Members of the Salem Board of Realtors delved into problems of their own profession during their Friday luncheon program, discussing such matters as racial restrictions and ethics involved when two firms have had a hand in the sale of a given piece of property.

The racial question which involves F.H.A. loans proved something of a hot potato and further discussion will be had next Friday. It is understood racial restrictions imposed prior to February 15 do not jeopardize the possibility of securing a F. H. A. loan.

It was stated during the question and answer session that abstracts, as a means of recording the history of property are gradually disappearing from the scene. Title insurance men stated that their type of instrument covers 95 percent or more of the transactions.

New Location West Germany

The building, designed for 36 apartments and to be seven stories high, was originally planned for 555 North Summer, and a city permit was issued. That conflicted with an extension of the capitol building zone as recommended by the state capitol planning commission, and pressure was exerted to get Coates to move the project elsewhere.

He was cooperative. He made several proposals, one of which was that he would take the project to another location if the state would take the Summer street property off his hands at a sum amounting to what he had paid for it plus some small incidental expenses. The state emergency board followed up by appropriating $14,250 for the purchase.

The government now must re-submit its program or offer another. Ardenauer's plan called for inter-loans, chiefly for construction to relieve West Germany's acute housing shortage. Government financing also would aid long-term contracts, railway projects, small business, communications and jobless refugees.

The purchase was made as an investment and it was announced that tenants will not be disturbed. The property has been owned by the Valley Motor company for 35 years. Members of the Steeves estate are Mrs. Muriel Morse, Mrs. Conrad P. Paulson, representing Thomas Steeves, a minor, Richard Steeves and Robert Steeves.

Old Paulus Cannery—The old Paulus cannery building, bought from Paul Wallace by Wallace Bonesteel, was built by A. Myers about the year 1870, when he and associates planned to manufacture water wheels and agricultural implements. The building was first known as the Agricultural works, but Myers soon went out of business.

Later the building was occupied by a planing mill, a bag factory, a fanning mill factory, and it is believed an upper floor was once used as a skating rink.

Near 1886 Thomas Holman had Salem's first electric plant in the building. The building was gutted by fire about 1888, and what had once been a three-story structure was rebuilt as a two-story building. In 1890 and for some years after a storage warehouse was located in the building. In First World War days Gile & Jenks had their prune packing plant there and logberry juice was bottled in the basement.

A newer south section of the building was erected about 1907. The building is 150 by 165 feet, or a quarter block. It is really a combination of two buildings, the section on the north side 60 by 165 and on the south side 40 by 80 feet, and has a full basement.

It is a brick structure with walls 22 inches thick, and footings are of stone five feet thick. Both Southern Pacific and Oregon Electric tracks are available to the building.

Bonesteel is now dismantling parts of the building. He said he hoped within a few months to have it in condition for rental, possibly for warehousing or wholesale purposes.

Oliver Goes East—Dr. Egbert Oliver, professor of English at Willamette university, will leave for Cleveland, Ohio, next Monday where he will attend a three-day session of the Missions Council of the Congregational church. ## Apartment House Location Approved by FHA

This property at 1165 Chemeketa street has been approved by the FHA as a location for the Robert T. Coates apartment house project if the building plans are not changed. Coates will now formally ask the FHA for permission to transfer from 555 North Summer. Surveyors are shown at work on the lot. Frank D. Talbot, Portland civil engineer, is shown with the transit, and L. D. Grady of Portland is the flagman.

New Post Office For West Salem

Construction of a one story building at Kingwood and Second streets in West Salem to be leased to the postal service will begin in the near future by Col. C. A. Robertson.

A classified postal station will be established in the new building which means that three foot carriers and two rural route operators will work out of the place. The personnel will be transferred from the Salem post-office, Postmaster Albert C. Gragg states.

Bids for the building were asked several months ago but the award was not made until Thursday afternoon. The structure will be of pumice block construction, 63 feet across the front, 40 feet at the back and 38 feet in depth.

Last Rites for Mrs. Roy Mills

Funeral services are to be held at the W. T. Rigdon chapel Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock for Mrs. Beulah M. Mills, wife of Roy H. Mills, secretary of the board of control.

Rev. Chester Hamblin, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of which Mrs. Mills was a member, will officiate at the service. Private entombment will follow at Mt. Crest Abbey Mausoleum. The casket is to be open to friends until noon Saturday.

Mrs. Mills died Thursday at a local hospital, where she had been confined since January 24 with coronary thrombosis. Born at Newberg, Oregon, October 6, 1889, Mrs. Mills was the daughter of the late State Senator Charles K. and Lorah Spaulding. She attended Newberg schools and Pacific college.

Beulah Spaulding was married in 1910 at Newberg to Roy Mills and the couple moved to Salem the same year. They have resided here ever since and recently have had their home at 425 Fawk avenue.

