

Naval Air Facilities Program Told Portland

Facilities of the Salem Naval Air Facility, the program offered by the facility and the over-all program of the AVUA of the Naval Air Reserves were explained at a meeting held in Portland Tuesday night.

The meeting attended by both members of the AVUA and the VAVU of the Navy's Air Reserves, was called for the purpose of informing the men in that area of the need to immediately get the program into operation if Oregon is to continue to have a naval air facility.

Down from Seattle to explain the program were the executive officer for the Naval Air Reserve training Unit, Cmdr. D. A. McIsaac; Lt. Cmdr. P. Herrald, type training officer, and Cmdr. W. W. Jones from the office of the commander of the Naval Reserves, 13th Naval District.

Lt. Cmdr. Wallace Hug, officer in charge of the Salem facility, attended the meeting and explained the program and facilities offered at the Salem facility. He was accompanied to the meeting by the executive officer from the facility Lt. Stanley Fallender, Lt. Ernest Eldridge, Lt. Ed Schless and Chief J. Brown, one of the station keepers at the facility.

During the meeting arrangements were made for flights to be made to Portland by Beechcrafts at the facility this Saturday and Sunday to pick up reservists wanting to come to Salem to take their physicals or put in flying time. Similar arrangements for picking up the men are being made with the Corvallis and Eugene air reserve groups.

Stocks Advance Following Slump

New York, Feb. 8 (AP)—A rally in steels and motors today pulled the stock market out of a slump.

Prices presented a ragged appearance with gains and losses thoroughly mixed with a movement of around a point either way.

The buying flare followed the announcement that talks would be resumed between workers and management in the coal strike and in the Chrysler Corp. shut down.

Trading picked up considerably on the rise with the volume of business at the rate of 1,400,000 shares for the entire day.

Along with advancing prices in steels and motors, there was a pick up in activity, with buying centered on Studebaker, Chrysler, General Motors, U.S. Steel and Bethlehem Steel.

Elsewhere there were scattered gains, and a number of extreme losses were cut back.

Aircraft issues were in the spotlight early in the day while the rest of the market slumped. Grumman and Consolidated Vultee were buying favorites.
