Recovery Steps Taken by State Flax and Linen Board

By C. K. LOGAN

Another step in the recovery and development of the flax industry of the state has been taken by the Oregon flax and linen board with a new set-up providing for uniform field inspections and sampling, appointment of a full-time flax technician and generally placing the industry under long-range planning operations.

Upon request of the state flax board, flax investigators of the agricultural experiment station at Oregon State college presented a broad plan which has met with the approval of the board.

The general purpose is to encourage the production of more and better fiber than was grown under the old plan which was based solely on height and weight of straw regardless of fiber quantity or quality.

Under the new plan there will be a uniform system of field inspection and sampling, plant processing, fiber quality determination and certification. Factors to be checked in fiber quality determination include length, strength, fineness, color and absence of rust.

The technician will help growers of the state with their production problems and will also work with the farm crops department at the experiment station.

Flax officials see another advantage in the change in that the unified processing and grading standards will allow centralized marketing and will also help in the collection of information that will be helpful to the industry in planning long-range operation.

A uniform advance payment will also be made to the growers annually as set by processing plant managers prior to harvest.

The plan was prepared by J. D. Sather, former federal fiber crop specialist at the college and Don W. Fisher, present USDA specialist working on flax, production problems. It is patterned after a general outline proposed by E. G. Nelson, formerly in charge of the flax breeding project at the station.

The state board was named

Mill Operates Double Shift

Independence — The Independence Lumber and Manufacturing company saw mill, which has been shut down for the past two months with the exception of a short period early in January, has reopened, and is now operating on two full shifts.

The shut-down was due to a shortage of logs. The extreme cold weather and the closing of roads cut off the supply of logs for the mill. The logs started coming into the mill Tuesday afternoon after the state highway department opened a half mile of road from the Maxfield last year by the governor to help develop the state flax industry and by representatives of the various Oregon flax growers' associations.

Creek school to the old Kings Valley highway corner which leads to Hoskins.

The reopening of the mill provides work for about 200 men living in this vicinity. People in this community were glad to hear the whistle, the hum of the big saws and the buzz of the planers as work was resumed.

These are days of many and serious world problems, which America cannot ignore. Cold war, strikes, revolution, conflict are the phrases that make today's headlines.

Numerous are the theories advanced for solving these problems. Statesmen, economists, and diplomats have tried and failed to achieve their goal of world peace.

But there is another force at work that promises greater success. This is the power of love, fellowship, and understanding — and it takes its banner under the name of Christianity.

On Sunday, March 12, Christians the nation over will gather together to pool their wealth, talents, and faith in ONE GREAT HOUR OF SHARING. Only through such united efforts as this can the world come to know the peace that it desires.

Come to Church this Sunday morning and share with others the peace and security that you know will come from Christian living and Christian faith.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.
