Salem Avalanche Rolls to Loop Crown on Miller Win

Harold Hauk's basketball team Saturday that didn't feel that he had a share in boosting the Vik-ings into the 1950 Big Six league

And every player had a good reason to feel that way. Hauk cleared the bench Friday night in the clincher with the Springfield Millers, but the second and even third platoons poured it on to win, 73-38.

The regulars-Captain Daryl Girod, Larry Chamberlain, Jim Rock, Layton Gilson and Doug Rogers—set the theme of walkaway during the first quarter when they blistered the backboards for a 26-6

During that period, Girod hooped five points, Chamber-lain three, Rock seven, Gilson eight and Rogers three.

The other quarter scores told about the same story, with dif-ferent names substituted for the starting lineup. The halftime tally was 40-15 for the Viks and the scoreboard read 57-25 at the third period buzzer.

Unpredictable as the sophomores may be at times, the very fact that the unexpected may happen and frequently does, adds spice to the program. Ever since taking over the coaching chores at Willamette, Lewis has been seeking a combination that could put on a fast break program. He has succeeded fairly well in this connection this season, principally because his players are young and have the desire. And speaking of fouls, Lewis would have officials recognize the "deliberate foul" rule as bit more. It has been in the rule book a long time but officials seldom if ever recognize it. Coutrary to belief held in some quarters, President G. Herbert Smith of Willamette university is a strong advocate of athletics. Naturally he holds to the belief that most colleges and universities operate for the purpose of educating young men and women, but there wouldn't have been an investment of $100,000 in an athletic field and more to come if he did not believe that athletics had a prominent place in campus life. Institutions that cannot fall back on the taxpayers for financial assistance must work out their own problems in this connection. Scholarships are available for those who can quality and for the sake of "Stack Stackhouse we hope a number of strapping young men can make the grade.
