

Bearcats Tighten Hold on Loop Lead in Wildcat Win

Willamette university's gang of sophomore cagers posted their seventh win of the Northwest conference season at the expense of the Linfield Wildcats at McMinnville Friday night, 59 to 57. The triumph entrenched Coach Johnny Lewis' Bearcats a full two and a half games in the first place position.

Willamette was given an assist by the College of Idaho who turned back the Pacific Badgers at Caldwell, 51 to 43. Lewis and Clark appeared particularly potent as they slaughtered the Whitman Missionaries at Walla Walla, 62 to 36 in the first of two game series.

The Bearcat win was not without its anxious moments, particularly in the late stages of the tilt, when the Wildcats pulled up within three points as they put on a desperate bid under both backboards in a final drive.

But the steadiness of the Willamette sophomores stood them in good stead as they cally sank a series of free tosses to regain the upper hand. Hugh Bellinger tossed in four in a row from the charity mark at a critical moment. After that the Wildcats drifted rapidly to the rear as Willamette won going away.

As for field goals the two quints were almost equal, Willamette sinking 24 to Linfield's 23. The remarkable foul shooting of the Bearcats stood them in good stead as they potted 21 out of 28 chances. Linfield flubbed 13 chances.

Linfield took an early lead on buckets by Bill Anderson and Neil Abrahamson and Willamette didn't pull up until the five minute mark had been reached. A 17-15 margin for the Bearcats didn't last long but after Ted Loder and Hugh Bellinger teamed up to give Willamette a 42-31 margin at the half. Dick Brouwer had been particularly effective for Willamette in the early stages of the mix.

Linfield chopped seven points off the Bearcat bulge during the first few minutes of the second half but the Willamette cagers spurted again as Doug Logue fired three quick baskets.

Willamette had a phenomenal firing average of better than .500 for the first half.

Next week's schedule brings the Portland Pilots to Salem Tuesday night (a non-conference tilt) and sends the Bearcats back to Pacific's narrow court February 18.

Mulligan Buys Look-See Hurler

Portland, Ore., Feb. 11 (AP)—General Manager William Mulligan of the Portland Beavers Basketball club said today William Elberg, righthanded pitcher with Newark of the International league, had been obtained by Portland on a look-see basis.

Elberg won six and lost seven with Newark in 1949. He is owned by the New York Yankees.

Idle Viks Check Records, Find Gilson's Average Top

Coach Harold Hauk's Viking cagers sat back over the weekend during their idle time and opened the scoring books to look over the summary of their nineteen games played thus far.

Leading the Vik cagers in scoring average is Layton Gilson, the boy who was on the third string at the beginning of the season and now has copped a berth on the starting quint. Gilson's average up to date is .416.

Lanky Forward Doug Rogers is the high-point man with 178, and is followed by Captain Daryl Girod who claims 166 points.

In the tabulation the players are listed in order of the scoring average.

Of the regulars, Gilson holds the best average total shots plus errors divided by goals. The lowest percentage is best in this case. Lawrence Bagette actually holds the best average for the entire squad.

Girod has the best free throw average on the squad having converted 54 of his 76 gift shots for a .723 percentage.

Jim Rock has the most fouls with 58 called against him thus far in season play.

In the error department Dick Norton has played errorless ball throughout the season. Girod has the most with 55.

The team has scored 909 points in nineteen games which gives the Vikings an average of 47.8 points per game. Also the Viks have converted 287 free throws out of 478 attempted. The team total scoring average is .312.

Hauk's crew only has five games remaining on the regular schedule before entering the district 11 tourney to be held starting February 27.

'Satch' Waivers Asked in Move to Release Hurler

Cleveland, Feb. 11 (AP)—Slow-moving Satchel Paige drew his walking papers from Cleveland today — plus its plaudits for a job "well done."

In a move that seemed to spell the end of the big league road for the ancient Negro pitcher, the Indians announced they have asked waivers on the gangling Paige for the purpose of giving him his unconditional release.

Before cutting him loose, however, General Manager Hank Greenberg said:

"He did the job asked of him in bringing us six victories toward the pennant in 1948. We want to release him now so he can make his own plans for the coming season."

Paige, the colorful, shuffling right-hander who stubbornly clung to the questionable claim that he was only 43 years old, indicated he will return to Negro baseball where he won fame and fortune and whence he came to Cleveland in July of 1948.

