Certificates of Honor in recognition of many years of work for the YMCA were presented Dr. Frank E. Brown of Salem (left) and J. B. Torrey of Everett, Wash. (center) by Tinkham Gilbert, Salem. Presentation was made during the annual Northwest Area Council of the Y held in Salem over the week-end. Gilbert was named chairman for the area.

Area Council of Y Adjourns

Approximately 125 professional YMCA workers and laymen concluded their annual Northwest area council meeting in Salem Sunday by electing a full slate of officers. The new leaders of the organization which covers Oregon, Washington, Idaho and a portion of Montana, include Tinkham Gilbert of Salem as president; Dr. DeNorval Unthank, Portland, vice president; Charles Norman, Seattle, secretary; and Walter Huffine, Seattle treasurer.

Following a devotional period with Rev. Brooks Moore, pastor of the First Methodist church as leader, the delegates took care of council business. This included the adoption of a budget of $58,310 and a world service budget of $30,507.

During the annual banquet held Saturday night, Dr. Frank E. Brown of Salem and J. P. Torrey of Everett, Wash., were given special recognition for their work with the Y. Dr. Brown, a member of the board of the Salem YMCA since 1916, has been particularly active in world service. Torrey served as president and treasurer of the area council for a number of terms.

Eugene R. McCarthy, prominent business man of St. Louis and president of the national council, was principal speaker during the banquet.

72 Reserve Pilots Fly Here

With the checking in of three more naval reserve pilots for flying over the week-end, the total of pilots now cleared for flying at the Salem Naval Air facility was brought to 72.

The past week-end found the facility's planes in the air 57 hours. Twenty-seven pilots were flown during the two days and made a total of 32 hops during the week-end.

Since six men from this area started their two-weeks cruises at the facility last Wednesday the planes at the facility have been in the air a total of 103.8 hours.

This week-end was the one assigned to pilots from the Corvallis-Eugene area and Sunday the facility sent planes to Eugene to pick up seven men. Five of this group came to take their physical exams and two to put in flight time.

Love Burglar Guilty, To Hang for Rape

Dallas, Tex., March 6 (U.S.)—Dapper Fred Felix Adair, Jr., the handsome ex-bookkeeper accused of being Dallas' mysterious "Love Burglar," was found guilty today on a charge of raping a 31-year-old housewife and the all-male jury assessed the death penalty.

The handsome, 25-year-old husband and father blushed as the verdict was returned in District Judge Henry King's court, but otherwise showed little change from the calm attentiveness he showed during the week-long trial.

Defense Attorney Harvey Lindsey immediately said he would appeal the verdict.

Position Is "Filled"—Bette Twedt, Salem student at the University of Oregon, was one of 50 students in advanced retail merchandising who went to Portland to assume supervised responsibilities in the operation of a large department store for one day. Miss Twedt, a senior major in business administration, served as buyer in the jewelry and leather goods department. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. M. Twedt, 620 Thompson.

Escapes Sought—Three escapes from Fairview home were sought Monday by Salem police. The trio were identified as Frank Weeks, 22, Robert Luckner, 19, and a one-armed inmate, George Niavala.

Epidemic of Auto Robberies

Salem detectives were detailed Monday to attempt to secure information which might lead to suspects responsible for a series of thefts of accessories from automobiles.

A total of five new reports were added to the list of cases over the week-end. At the same time officers located a car which had been stolen from the Marion Motors used car lot. It bore license plates reported stolen from the Capps used car lot.

The new complaints regarding thefts from autos were received from J. O. Gallagher, 1410 Court street, Donald Reinke, 1139 North Church, Dr. E. A. Page, 1255 Court, George Funkhouser, Route 1, Gervais, and Aleck Cohen, 1800 North 24th street.

Gallagher reported the theft of a sweater, flashlight, fender lights and hub caps. He estimated his loss at $30.

Reinke reported an attempt to steal a car. A package of labels was stolen.

Dr. Page notified police that the trunk of his car had been pried open and a tire and wheel taken. The value of the stolen equipment was set at $49.

A package of groceries was taken from the Gervais man's car while Cohen disclosed that a wind wing on his vehicle had been smashed by thieves who took a purse valued at $25. It contained a $12.50 compact and glasses valued at $27, as well as a ring of keys.

The stolen car was recovered in the 1000 block on North Front street. The battery had been removed.

16 More File For Precinct Jobs

Sixteen more filings for Republican precinct committeemen and committeewomen have been filed with the Marion county clerk's office.

Adm. Reeves to Cut Navy Outlay

Washington, March 6 (AP)—Vice Adm. John W. Reeves, Jr., was picked today to head an enlarged navy inspector general's office in a move to obtain "all possible" savings in navy manpower and money.

Secretary of Navy Matthews, announcing this today, said Reeves will take over responsibility for surveys and inspections of the naval shore establishment and of shore-based fleet activities.

Reeves, now chief of naval air training, is due to be retired for age on May 1. Matthews said he will be recalled to active duty for "about a year to serve in his new post."

Reeves is a native of Haddonfield, N. J., but now calls Coronado, Calif., his home town.

