St. Patrick's Day

"Dad, what happened?" she called down the stairs. "S all right," he called back. "You come downstairs n' play pianna. I wanna sing."

Then Mom knew. As quickly as she could she got on some clothes. She hurried, but by the time she'd reached the living room Dad was standing on the piano stool declaiming:

St. Patrick was a gentleman, He came of decent people. In Dublin town he built a church, And put upon't a steeple. His father was a Wooligan, His mother was a Brady, His aunt she was a Kinnegan, His wife the Widdy Grady. Now here's to good St. Patrick's fist, He was a saint so clever He gave the snakes and toads a twist, And banished them forever.

Farm Auction Man to Locate

James L. Payne, a real estate and purebred livestock sales specialist with a background of years of successful operation, will locate in the central Willamette valley.

Payne, who was in Salem yesterday, said he would make headquarters either in Salem or nearby, and that he would concentrate on the Willamette valley.

He is a graduate auctioneer from the Reich American Auctioneering School of Mason City, Iowa. In his operations here he will conduct and manage general farm auctions, livestock auctions, etc.

"I will manage in every case a complete sale," he said. "The property owners who are selling may choose their own auctioneer, or I will pick one for them, or do the auctioneering myself."

Payne has been in the real estate business 17 years. A year and a half ago he came to Oregon from Gary, Ind., where he was in the real estate business over 15 years and had 11 salesmen working out of his office.

Aside from his training at Reich American he has had instruction and training under 10 of the country's outstanding auctioneers. Besides handling sales he will continue in the farm real estate business.

He now has offices in Eugene and will come to Salem as soon as the arrangements can be made. His background dates back to his early years, for he was raised on a dairy farm in Wisconsin.

Vikings Favored

La Grande copped the other finalist berth, downing Bend 64-56 in a game a lot closer than the final score indicated. In the final period the lead changed hands frequently and not until the final two minutes did the La Grande margin become safe.

Bend overcame an early La Grande lead to be in front at the quarter 21-16 and at the half 39-21. In the third period La Grande came to life, sparked by Bob Gilbert, and knotted the count 47-47 at the end of the period.

From then on it was a seesaw affair with one ahead and then the other until Burl Green's lay-in made it La Grande 58, Bend 56 for all the margin that was needed.

Final Scores, Dallas, Hillsboro.

High School Seniors and Parents Will Be Entertained

High school seniors and their parents from Salem high and 12 nearby high schools will be entertained by the Salem Thirty-Staters club at the high school auditorium Thursday night, March 23, at 7:30 o'clock.

The invitations to outside schools extend from Jefferson to Aurora and Mill City to west across the river. All OSC alumni are invited to attend.

The meeting is designed to give students who plan to attend college a glimpse of what they may expect on the campus and specific information for those who intend to attend Oregon State college. Various department heads will accompany the main speakers here and will meet with those interested immediately after the program to offer advice and to answer any questions.

Principal speaker will be Dan Poling, dean of men, and Dean Clifford E. Maser, head of the school of business and technology with Lydia Mae La Palombara, of the English department, speaking from the woman's angle for interested co-eds. La Verne (Kip) Taylor, coach and members of his staff, will also attend with Taylor speaking briefly. He will also show football moving pictures probably of the OSC-UO game last fall. Members of the Salem OSC Mothers' club, headed by Mrs. Austin Wilson, president, will serve light refreshments.

The Salem chapter of the Thirty-Staters is the second formed in the state since fall. Membership consists of alumni of the college and the club takes its name from a limit of 30 members in each club. Officers are Bob White, president; Bernard Selberg, vice president; Howard Sargeant, secretary-treasurer, with Doug Chambers and John W. Riches co-chairmen for the evening.

Sec. Acheson

While Acheson designed his seven points for American consumption, they have the effect of constituting a proposal for an end to the cold war. The next move therefore would appear to be up to Russia and the question which intrigues the diplomats here is how the Russians can reply without letting it appear to the world that they are not really interested in a settlement of the East-West conflict.

What Acheson said the Russians ought to do in order to prove their good faith constituted a sweeping redefinition of objectives for which the United States has been striving for several years. On some points his speech appears to go beyond previous official declarations.

He declared in substance that the Russian should stop blocking German, Japanese and Austrian treaties which would give those countries real unity and freedom; that they should withdraw their military and police power from their eastern European satellites and give up the sphere of influence they hold there; that they should begin to act as if they believe in the United Nations; that they should join a search for real international atomic control; that they should stop using international communism to overthrow other governments; that they should accord foreign diplomats decent treatment and that they should give up their propaganda of what Acheson called distortion.

"I see no evidence," Acheson told his audience at the University of California, "that the Soviet leaders will change their conduct until the progress of the free world convinces them that they cannot profit from a continuation of these tensions. We want peace, but not at any price. . . . We must continue to press ahead with the building of a free world which is strong in its faith and in its material progress."

NAM Officials Booked—An industrial leaders' conference here at the Chamber of Commerce rooms Monday evening at 7 o'clock will hear two representatives of the National Association of Manufacturers. $3 Billion Cut

"If we are going to get close to a balanced budget, this bill ought to be around $26,000,000," Rep. Taber (R.-N.Y.) told newsmen. Taber, to republican on the appropriations group, would not comment on the reported cut of $1,200,000,000 already tentatively made.

Republicans may try to effect more reductions when the bill goes before the full committee. But some of their strategists believe the place to do the cutting is on the house floor. Their theory is that if any substantial economies are effected in the committee, Chairman Cannon (D., Mo.) and the democratic majority will claim the credit.

They also figure that, this being a congressional election year, they can pick up strong backing for amendments to trim the scores of items that make up the bill's totals. Some republicans are talking about a blanket cut of 10 percent on all items. They believe this would pass on a roll-call vote.
