Fire Escape Law Of '47 in Effect

State Fire Marshal Robert B. Taylor, in a statement issued today, called attention to the amendment to the fire escape law enacted by the state legislature in 1947 which requires that all unprotected vertical openings in all buildings three or more stories in height in which people sleep, shall be safely and properly enclosed not later than July 5 of this year.

Included among such occupancies coming within the scope of the act are hotels, rooming houses, apartment buildings, hospitals, nursing homes, boarding schools and the like. The assistance of apartment and hotel and hospital associations as well as other groups and organizations will be enlisted by the fire marshal to make sure that the requirements of the law are understood by all who come under its provisions.

Designed to assist in avoiding the occurrence of large loss-of-life fires which have stricken communities in other parts of the United States, the act provided a period of grace of three years from its passage in order to permit the necessary changes to be made in existing buildings. This grace period expires next July 5 and Fire Marshal Taylor expects conformity by all affected structures by that time.

Marquis Childs Talks on Truman

Eugene, Feb. 18 (AP)—President Truman no longer has a group of economic advisers around him. His council of economic advisers have become politicians and not real advisers, Marquis Childs, Washington correspondent and noted columnist, told the 31st annual Oregon press conference Friday.

Childs said that a number of noted economists who have been approached to head the council have turned down the job because the role of "yes man" does not appeal to them. The columnist also lashed out at the growing reluctance of President Truman to release information to the press.

"President Truman has come to feel about the press more or less as President Roosevelt felt towards the end of the new deal," said Childs. This is reflected in a tendency to avoid press conferences, withhold information and look upon the press as intruders and not conveyors of information to the public.

The columnist feels that not enough information regarding the hydrogen bomb has been released to permit the public to form an intelligent opinion regarding its use. He also called for more interpretive reporting on the part of newspapers and less reliance of official hand-outs.

At the annual banquet in the evening, gold keys, given as Voorhies awards, were presented to eleven publishers or representatives. Names of the men who were honored for outstanding newspaper service in the state, appear on the original Voorhies plaque and the keys are a new form of personalized award.

Those honored were Harvey W. Scott, C. S. Jackson, Asahel Bush, Amos E. Voorhies, Eric W. Allen, Charles A. Sprague, William M. Tugman, Merle E. Chessman, Robert W. Sawyer, George S. Turnbull and Verne McKinney.

Imbedded Windshield Blade Has Surprise

Stayton—The long arm of coincidence in the form of a windshield swipe blade brought an oddity to the North Santiam garage this week.

Returning from a trip to Jefferson, Louis Scofield, North Santiam farmer, had a flat and took it to the garage for repair. Marvin Overhols, owner of the garage, found a four inch piece of a windshield blade had become imbedded.

Wednesday evening as Howard Ross was driving the Freres Building Supply truck from Jefferson to Stayton, he also had a flat and brought it to the same garage. It was with much surprise that Overhols removed a two-inch piece of the same blade from the truck tire. The two pieces matched perfectly.

Miners Renew

Cole said Lewis had assured him and Ching that his new back-to-work order last night was sent out "in good faith."

Court Hearing Monday
It was on that basis that Cole expressed belief output would be resumed Monday.

Cole and Ching told reporters of that feeling after they had reported to President Truman this morning.

Fixing of the 2 p. m. hour for resumed contract talks, Cole said, had nothing to do with the fact that a hearing will come up in federal court at 10 a. m. on the question of extending the present 10-day no-strike order into a regular 80-day Taft-Hartley injunction. Neither he, said, had it any connection with whether the men go back to the pits Monday.

"I don't think these meetings are contingent on whether the miners go back or not," he said.

Vogeler Enters

He was on the stand for two hours during the morning when he answered questions readily and with no signs of weariness nor emotion. Recalled to the stand in the afternoon, he declared:

"I am sorry for the detrimental deeds I committed against this country and I ask for a mild sentence."

The court said it would take Vogeler's leniency plea under consideration. It could not be learned immediately what possible penalty Vogeler faces.

Vogeler told the court he had been instructed by his superiors to commit sabotage by buying useless material and stocks for the Standard Electric company, an I. T. & T. subsidiary in Hungary, and to sabotage deliveries for the Soviet Union and other eastern European countries.

The indictment against Vogeler and the others accuses them in part of deliberately decreasing the productive output of the Standard concern to the detriment of the country.

29 Death Toll

The dead, dying and injured were piled five deep atop one another. They sprawled grotesquely amid the twisted steel of the cars, the shattered glass and crushed seats.

Police said that the eastbound train ran through a red stop signal as it entered the siding. The first car had almost cleared the single track when the west-bound train, coming down double tracks on the other approach to the siding, crashed into it at a 15 degree angle.

The impact of the collision sheared the leading cars of both trains in half. The steel sides of the two coaches were torn and intermingled.

The two trains carried some 1000 passengers, many of whom had crowded into the forward cars. All the dead and injured were from the metropolitan area.
