His comment was to the point. Silverton blew a 10 point edge during the final quarter of the first game as Mt. Angel staged a comeback to win, 36-33. Stayton took the nightcap from Sacred Heart, 35-34.

Every game in the District 11 tournament has been just about as close except for the shellacking handed to the Cardi-

Smith Ouster Is Sought by 'Cat Faculty Squad

Willamette University faculty basketball team members threatened to kick President G. Herbert Smith off their squad Saturday morning for missing practice. As a result, Smith has been relegated to the position of yell king for the Faculty-Letterman's club game Thursday night at 8 p.m.

Staged as a benefit for the athletic organization, the Stu-dent-Professor game ranks as the year's top fun-fest at the campus. Last minute illness of "Ruthless Robert" Gregg and "Manuverin' Melvin" Geist, billed as the "Dizzy Deans," has scriously hampered the faculty cause.

After their Saturday morning workout, the faculty five reported the club in "too much shape." Tapering off exercises will occupy the group the rest of the week.

There is a possibility that Keith Farnum may become eligible for competition next season. He is considered excellent material at Oregon and in all probability every effort will be made to improve his scholastic record. As for Warren's record since he took full charge in 1948 he has won 21 conference games and lost 27. His overall mark is 39 wins and 48 defeats.

Skits and Scratches

By FRED ZIMMERMAN, Capital Journal Sports Editor

John Warren, Oregon's basketball coach, has gone to Palm Springs for a period where it is hoped the warm sunshine will wipe out all traces of a recent attack of virus pneumonia. In view of the pressure that most athletic coaches undergo during the season of competition, it might be a good idea to set up a rest home for the entire lot. There, blood pressures could be reduced and the men regain some semblance of normalcy.

They must be a hardy lot, for not too many of them succumb to the ravages of heart disease, although most of them become directors of athletics before Father Time gathers them in.

A Good Move

Too many times when a public building is in the planning stage, those persons who must use its facilities are not consulted until the job is completed. After 11 years of coaching, eating all sorts of meals and doing a lot of guessing, one either breaks down with ulcers or learns to talk without breaking into a sweat. Hauk appears to have avoided the ulcers. Speaking before the Salem Breakfast club, Hauk philosophized over a variety of subjects, such as officials, so-called advantages of the home floor and friendly crowds and the advantages of a player trying to win the game at hand rather than spending most of the time getting even with an opponent who persists in keeping his elbow in your ribs.

Play Your Opponents

Hauk is a firm believer in "playing your opponents" rather than the officials. "You can't do anything about the officials and there is no use in getting all riled up over their decisions," is Hauk's theory. A player would be much better off if he would concentrate on correcting his own mistakes. As for the advantages of playing before a friendly audience, Hauk said he wouldn't give a nickel for a kid who wouldn't do his best when razzed by a hostile crowd.
