Hogg's Lambs At High Price

A truckload of 11-month-old fat lambs marketed in Portland last Monday by R. W. Hogg & Sons, Route 8, Salem, sold for $24.50 per hundred, highest price paid on the North Port-land Livestock Exchange for the last two years. Purebred Hamp-shires, they averaged 116 pounds and brought $28.33 each.

The lambs had recently been shorn but because of their high quality and finish sold at a half cent per pound premium over the top paid for wooled lambs that day. They had been fed silage, hay and grain while run-ning on ryegrass pasture during the past winter.

the past winter.

Hogg, prominent Hampshire breeder, says rising lamb prices have stimulated inquiry for stock sheep and ewes with which sheepmen plan increasing their farm flocks in the Willamette valley.
