

Rescued Canadian Pilot Showed Courage, Endurance

Edmonton, Alberta, March 2 (AP)—The story of a 20-year-old northern pilot's courage and endurance while marooned on a Yukon mountainside for four days in freezing weather today was pieced together as the youth lay in a hospital here, undergoing treatment for frozen feet and other injuries.

The pilot, Morris Grant of Whitehorse, was flown here today by Canadian Pacific Airlines, after he had been brought out of the wilderness near the Yukon-British Columbia border by the combined work of airplanes and a para-rescue team.

His feet swathed in gauze and his nose badly gashed, Grant told part of the story before hospital authorities ruled he should not be questioned further.

Grant, who operated his own private flying service, said he took a passenger from Atlin, B. C., to Taku Arm, 96 miles south of Whitehorse, Y. T., then started south.

"I was climbing over a ridge of mountains at about 6,000 feet, six miles south of Taku when I noticed gasoline starting to drip down the side of the cockpit. I was flying an old Tiger Moth. I swung around to get back to Taku when the engine quit.

"The mountains were about 5,500 feet high and I plowed right into one.

"I hit my eye on the front of the cockpit. I was dazed for quite a while and walked around a bit. I was away above the timber line. There was no wood.

"I tore fabric from the plane and built a fire to warm myself. I slept for about four or five hours in the wrecked plane and then started to walk down towards timberline."

House Group Balks Educational Bill

Washington, March 2 (AP)—The house labor committee balked today at approving aid to education until President Truman assures there will be no federal controls over the schools.

By a divided 13 to 11 vote, the committee adopted a resolution to this effect by Rep. Kearns (R-Pa.).

It also voted to take a senate-passed aid bill as a basis for working out a compromise of differences which have blocked a school bill in committee.

Although due to wind up its work March 6, Chairman Lesinski (D-Mich.) said the committee intends to go beyond that date "if necessary."

The Kearns resolution was regarded as a direct slap at federal security administrator Oscar Ewing.

Willamina — Linda Riley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwards of Grand Ronde, won second place in the interpretive reading section of the 18th annual high school forensics tournament at Linfield college. Miss Riley won on a reading of "The Man with No Eyes" by McKinley Kantor. She was one of eight girls and one boy who competed in the tournament from the Willamina high school. Twenty-six high schools with 263 contestants were represented.

Acheson Talks Big 3 Parley

Washington, March 2 (AP)—Secretary of State Acheson said today a meeting of the foreign ministers of Britain, the United States and France might well be needed this spring. He added that no conclusions on the possibility of such a session have been reached.

Asked specifically whether a big three meeting on far eastern policy is under consideration, Acheson said he did not know.

Actually, top state department officials had considered in recent weeks that a meeting of Acheson and Foreign Minister Bevin of Britain on British-American issues might soon be necessary following the British election last Thursday. On all questions directly involving French interests, Foreign Minister Schuman of France would obviously take part—making it a three power session.

Acheson also took occasion at his news conference to give full support to a proposal advanced by United States High Commissioner John J. McCloy at Frankfurt yesterday for free elections in all Germany, including the Soviet-held east zone.

On other questions Acheson:

1. Reported that most consular officials and their families in China will begin leaving their posts for the homeward journey this month. The state department, however, still has not ing, annexation and public recreation coming to the top as chief causes of concern in the majority of localities.

Mayor Jess Savage, Albany, welcomed the more than 30 city officials and aides.

Hollis Smith, League of Oregon Cities president, outlined the purpose of the meeting, explaining that he, Deane Seeger, league consultant; Herman Kehrl, league executive secretary, and Arnold M. Westling, Eugene, of the bureau of municipal research, are conducting the meetings to garner information of the needs of Oregon's cities for incorporation into the policies of the state organization.

In regard to daylight saving time, Mayor George Peavy said Corvallis is "going to stay put until we are shoved around," and offered to submit a resolution opposing the artificial day.

Seeger, however, said only via statewide vote could this question be effectively disposed of, noting that such a vote is scheduled in November via referendum of a legislative act empowering the governor to decree daylight saving time.

Miss Eileen Smith To Rule Over Fete

Sheridan—Miss Eileen Smith, daughter of Mrs. William Hampton of this city, and prominent member of the Sheridan high school senior class, was elected queen of the 1950 May court at a student body election. Runner-up for the honor is Eleanor Schulz, who will be maid of honor. Princesses of the court are Marjorie Williams, Ann Beardslee, Donna Tatam, Mary Ivie, Barbara Byrkit and Joycelyn Judd. The 1950 May day celebration is scheduled for Saturday, May 6.

NEW DURKEE AA SEAL OFFERS PUBLIC A GUIDE TO MARGARINE GOODNESS

It Readily Identifies The Margarine of Excellent Flavor, Texture and Purity

Durkee Famous Foods announces an important forward step for margarine users: A way to judge margarine quality without hit or miss methods.

This is the introduction of Durkee's own Grade AA Margarine. Be sure each pound of margarine you buy bears the red Durkee AA Seal of Superiority. This assures your family of the finest it is possible for us to produce.

Margarine bearing this seal contains only prime vegetable oils. Purity of fat-free milk used, and potency of vitamins employed also are of unquestioned quality. These, and other safeguards in the new Durkee Code of Production offer you a dependable guide to quality.

GRADE AA FLAVOR—First requirement under the new Durkee Code is that only prime domestic vegetable oils be used. Inasmuch as Durkee is a major producer of fine edible oils, an adequate supply of top grades is assured. This is important. It makes Durkee's own Grade AA Margarine one of the best for frying, cooking, and baking.

GRADE AA TEXTURE—Color, congealing point, flavor and composition of these oils are always rigidly controlled—as are the purity of the fat-free milk used, and the full nutrition value of the vitamin concentrate employed. This is typical of the extra care that makes Durkee's own Grade AA Margarine smoother spreading, more healthfully nourishing.

TRIPLE PROTECTION FOR DURKEE'S GRADE AA FLAVOR!—Here's another example of what Durkee does to assure you of the best! Every pound of Durkee's AA Margarine is given triple protection—a parchment paper inner wrap or airtight plastic bag, the regular waxed protective carton, and a sealed outer wrap of cellophane. That's one more reason why Durkee's Grade AA Margarine is so mild, so sweet, so good!

GRADE AA QUALITY—Fast delivery plus an efficient stock rotation system assures you that Durkee's own Grade AA Margarine travels from production line to your table with no needless detours. Samples from each production allotment are subjected to a continuous quality check. This gives full significance to the AA seal of superiority on each pound of Durkee Margarine.