The gangling, sleepy-looking Paige, of scant help to the Indians last year, was a tremendous drawing card nevertheless with his bizarre "hesitation" pitch, his double and triple wind-up. Crowds flocked to see him in every city of the circuit, the climax coming last Aug. 20 when 78,342 fans—largest throng ever to witness a night game—cramped Comiskey Park to see him subdue the White Sox, 1 to 0.

He won four and lost seven last season.

Enfilade, dam of a C. V. Whitney two-year-old named The Veen in honor of Vice President Alben Barkley, was the winner of the Rosedale Stakes at Jamaica in 1945.

Greatest Man O' War

named the greatest thoroughbred since 1900 in the Associated Press mid-century poll, is shown here in 1939 at Faraway Farm, near Lexington, Ky. He was then 22 years old. He won 20 out of 21 starts before being retired to stud in 1921. After his death Nov. 1, 1947, a statue of the great chestnut flyer was placed near his grave as a memorial.

Skits and Scratches

A Good Selection

Contracting Bill Beard for a catching assignment with the Salem Senators is a good move as most fans will agree. Relieved of the managerial chores, which doubtless interfered with his work at the plate last year, Bill should boost his hitting percentage several points during the approaching season. A conscientious worker and well versed in the receiver's job, Bill should be a big help in handling the pitchers, who, as a rule, are none too experienced in Western International competition. Bill's selection had the enthusiastic Bill at the player Liska, the submarine pitcher who succeeded Bill at the player helm. And while Beard has accepted a minor role in baseball, he has not given up his ambition to become a full time manager. Probably Bill's chief weakness was his failure to get tough with the men under him when they needed a good talking to. Certainly nobody could ask for a more considerate boss.

More Lives Than a Cat

It is possible that the issue of who is to operate the Salem Senators won't be determined until the night the first ball is tossed next April. One would suspect as much judging by the on again, off again dickering that has been in progress during the past several months. The local group of business and professional men who entered into the picture when the plan of general public ownership fell flat, state they have the money with which to operate and have presented a proposal to the owners which they believe is fair. Absence of George Norgan, principal owner of the parent Portland club, is now blamed for a lack of response to the latest move in the game of checkers.

Fan Interest Centered

What is of more importance and interest to the fans, who after all must determine financial success of the venture, is whether a winning combination will be placed on the field. Ownership, of course is important. But a losing team, regardless of who holds the franchise, won't pay off in this community in a financial way. Through all of the dickering, Business Manager George Emigh has been working hard to secure the necessary players. He believes he has secured the foundation for a good infield and if he succeeds in his ambition to gain possession of a half dozen top notch pitchers, the club will be set for a good season.

Bearcat Backers Wake Up

Next Wednesday at the Roosevelt hotel in Portland, the Portland Bearcat club will meet to discuss prospects and possibilities for stronger athletic clubs at Willamette university. An invitation, a three color job compiled by Fred Arpe, secretary of the Portland group, is being widely circulated. The occasion will present Coach Chester Stackhouse with his first opportunity to appear before the Portland group. Johnny Lewis, basketball coach, Dr. G. Herbert Smith, Charles Paeth, director of admissions and Travis Cross, in charge of the department of information, will also appear on the program.

Ticket Sale Here

Salem high and the Oregon State Rooks will meet for the second time this season Tuesday night, the contest being scheduled for the Gill pavilion court. Heretofore prep games involving the Rooks have been played in the afternoon and Tuesday night's program marks the first time a preliminary has been slated before a conference session. Tickets have been placed on sale at Maple's for the Tuesday night program, as well as the one Wednesday night. University of Idaho will play Coach Slat's quint both nights.

Blues and Greys Tied in Junior Home Stretch Race

Salem's junior high circuit heads into the home-stretch next week following action Friday night which put the Leslie Blues and Parrish Greys into a tie atop the league standings. The highlight of the fifth round-saw the Blues dump the Parrish Pioneers 46-39. The setback dropped the Pioneers out of first place picture. Parrish Grey's quint keep pace with the Blues by edging the winless Leslie Greys to the tune of 27-24 on the Leslie court. On the West Salem court the Parrish Cardinal quint eked out a 32-31 decision over the West Salem Giant five. In the "B" game prelims preceding the varsity tilts the Blues topped the Pioneers 25-24, the

Graham Conquers Galivan in Upset New York Bout

New York, Feb. 11 (AP)—Handsome Billy Graham, upset conqueror of Cuban Kid Gavilan, was given the choice today of taking a shot at Sugar Ray Robinson's welterweight crown or meeting Gavilan in a return bout.

