Italian Prices on Cigarettes Rise

Rome, March 11 (AP)—The Italian government boosted the prices of gasoline, cigarettes and tobacco today to aid in paying for Premier Alcide de Gasperi's new $2,000,000,000 development program for southern Italy.

The 10-year program was approved last night by the cabinet. Packages of 20 cigarettes went up ten lire (about one and one-half cents). The cost of gasoline was raised 23 lire (about four cents) a gallon.

The price raises brought immediate howls of protest from the communist opposition. Communist Senator Umberto Terracini told the senate the measure hit only the working man.

Marshall plan money would be used for two-thirds of the 1950-51 expenditure of 100,000,000,000 lire ($160,000,000). The program includes ambitious plans for public works, irrigation, farm development, aqueducts, water storage reservoirs, roads and new hotels.

Meanwhile new violence was reported from rural areas of Italy and Sicily.

In a hand-to-hand battle between armed police and some 500 Sicilian peasants carrying communist banners, 30 police and 11 peasants were injured last night near Palermo, Sicily. The police were trying to disperse peasants they said had been firing brush piles in the countryside.

Greece Foreign Policy Same As Allies

Athens, March 11 (AP)—The moderate leftist leader who is slated to be Greece's next prime minister said yesterday his government would coordinate its foreign policy with that of the United States and Britain.

This statement by Gen. Nicholas Plastiras followed widespread local rumors that his new cabinet might draw Greece closer towards the Soviet union. Plastiras reportedly had some communist support in last Sunday's election.

"We want the friendship-economic and political—of all, but our policy will always be towards the west," Plastiras declared in an interview.

20 Year Old Woman Held On Series of Check Charges

A 20-year-old redhead, suspect in a series of bogus check operations in McMinnville, Corvallis, Silverton and Salem, pleaded innocent Saturday in district court on charges of obtaining money by false pretenses.

The young woman—Mrs. Doris Faye Wayman, 755 McNary—was arrested by Salem detectives Friday afternoon. She was identified by a half dozen victims as the woman who had given them bad checks, according to police.

Mrs. Wayman, however, protested the identification and told officers she would prove she was not in Salem at the time the checks were passed. Officers picked up the trail of the woman they arrested after checking with parole authorities. Mrs. Wayman is on parole in a similar case.

With her arrest, state officers were immediately assigned to check her activity against other bogus check activity by a woman in various Willamette valley cities and towns.

Officers said the woman who cashed the checks made service stations her most frequent target. At least eight checks were cashed in Salem area and every case fit into a similar pattern. A woman would walk into a service station attendant with a prepared check and ask if it could be cashed. They were made out using the name Eileen R. Lewis, the alias under which Mrs. Wayman was arrested.

In no case did the service station attendants ask for identification.

After her appearance in court, attorneys for the woman endeavored to secure funds to enable her to go free under $1,000 bail. A hearing was set for March 13th.

Drink of Water Not So Simple

The processes involved in getting a drink of water are becoming more complicated in Oregon. That was apparent this week when the list of subjects to be discussed at the forthcoming waterworks operators short course at Oregon State college March 20-24 was announced.

The sessions, to be led by OSC School of Engineering faculty members and personnel from the state board of health division of environmental sanitation, will include lectures and demonstrations on water analysis, hydraulics, waterborne diseases, microscopic examination, and taste, odor and corrosion control—a far cry from the shallow backyard well era of 50 years ago.

Mastery of these subjects has enabled Oregon's water supply authorities to compile one of the best records in the nation for the prevention of water-borne disease, according to state board of health statistics.

The course, which is expected to attract the majority of the state's superintendents of public water systems and operators of purification plants, is being jointly sponsored by OSC, the state board of health, the League of Oregon Cities, and the Pacific northwest section of the American Water Works association.

Hawaiian Sues For Offered Pay

A Hawaiian who came to the United States under a promise that he would be given a job paying $1 an hour, has filed suit against the employer who promised him the job.

Joe Victorine submitted the complaint in Marion county circuit court Saturday. He alleges that H. S. Kubik entered into an agreement with him on July 14, 1949.

The agreement, according to Victorine's complaint, was that Victorine was to come to the United States and work for Kubik at a rate of a dollar an hour.

On August 14, 1949, claims Victorine, he and his family came to this country in order that Victorine could start work for Kubik.

Instead of providing him with a job as promised, alleges Victorine, Kubik instead gave Victorine a job in an isolated mine at a wage of less than $3 per day.

Victorine complains that he has thus suffered a loss of $650 and seeks judgement in that amount.

New Zealand Fellowship To Russell Tripp, Willamette

Russell Tripp, Willamette university student body president and political science major, has been awarded a year's fellowship at the university in Wellington, New Zealand, by Rotary International, according to unofficial but apparently authentic information.

Tripp reported early Saturday that he had heard of his selection through the medium of a news broadcast. The announcement was carried out of Chicago by the Associated Press.

Tripp, a resident of Albany, was nominated for the fellowship by the Salem Rotary club and was given full backing by Albany Rotarians. He is one of approximately 25 selected over the United States study abroad, with expenses paid out of the income from a $2,000,000 fund raised by Rotarians. Salem Rotarians each contributed $10 to the fund.

Rotary International also sponsors educational programs in this country for students in foreign countries.

Because he is interested in government and intends to make a career in the field, Tripp believes New Zealand will be an excellent field for observation because of political changes experienced there.

Zielski's campaign statement reads:

"If I am nominated and elected, I will during my term of office fully cooperate with other members of the county court, regardless who they may be, or their party affiliation. I'll strive to procure federal aid for public works, where federal aid will justify itself. I will strive to stop the great waste of public funds. My aim, at all times, will be to protect the interest of Marion county taxpayers, and give all persons and matters, regardless how small or great, impartial attention."

His ballot slogan is "Fearless and impartial — no interest to serve, but the public interest."

Burk, who was sheriff for 12 years up until 1944, submitted this statement:

"Let's spend Marion county money where it is needed. No man is old enough to remember when a democrat was last on the county court, so let's at least be represented for the sake of Marion county roads, the poor and the aged, as well as giving the taxpayer more for his money. It's time for a housecleaning."
