70 Protesting Tum Tum Dam

A delegation of some 60 to 70 Lincoln and Benton county residents was due to meet with Governor Douglas McKay at 2 p.m. Monday to protest plans for Tum Tum dam on the south fork of Mary's river. The project was recently listed as having won presidential approval. Elmo Wehnert, a spokesman for the delegation, said he was prepared to advise the governor that county courts of both Lincoln and Benton counties were opposed to the dam along with local organizations of the Farmers' union and the grange. The project has been aimed at flood control, along with creating surplus water for elimination of pollution downstream and a recreation area. The basis for the opposition stand is made on all three counts. They contend that the Tum Tum dam will be built at the same time as the Mary's crest at Philomath so that the tributary crest is not added to the down river waters at peak flood time. They also contend that Willamette river water backs into the area. Wehnert quoted a survey which pointed out that flood control could be achieved by clearing the stream and removing a downstream dam. The pollution problem downstream from the damsite is the product of cesspool overflows and opponents of the project contend the pollution problem should be solved at its source.

Students Throng to Trial—A crowd of high school students jammed the courthouse corridor Monday afternoon trying to gain entrance to the trial in which parents of students who allegedly violated the rule against secret societies brought action against the school board. The students were expelled, then permitted to return when the court issued a temporary injunction. The students trying to get in as spectators were not permitted in the courtroom.

Before leaving Texas, however, Barry and Gerhart said they believed the missing men might be on Ashdown island, a tiny strip adjacent to Princess Royal.

Search crews from the Canadian destroyer Cayuga and four U.S. coast guard cutters crisscrossed the tiny island Saturday without success. Meanwhile, rescue officials had nothing but praise for the conduct of Lt. Charles G. Pooler, Beloit, Kas., the 12th member of the crew to be brought out safely.

He was returned to McChord air force base, near Tacoma, Wash., last night in a flight C-47, fourth rescue squadron C-47 from Port Hardy, B.C. Pooler is in remarkably good condition," said Col. Hervey Porter, air force doctor, after an examination of the injured man. "He has a simple fracture of the right ankle and a mild case of frostbite of the right ankle."

Although too tired to be interviewed, Pooler's story was pieced together from other participants in the now seven-day-old search who accompanied him back. "He did everything just right," they declared. They gave this account of his experiences: When the 36-year-old engineer plummeted into the darkness, his parachute snagged on a tree and left him swinging 40 feet in the air. It was believed that his angle was broken then when he cut himself down.

"The Hoover Report as a Guide to Government Economy" is the topic for Mr. Young's talk. The interested public is invited, the program to be at 8 o'clock.

Search

Besides Minton and Clark, the majority today was made up of Chief Justice Vinson and Justices Reed and Burton. Frankfurter was joined in his dissent by Justice Jackson and Justice Black wrote a separate dissent. Justice Douglas took no part in the case.

Specifically, the tribunal approved the search of Albert J. Rabinowitz's one-room stamp sales office at 276 West 43rd street, New York City. The officers made the search after arresting Rabinowitz on a warrant charging him with selling four altered postage stamps. While the officers had a warrant for his arrest, they did not have a search warrant.

Altered Postage Stamps—Rabinowitz objected to the search but the officers went ahead. They took several thousand canceled stamps for examination. Most of them were returned. But 573 were made the basis of a new charge that Rabinowitz possessed and concealed altered postage stamps.

The government charged that Rabinowitz was implicated in a scheme to defraud stamp collectors by selling them stamps on which "overprints" had been forged. Overprints are scarce and they thus have an extra value to collectors.

Today's decision means that Rabinowitz must pay the $1000 fine assessed on the possession charge. Papers in the case filed here do not show the final disposition of the stamp sale case.

Other Cases Decided—In another case involving warrants, the tribunal held, 6 to 2, that a home owner may refuse to admit a city health inspector unless he has court approval for a search. The case involved Mrs. Geraldine Little, who was fined $25 in municipal court here on a charge of interfering with a public health officer.

On other matters, the court today: Set aside, 6 to 1, a deportation order against a Chinese seaman on grounds that the immigration service used a short-cut law rather than one that would have caused the government more trouble and expense. The seaman, Wong Yank Sung, has a been living here.

2. Held, 5 to 3, that even though an alien is unwilling because of religious views to serve in the American army as a non-combatant he still is entitled to citizenship. The case involved German-born Martin Ludwig Cohenstaedt, a teacher at Sterling (Kas.) college.

3. Rejected, 7 to 1, the claim of a condemned Georgia prisoner, George W. Solesbee, that he should have been granted a court hearing on his sanity instead of a finding by three doctors appointed by the governor. Solesbee is under sentence to die in the electric chair for killing a salesman.

Court Extends

Rayburn said there was only general discussion of the coal situation at the White House conference. He said Mr. Truman told them he was "expecting some kind of report" later today on the situation. Presumably, this is a report from his fact-finding board and mediation officials keeping in touch with developments.

In congress, there was sentiment expressed in the senate for legislation permitting the government to seize the mines in an effort to end the strike. Some lawmakers noted that the senate already had included such a provision in a Taft-Hartley substitute which was never acted on by the house.

President Truman said two weeks ago—and the White House repeated Saturday—that the president doesn't have seizure power now and doesn't want it. But the question of a contempt against the union was another matter entirely.
