Anniversary for Study Grant Plan

The American Association of University Women is this month celebrating the fifth anniversary of its program of international grants through which the Association finances study in the United States by women students from war devastated countries, reports the Salem branch.

In February 1945, three months before VE Day the AAUW Fellowship funds committee met to launch this idea, and by September of that year enough money had been contributed by AAUW branches to bring six women from countries which had recently been liberated to the United States for study.

This semester, as the sixth year of the program starts, there are 35 women from 14 countries in the United States on AAUW International Grants. In 29 United States colleges and universities, these women, most of them already leaders in their fields at home, are gaining knowledge and acquiring techniques which they can take back to use in the reconstruction of their home lands. In the five years of the program's operation 155 women from 20 countries have gained needed education in their special fields or professions by study in the United States.
