The university's board of re-gents asked the businessmen's downtown boosters club Saturday to please remit on the money owned for tuition, feeding and housing athletes sup-ported by club scholarships.

Specifically the university wants $10,000 by April 15 and another $24,000 over a 10-year period. The balance, the re-gents said, would be discussed at an April session.

About 40 scholarships were in effect during football season. The club was unable to put up the money. So the uni-versity footed the bill until the businessmen could get some cash. Right now they are $45,000 short.

To get good players "we have to pay them well," said George Southworth, Jr., president of the boosters.

Harry Frost, chairman of the university board of athletic control, added:
"The University of San Francisco and St. Mary's give five times as much in schol-arships as Nevada does."
