

Scribes Rooting for Oil Capitol In Derby — He Makes Writing Easy

Miami, Fla. — If Oil Capitol wins the Kentucky Derby the sports writers will not want for material. The Oklahoma Gusher is a grey turned black, has a misspelled name, forms a one-horse stable and eats, of all things, boiled dandelion greens.

The unusual diet helped the colt named for the city of Tulsa to finish 1949 with four straight wins, three of them in major stake races, explains Trainer Harry Trotsek.

"I decided to try boiled dandelion greens last summer after Oil Capitol went off his feed and began to lose weight," says Trotsek. "He began to pick up immediately, and has been going good ever since."

Oil Capitol also has a sweet tooth. He is partial to sugared doughnuts.

After the son of Mahmoud, a grey sire, was selected as the best 2-year-old colt, the boys who write racing began digging. They learned that his name should have been spelled Oil Capital and that The Jockey club registration clerks made the error. Also, on the books he is a registered grey but he actually is black in color with only a few grey hairs on his legs.

He is the only horse owned by Tom Gray, Tulsa automobile dealer. Gray thought of buying a horse two summers ago and phoned his friend Trotsek in Detroit. They met a few days later in Lexington, Ky., at the yearling sales, and got the colt for $15,000. The investment has been returned many times over, as Oil Capitol won $108,000 as a juvenile. Recently, Gray turned down a $40,000 offer for the colt.

The horse is being pointed for the $50,000 Flamingo on March 3 at Hialeah. His main rival probably will be Calumet Farm's Theory, who is being counted on to give Trainer Ben Jones his sixth Derby winner.

Jones, incidentally, points out that Oil Capitol "is the only one that has proved he can go the Derby distance of a mile and a quarter." The reference is the longest big race for juveniles, the Pimlico Futurity, which Oil Capitol won by six lengths last fall.

Washington and Oregon Game Men Study Equal Fees

Walla Walla, Feb. 21 (AP)—Washington, Oregon and Idaho game commissions have sat down together today to find a common ground for the equalization of non-resident hunting and fishing license fees.

The fees now vary from state to state with Washington charging a regular $5 non-resident fee but assessing Idaho hunters $10 and those from Oregon $15 to equal the non-resident fees of those states.

In separate session yesterday, the Washington commission heard state inspectors report that all game but chukars and quail in eastern Washington come through the winter without heavy losses.

Holy Cross First Team In Decade to Win 22

New York, Feb. 21 (AP)—Unbeaten Holy Cross, the nation's No. 1 college basketball power, is the first team in more than 10 years to roll up 22 straight victories.

Not since 1939 has any team gone through its first 22 games without a setback. In that season, Long Island University recorded 24 consecutive triumphs without a defeat, a mark Holy Cross can tie by downing Boston college and Brown next Saturday.

The Crusaders, top-ranking quintet in the Associated Press poll, also can be the first major team in six years to finish with a spotless record. Army's 1944 squad (15-0) was the last to turn the elusive trick, according to figures of the national collegiate athletic bureau.

However, Boston college figures to be tough for Holy Cross. The Eagles, though sporting an unimpressive 10-6 record, upset highly regarded Villanova Saturday and now are out to avenge an early-season 93-46 lullacking by Holy Cross.

Other games on the Crusader schedule include Valparaiso, New York AC, Columbia and Yale. The last three are road games.

Meanwhile, several conference races across the country are tightening to a bustling point.

St. Louis and Bradley play a return engagement at Peoria, Ill., tonight with the coveted Missouri Valley title hanging in the balance. Each club has an identical 7-1 league mark. Bradley, ranked second nationally, beat the Billikens, 54-45, last month at St. Louis.

The Southeastern title comes up for grabs Saturday night at Lexington, Ky., where Kentucky, shooting for a fourth straight crown, entertains Vanderbilt. Vandy has an 11-2 league mark, Kentucky 10-2.

Washington State (10-4) controls the northern division of the Pacific coast conference while UCLA (7-1) rules the southern sector.
