

Silence in the Court! Judge Is Blacking Face

Comedy Relief—Judge Carr makes up for show.

(AP Newsfeature)
Montgomery, Ala., March 21—Judge Robert Bryan Carr of the Alabama court of appeals is a minstrel man.

Unless you know him, you might have trouble believing, after watching his antics in a blackface skit, that he is one of the state's most able and respected jurists.

For more years than he cares to admit, Judge Carr has been a popular "end man" in Alabama minstrels. He was graduated up to "interlocutor" in his last one.

The judge confesses he may have presided at one or two trials with charcoal smudges on his face—evidence of the previous night's minstrel performance. Others are convinced that he is a "homespun" version of the late Associate Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the U. S. supreme court.

The 66-year-old Alabama jurist has a lot in common with Holmes, particularly his native wit and penetrating legal mind. But Judge Carr would be the last to compare himself with the famous New Englander.

Real Life Frankie Kills Her Two-Timing Sweetie

Frankfort, Ind., March 21 (U.P.)—A torrid blonde named Frankie admitted today that she killed her man in a jealous rage when she caught him doing her wrong with another woman.

Frankie Miller, 29, blasted the life out of Leland Holliday, 35, after he drove off with the other woman, Mabel McGilton, Saturday night.

Then she leaned over his body and sobbed: "I love you. I love you."

Holliday died on the floor of his apartment amid a heap of love letter from Miss Miller which she had scattered on the floor while awaiting his return.

Miss Miller also tried to kill herself but the gun jammed.

The fracas started Saturday night when Holliday stood up

Miss Miller on a date. She traced him to a tavern where he was drinking with Miss McGilton, and waited outside until they emerged.

"They got into his car and I got into it, too," she said. "I told the other girl to get out. We quarreled for a while and then I left."

Miss Miller went to Holliday's apartment and wrecked it. She smashed furniture, poured beer and soft drinks over the upholstery and clothing, and scattered her love letters to Holliday over the floor.

Then she got his shotgun from a closet and sat down to wait for him. As she waited, she

Pickets Placed By Woodsmen

Lebanon, March 21—Failure of the Hammond Lumber company to meet requests of fallers and buckers resulted in a picket line being thrown around the firm's operations near Lacombe, and halt all work Friday, it is announced by Arne Nordstrand, local IWA-CIO business manager.

Striking are 24 cutting crew men, 15 rigging crew workers, five buckers and five shopeners, but with increasing good weather, more than 150 men would soon have been back on the job. The company is one of the largest in Linn county.

According to Nordstrand, the dispute arose over the union's request for the company to re-establish minimum wage rates and a sliding scale of pay in accordance with working agreements last year.

The company, it is alleged, declares there is no minimum wage scale in the contract.

The wage dispute arose when fallers and buckers of CIO International Woodworkers local 5-251 failed to secure pay rates cut by the company last fall. The union is asking minimum rates of 45 cents per 1000 feet for fallers and 18 cents per square foot bucked. The company is now paying 38 cents to fallers and 15 cents to buckers.

The union is also asking a sliding wage rate to allow for increased pay in logging poor timber areas. Nordstrand stated that average rates paid by other companies in this area are 60 cents to fallers and 20 cents to buckers.

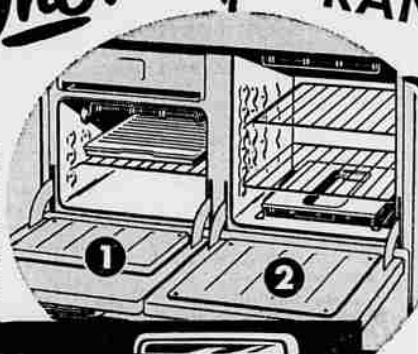

The union man said that the union has attempted to discuss the dispute on three occasions during the last three weeks with the company, but that no deci-