Surviving besides the husband are two daughters, Mrs. Elliott (Roberta) Price of Washouq, Wash., and Mrs. Kenneth (Ila) Hanson of Stayton; a son, Charles K. Mills of Berkeley, Calif.; a sister, Mrs. Lewis Griffith of Salem; a brother, H. C. Spaulding of Newberg; and three grandchildren, David, Lorah Jo, and Donald Price, all of Washouq, and Charles Hanson of Stayton.

Hopmen Told

Ballard said that whether the hop growers liked governmental control together with subsidies, such aids to producers, probably moderated somewhat, would remain for many years to come.

"The six million farmers of the nation will be asking for federal aid," he said, "and when they get the financial aid regulation will naturally come with it."

Hop Research Program—A hop research program conducted jointly by the state experiment stations in Oregon, Washington, California and Idaho and the United States agriculture department was explained to the hop growers by Dr. K. D. Keller, who is in charge of the survey.

The morning session of the convention opened with the showing of a film produced by John I. Haas, Inc., hop operators in three western states, showing hop growing operations from early spring until the crop has been picked and baled and shipped to market.

The afternoon session, with Dean H. Walker, president, included the showing of a film depicting the California hop inspection service and a market agreement panel discussion.

Friday night the annual banquet of the association will be held at the Crystal Gardens with Robert F. Maguire, Portland attorney, as the principal speaker. Walter Leth, former county agent of Monmouth, will be toastmaster. Large attendance made it necessary to move the banquet from the hotel to the Crystal Gardens.

Saturday morning the convention will hear a talk by Senator Wayne Morse, who is making a special trip from Eastern Oregon to meet the hopmen. Following the address the delegates and their wives, now numbering in excess of 300, will make an inspection of the Salem plant of Sick's brewery company, with a Dutch lunch to follow the trip through the plant. Steve Tabachi, brewmaster, gave the convention a talk on the history of brewing at the Thursday afternoon session.

Judge Prods Man Into Court Proposal

Newark, N.J., Feb. 10 (AP)—A shy, unmarried father finally proposed to the mother of his child yesterday, thanks to a judicial nudge.

The man appeared in family court in a paternity suit involving a child born last June.

"Have you ever thought of marrying this girl?" the magistrate asked, pointing to the unwed mother.

"I would have married her if she had asked me," he said.

The judge looked startled. "Does she have to ask you? Can't you ask her?" he questioned.

The man hung his head. "Well, ask her," the judge encouraged.

"Will you marry me?" the man shyly asked the girl.

"Sure," she said.

Case dismissed.

Fuchs Admits

The mild-mannered Fuchs, a wartime refugee from the Nazis, merely blinked his eyes behind his thick spectacles as the prosecutor, Christmas Humphreys, labelled him a "political fanatic on the payroll of a foreign power."

The prosecution produced a statement it said was signed by Fuchs, describing himself as a "schizophrenic" (split personality) who had divided his mind into two compartments. One permitted him to carry on agreeable contacts with those around him at the Harwell atom plant. The other established him as a member of the forces of society.

In the statement, Fuchs was said to have asserted that when he learned the kind of work he was to do in Britain "I decided to inform Russia and I established contact through another member of the communist party."

"Since that time I have had continuous contact with persons completely unknown to me except that they would give information to the Russians," the statement said.

"At this time I had complete confidence in the Russian policy and I had no hesitation in giving all the information I had. "I believed deliberately the western allies allowed Germany and Russia to fight each other to the death."

Paid Money by Russia—Humphreys, in his opening statement, declared that Fuchs received money from Russian agents after he began giving them atomic research secrets in 1942.

Fuchs, described as a brilliant physicist, was interned in England in 1940 but was released in 1942 to aid in British A-bomb research. He was given naturalization papers and came to the United States in 1943 with a British research team to work with Americans on the atom bomb.

At various times during the war he visited both the Oak Ridge, Tenn., uranium plant and the laboratory at Los Alamos, N. Mex., where the world's first atomic bomb was produced and exploded.

Testimony that Fuchs confessed was given at the preliminary hearing before Chief Magistrate Laurence Dunne by Security Officer William James Skardon. Fuchs was questioned by Skardon at Harwell atomic research establishment where Fuchs was employed as chief theoretical physicist.

Dieticians Coming—The mid-winter meeting of the Oregon State Dietetic association will be held at the state library Saturday starting at 10 o'clock. ## School Program Meet Called Representatives of a number of service organizations and substantial taxpayers have been asked by the Salem board of education to discuss the school district's growing problems and methods of financing a building program during a conference called for 8 o'clock next Tuesday night at the school administration offices on North High street.

A similar conference was held early this week in which a smaller group of representative citizens were asked to express their views concerning the school situation. At that time plans for a $3,000,000 high school in south Salem and additions to grade buildings were discussed. A bond issue of $3,730,000 is a possibility.

Citizens of the district will probably be called upon to pass judgment on a bond issue some time in May.

A large upswing in the number of births as well as a smaller rate of immigration will necessitate enlarged classroom facilities, school heads state.

Olson Sold to Victoria Club

Olson had a record of 17 wins and 10 losses in 1948 and an even 11 wins and 11 losses last season.
