The answers to everyday insurance problems*

By SID BOISE

QUESTION: Some friends of ours had a fairly small roof fire but the firemen had to use a lot of water to put it out. Their furniture wasn't damaged at all by the fire but some of it was completely ruined by the water. They haven't settled up with their insurance company but I just wondered if they would be paid for their furniture.

ANSWER: Yes, so long as the water damage is a result of efforts to extinguish a fire, the damage to house or furniture is covered.
