over retirement age today. Many millions more are today on the threshold of 'old age' than in previous generations and the aged are increasing at a greater rate than total population.

"Those 65 and over numbered only slightly over half a million in 1850; today they number more than 11,000,000. While the population has increased nearly seven times, those 65 and over have increased 19 times.

Road Program for O & C Grant Lands

Portland, Jan. 19 (AP)—President Truman's recommended budget would make possible a reforestation and road construction program on Oregon and California revested lands in western Oregon.

Daniel L. Goldy, regional administrator of the bureau of land management, said the O&C program calls for building about 400 miles of timber access roads.

He estimated that the funds, recommended by the president, would start construction of roads opening up $20,000,000 of now inaccessible timber. The budget earmarks $1,000,000 for road construction.

The budget would also give the bureau of land management funds for a reforestation program for the first time since the days of the depression CCC camps.

Senator Pulls Surprise Move; Says Denfeld Still Navy Chief

Washington, Jan. 19 (AP)—Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.), Wednesday told the senate that President Truman actually had issued a commission to Admiral Louis Denfeld for a second term as chief of naval operations.

He contradicted testimony by Secretary of Navy Matthews that no commission had been issued, though the senate had confirmed the appointment.

McCarthy produced a photographic copy of what he said was the presidential commission issued to Denfeld, ousted as CNO last October. He said he had not seen the original document but had been told it is in Denfeld's hands.

This raises a question, he said, as to whether the office of CNO "is now actually vacant."

Chairman Tydings (D., Md.) of the senate armed services committee immediately asked that the senate hold up the confirmation of Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, named by President Truman as Denfeld's successor.

The armed services committee last week unanimously recommended Sherman for confirmation after he and Matthews had made a personal appearance before the group. That was when Matthews said Denfeld had not been commissioned and therefore the job was open when Denfeld's first term expired in December.

McCarthy blocked Tydings' attempt to get the senate to confirm Sherman immediately after the armed services group had acted. Senate confirmation had been considered a foregone conclusion until McCarthy took the floor Wednesday.

McCarthy told the senate the document raises the question whether Secretary Matthews "is a man who is incompetent or just plain untruthful."

Denfeld, who took a 60-day leave following his ouster, now is at his home in New England.