Irish Billy of New York, a 4-1 underdog, won a split 10-round decision over the speedy Havana "Keed" before 11,812 at Madison Square Garden last night.

The statuesque, brown-haired son of an East Side saloon-keeper surprised the fans by carrying the fight to Galivan in every round. His tactics were unexpected, for his punch and his speed had been rated inferior to those of brown-skinned Galivan, who already has fought champion Robinson twice—once for the title.

Graham's solid left jabs to the face and his right smashes to the body gave him a close but defined margin of victory.

Webfoots Turn Hot to Trim Beavers, 45 to 34

Eugene, Feb. 11 (AP)—The University of Oregon's cellar-dwelling basketball team trounced Oregon State 45-34 in an upset last night.

The biggest crowd ever to see a basketball game here—8,110—cheered as the home team surged into an early lead and held it against the third-place Beavers. Oregon was in good form while the OSC five was badly off in shooting and never made it a contest.

Midway in the first half the Ducks led 17-8 and at the intermission their margin was 31-16. In the second half Oregon State whittled away but never got closer than 10 points to the leaders.

Oregon's scoring was paced by Guard Mel Krause with 10. Forward Will Urban tallied 9 and was the key figure in floor play.

Assistant Coach Don Kirsch handled the Ducks in the absence of Coach John Warren, ill with pneumonia.

In other division action, the University of Idaho Vandals stole the ball, then stole the ball game last night as they prevailed the other Northern division's upset.

The Vandals eked out a 51-50 victory over the division-leading Washington State college Cougars, performing their larceny in the last 10 seconds under the nose of the timer's poised final gun.

In a non-conference fray at Seattle, the second-place University of Washington Huskies wound up 20 points behind the Ball-hogging Wyoming Cowboys of the Skyline six, dropping a 49-29 decision despite parading 17 players into the contest.

The Vandals, counted out of contention after losing their first five straight contests, have reversed their field in taking their last three games.

Fearless Rizzuto Shakes At Sniff of Salt Breeze

By OSCAR FRALEY (United Press Sports Writer)

New York, Feb. 11 (AP)—Look at Phil (The Scooter) Rizzuto and you get the idea that for a mile of his minor displacement to become a major league star he must be absolutely fearless—yet the "mighty mouse" of the New York Yankees said today that just isn't so.

Phil can pirouette his 160 pounds on a double play relay and nonchalantly fire the ball to first with a 200-pounder bearing down on him under a full head of steam—preceded by two size 11s filled with cleats.

But don't mention deep sea fishing to the little man whose courage and ability won the New York baseball writers' award as the most valuable player of 1949.

"I'll do my fishing off a pier," the Scooter insisted. "First of all, I get seasick. Second, I'm scared of that deep water."

Three years in the navy didn't ever cure him of chronic seasickness, Rizzuto said. Even a picture of the "Mighty Mo" can make his stomach do barrel rolls.

"Even on a big ship I had my troubles," he explained, his brown eyes pathetic with the memories.

"But I'll tell you why nobody can lure me on a boat for deep sea fishing anymore," Phil continued. "A few years ago when the Yanks were training in St. Petersburg we had a pitcher named Herb Karpel. One day he asked me to go out with him and I defied my stomach and went along."

The two Yankees hired a boat with an outboard motor and coasted out into the Gulf about six or seven miles, trawling and making a good haul. "Then the motor stopped," Phil recalled. "I grabbed the starting rope and gave it a pull—and the rope flew out of my hands and fell overboard."

Vik Sophomores Defeat Detroit

Coach Ken Brophy's Salem high sophomore cage teams trounced the Detroit A and B squads in a pair of games Friday night at the Vik Villa.

The varsity score was 50-42 while the prelim was won by 28-17 margin.

The sophomore crew's schedule has only games with Independence and Gervais remaining on it before ending the season.

Aumville Moves Into Title Game On Sublimity Win

The Aumville high school Rangers will meet Mill City on the Sublimity court next Wednesday night to determine the championship of the southern division of the Marion County B league. This was determined Friday night when the Rangers measured Sublimity, 37 to 31 on Willamette university's floor.

The Rangers trailed, 16 to 14 at the half.
