Number one hit song on the campus now, is "Let it Snow, Let it Snow, Let it Snow." So far we haven't had to resort to skiing to class, but snow shoes may come in handy.

Sororities on campus are now busy with rush week, which started Monday. Winter term rushing will last for a period of three weeks. Concerning rushing there has been the big discussion these past months as to whether we would adopt deferred rushing along with the deferred living plan. By unanimous vote, the University of Oregon Panhellenic association last week expressed its disapproval of deferred rushing and advocated an early rushing and pledging date next fall. Therefore, Oregon and Oregon State are now on the same basis.

"Thunder Rock," by Robert Audrey, is in the process of rehearsal. This production will be given February 3-10. This will be the second theatrical production to be presented in the new theater.

This has been a week of snow banks, senior comprehensives and orals, and pre-registration confusion. And a busy week, too! The weather of course has been the main topic of conversation, with stories of "digging out cars," "how cold it is on the sleeping porch," and "how long it takes to walk to class." Because of the ice and snow, Willamettes received an unexpected vacation from chapel this week—the scheduled speakers had been detained.

The majority of 25 seniors graduating in February have completed a successful week by passing their exams with flying colors and being greeted with the news that in most cases they will be exempt from the finals. For students still in pursuit of knowledge, the long-awaited exam schedule has been posted and advance registration has become a task of trying to find the right professor to sign the right card.

The varsity basketball squad entrained Thursday evening for Caldwell, Idaho, where they will play the College of Idaho in a two-game series. On the return trip home, they will meet Whitman college at Walla Walla. It will be a full-packed agenda and we hope as successful as the

The sophomore and junior classes have planned a "Final Fling Before Finals" for Saturday night at the Club Combo. Class presidents, Lou Prediletto and Jack Brown, have announced that the affair will be sport dress, "come as you want to," and "strictly stag." The evening will include dancing, games, with prizes offered, and fun for all—a welcome relief from studying.

"Ghosts", a study in human relations, has been selected as the play to be presented on February 16 and 17 in Waller chapel by the drama department as a part of the program of religious emphasis week. George Bynon and Marian Sparks, both of Salem, Margaret Guice, Seattle, Phil Hammond, Portland, and Dave Place, Grants Pass, will comprise the cast. The characters will have the opportunity to express deep feeling in the parts they portray, for the story revolves around a woman who dares to believe that ideas and convention might be upheld to a certain point and then departed from. Great interest in the production has been shown already by dramatists and students.

Fashion's Inside Story

Gingham Girl—Camisole and petticoat in green and white checked gingham, both budget priced and featured at recent lingerie shows.

Beauty in the Boudoir—Nightgown and negligee in pink cotton trimmed with white lace. Gown has lace bodice and Victorian charm.

Fashion's underpinnings are just as important as the outer dress or suit this season—and woe to the lady who thinks it doesn't matter if she wears an old slip held up by a safety pin.

Petticoats, slips, camisoles and bras are planned to the specifications of the new silhouette—and this spring they come in light-hearted colors and unexpected fabrics such as, for instance, checked gingham.

At the recent spring show of the Negligee and Lingerie Manufacturer's association, the fact was stressed that to be in step with the times you should have navy undergarments to wear with your new navy suit, black to wear with black, ruffly petticoats to wear with dresses that need a crisp, full skirt line and slit slips or petticoats with slim, slit skirts.

The manufacturers also point out that the favorite garment of most American women is the house coat or negligee, which is decorative enough to wear for dinners at home, comfortable enough to induce relaxation at the end of a busy day.

PLANNING to go to Portland Saturday, evening to see Mariemma, the Spanish dancer, in performance there are Mr. and Mrs. Elmer O. Berg and son, Jerry, and Mrs. Germaine Brown.
