

Tigress Attacks Trainer Taking Cub Out of Cage

Thousand Oaks, Cal., Jan. 24 (AP)—Mabel Stark, veteran animal trainer who calls herself the "only woman crazy enough to fool around with tigers," was attacked Monday by a mother tigress when she tried to remove a cub from a cage.

Billy Richards, co-owner of the World Jungle Compound, animal farm where the accident occurred, said the tigress, a seven-year-old named Pasha, was generally considered to be "very tame."

"Miss Stark reached into the cage to get one of the cubs and somehow, I don't know how, Pasha clamped her jaws around Mabel's arm," Richards said.

He said it was impossible to tell how serious the wound is until a hospital examination is made.

Attendants at Burbank hospital, where she was taken, would say only that she is a patient there.

Richards did not witness the accident, but he said Miss Stark reached her right arm into the cage and was able to jerk it free again when Pasha momentarily released it.

Trainer Tony Anthony and Hank Craig, an employee of the compound, rushed to help the woman but she was free when they arrived.

Dr. Starr Leslie, a woman doctor here, rushed Miss Stark to the hospital with her husband, Ed Trees, who also witnessed her struggle.

Miss Stark, who has been training tigers for 32 years, had just returned to the World Jungle Compound, a local animal farm, for the winter season after touring with Pollack Bros. Shrine circus. She is the only woman trainer who includes tigers in her act.

Newport Lumber to Go to Gulf Ports

The interstate, Jan. 24 (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today authorized the first permanent water transportation service between the lumber area around Newport, Ore., and gulf coast ports.

The ICC authorized the Luckenbach Gulf Steamship Co., Inc., New York, to carry passengers and freight between Newport and the eight gulf coast ports it already serves.

The ICC said the company estimated that it will transport enough lumber from Newport to bring in an additional $350,000 in annual revenues.

Doctors Put in Defense Story

Portland, Jan. 24 (AP)—Oregon Medical Society members continued defense testimony today in the trial on federal charges of anti-trust law violations.

The society is accused of attempting to monopolize pre-paid medical service in the state. The trial resumed yesterday after a recess since Nov. 11.

Dr. Edwin R. Durno, Medford, said yesterday he had opposed commercial pre-paid medical insurance programs because he believed they treated doctors unfairly. He said fees were inadequate, patients often were sent to Portland specialists and the payment plan involved too much red tape.

He explained that doctors had formed a Southern Oregon Medical Service association but that it failed after a few years. He blamed the commercial associations for this. He said they had provided many favors to key industrialists in order to get the medical business.

Woman to Be 112 Thursday

Wapwallopen, Pa., Jan. 24 (AP)—Pennsylvania's oldest resident, Mrs. Mary O'Neil, described herself as "still a youngster" today as she made plans for her 112th birthday party Thursday.

"I feel fine," she said, "but I don't get out enough."

The tiny, English-born grandmother lives in a small home on Stonecruiser hill, a half-mile up a steep, winding lane from the nearest paved highway and two miles distant from Wapwallopen, a Luzerne county village of 235 residents.

The nearest big cities in this hard coal region are Hazleton and Berwick—and Mrs. O'Neil says she hasn't been "to town" since she moved here 13 years ago.

"I don't like automobiles and it's too far to walk," Mrs. O'Neil told newsmen.

Born in Yorkshire, England, Mrs. O'Neil married at 26 and had seven children. Her husband, George, died when she was 50 and she came to the U.S., settling in the Hazleton area.

Two of her children are living. They are Mrs. Mary Dukworth, 72, now of Quebec, Canada, and James O'Neil, 70, of Lancastershire, England.

Silage Forum Dated for Marion Co. Farmers

Marion county farmers have scheduled a silage forum for Saturday, February 11 at 10 a.m.

Ten samples of as many different kinds of silage were taken to the laboratory last week by Ben A. Newell, county extension agent. Dr. J. R. Haag, agricultural chemist, will test the silage samples for protein, vitamin A, acidity, dry matter, flavor and odor. His report will be read for the February 11 meeting so farmers feeding silage can compare fresh samples with the tests.

Every farmer is invited to bring a sample of his silage along.