10 Year Plan

the people for the plant and the interceptor sewer. But since then the state sanitary authority has set up changes in plans that makes some increase necessary.

Also some additional money will be necessary for the general sewer extensions. Among other items to be considered will be public parks and playgrounds. But all city departments as well have to be considered. After the city manager has made recommendations it will be up to the council to decide how the projects should be spaced over the 10-year period and what should be given priority.

Financial items that go on the May ballot will not be lumped, but will be in separate bills, which would make it possible for the people to approve some and reject others.

Important also for the joint meeting's attention will be the general revision of the zoning code on which the planning and zoning commission is now working. This requires much hard work, and the commission wants to know how as it goes along that the council is pretty well in agreement. Otherwise the council might tear the report to pieces when completed, it would have to be done over again, and would be long delayed.

The zoning of the old West Salem area will be mentioned, but it is subject for public hearing before the commission on May 21. A definite zoning plan for that district will be recommended after the hearing.

Sander States

That was under the friendly questioning of his counsel who drew from him the assertion that Mrs. Borroto was dead when he entered her Hillsborough county hospital room last December 4.

Maintains Position
The atmosphere changed about an hour and a half later when the state's chief prosecutor, Attorney General William L. Phinney, began his cross-examination and asked his boyhood chum questions designed to send the latter to prison for life.

But Dr. Sander maintained his position that "I knew she was dead" when he injected air into Mrs. Borroto's arm.

"You had an obsession to inject air into the veins of this poor, dead soul?" snapped Phinney to the physician who once was his pal.

"That's right," said Dr. Sander.

Can't Tell Why
"And you can't tell us why?" persisted Phinney.

"That's right," repeated the accused doctor.

Finally, however, Dr. Sander amplified his answer by adding that "the very fact she was dead gave me assurance I could do her no harm."

Under direct examination, Dr. Sander said "I never had any intention to kill Mrs. Borroto. I never told anybody I killed Mrs. Borroto."

Third of Coal

Railroads completed arraying fleets of coal cars for the big job of moving the precious product.

A survey of the fields indicated fewer than 30,000 miners on early shifts answered the back to work call.

In some cases pits were reopened although only a fraction of the normal manpower was present.

Delay Due to Tradition
Scores of others began operation behind regular schedule as small groups of miners struggled in.

Tradition accounted for the delay in most cases.

Customarily UMW locals hold meetings after receipts of the official word of a strike end from John L. Lewis. Then the diggers go to work.

The UMW chieftain's telegram has not yet reached many mine areas.

In Pennsylvania, some diggers hinted they may not go back to work until Wednesday, explaining that they would be an extra week's relief check that way.

Laughter echoed in the lamp houses and shaft entrances where miners did show up.

Contract Terms

Memorial periods—These periods of idleness to commemorate the death of mine victims are limited to five days a year under the new contract; the previous clause, which Lewis wanted renewed, imposed no limit.

The new agreement also contains these provisions not in the old one and not previously disclosed as demands by either miners or operators:

The operators shall be held in violation of the contract if they fail to make "full and prompt payments" to the welfare fund. The fund's board of trustees now includes Lewis as chairman; Josephine Roche, formerly Lewis' fund director, as neutral trustee; and Charles A. Owen, New York coal industrialist, for the operators. The old board included Senator Bridge (R., N. H.), as the neutral and Judge Charles I. Dawson of Louisville, named operators' trustee but never seated.

All welfare fund payments now in arrears must be paid up by March 15.

The contract runs until June 30, 1952, but either party may terminate it on 30 days' notice on or after April 1, 1951.

"Brat"—"I'm a brat," replies Debbie Reynolds, 17, (above) as Superior Judge W. Turney Fox asked her what type of role she plays in the movies. She appeared before the judge in Los Angeles, for approval of her new movie contract with MGM studio. (AP Wirephoto)

Bacon Clue to Church Robbers

A three-pound package of bacon appeared to be the only clue detectives would have which could help them trace burglars who struck at two Salem churches late Sunday or early Monday morning.

The bacon was found outside the First Evangelical church which is located at the corner of Summer and Marion streets. It apparently had been inadvertently left by the burglars.

Inside the church, officers found that two cases of empty Nesbitt orange pop bottles had been stolen along with $8 in cancelled one cent stamps. The stamps apparently were collector's items.

Two pop bottles had been smashed on the floor in an act of vandalism by the criminals.

The second church hit by the burglars was the Bethel church at Cottage and D streets. There a window was forced by the burglars. Nothing was found to be missing, but the furnace of the church had been turned on.

Valley Co-op Called—The annual meeting of the Valley Farmers Cooperative will be held in the Silverton Knights of Pythias hall Friday starting at 10:30 o'clock. Three directors are to be elected with the terms of Walter Von Flue, Stanley Swanson and W. H. Brandt expiring. C. J. Soderquist is secretary-treasurer.

City Electric Bids—City Electric of Salem was second low bidder in connection with the construction of a distribution and street lighting system for Springfield, Ore., when bids were opened Monday. City Electric's bid was $193,192 as compared with $177,767 for Montgomery Electric of Portland. Other bids ranged as high as $284,034.
